A SWINGER'S LAMENT FOR PIERRE

Times News Services

LONDON — The London Times today lamented the passing of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, swinger.

"Being prime minister of Canada for more than four years has dulled him nearly beyond recognition," the Times said in its gossip column today.

"Yesterday he held a press conference . . . in the same room where, four years ago, he met the British press for the first time at one of the liveliest question and answer sessions to grace a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

"Reporters in miniskirts asked questions about his love life and he parried them with wit and elegance. He spoke strongly and thoughtfully about Canada and his role as its leader.

"Yesterday was a dour contrast. He arrived late, said he could not stay long and mumbled, sometimes nearly inaudibly, long, dreary, unimaginative answers . . . he made two half-hearted jokes about the loss of his majority in parliament and that was the end of the entertainment . . .

"Even 50-year-old swingers grow up," the Times said, "which is a shame."

Trudeau completed two days of talks with Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday, and flew back to Canada today.

He said today he was "very gratified" with the British prime minister's reassurances that Canada's viewpoint is fully understood.

Britain joins the European Common Market Jan. 1, and Commonwealth preferential tariffs will be abolished gradually, affecting more than half of Canada's exports to Britain. In 1971, Britain imported $1.3 billion worth of goods from Canada — about eight per cent of Canada's total exports.

Expanding Labor Force Ups Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — An estimated 524,000 people were unemployed in November, the highest proportion of the labor force for that month in a decade, Statistics Canada reported today.

The figure was up from 483,000 in October and compared with 503,000 unemployed in November last year.

In B.C. 67,000 were seeking work, the same number as in October and 1,000 more than in November, 1971.

The statistics bureau said the Canadian labor force continued to expand—an unusual occurrence in November—rising to 8.88 million from 8.87 million in October.

But as winter approached all industries except manufacturing cut back on their work forces. There were greater-than-usual job reductions in agriculture and other primary industries.

The result was that 5.9 per cent of the labor force was unemployed last month, compared with 5.4 per cent in October and 5.8 per cent in November last year. The last time the November unemployment rate hit 5.9 per cent was in 1962.

Despite the gloomy November situation, Statistics Canada said the underlying trend showed improvement.

Adjusting the data for the month to reflect the situation if it were not for seasonal factors such as the approach of winter, the bureau said the underlying trend of unemployment fell to 6.6 per cent from 6.9 in October and 7.1 in September. It was also 6.6 in November last year.

The seasonally adjusted figure represents, in effect, an averaging of the unemployment rate for a year. Because of the big swing between high summer activity and the winter letdown, the actual rate usually climbs above the seasonally-adjusted figure in the winter months, and drops below it in the summer.

The actual rate of unemployment rose last winter to 7.7 per cent of the labor force in January, when the seasonally adjusted rate was down to 6.2

Statistics Canada said the increase in unemployment last month was less than usual. So was the decrease in employment. Manufacturing employment usually falls off in November, but it increased this year.

The bureau reported that 56 per cent of the civilian population aged 14 and over was in the labor force last month, showing no reduction for the month. This so-called participation rate was up from 55.7 per cent in November last year and 55.4 per cent in November, 1970.

The high participation rate has been described by the government as one of the unusual factors contributing to high unemployment figures in recent years.

Regionally, unemployment rose in all parts of the country last month except in British Columbia, where it remained the same 7.1 per cent of the labor force, as in October and a year earlier.

The rate rose to 8.4 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, from 7.2 per cent in October and eight per cent in November last year.

Plumber Shot When Pipe Taken for Gun

BELFAST (UPI) — British soldiers killed one plumber and wounded another today in the mistaken belief that pieces of pipe they carried were rifles, the army said.

"It appears the soldiers made a mistake and the men were innocent," an army spokesman said.

The troops saw and shot the two men in a derelict house previously used by snipers after gunmen opened fire on their outpost in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district, he said. It was in this same neighborhood that soldiers Monday night killed a 16-year-old gunman.

The slain man — the fifth person killed in four days — was the 651st fatality in more than three years of violence between Roman Catholics and Protestants in Ulster.

An army spokesman said the two men apparently ran to the windows of the house with pieces of pipe and tools in their hands when they heard the gunfire.

"The army deeply regrets their death and injury," the spokesman said.

British soldiers shot and killed two other men and wounded a third during gun battles with snipers in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district Monday night and today.

Violence generally subsided elsewhere in the province Monday in the wake of new legislation enacted in the Irish Republic against the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

NEWS BRIEFS

Life Sentences

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Marc Boutin, 24, and James O'Brien, 23, were sentenced Monday to life in prison after pleading guilty to non-capital murder in the downtown Blue Bird Club fire which claimed 37 lives Sept. 1.

West Toronto Dry

TORONTO (CP) — In all of swinging Toronto, one small enclave remains firmly prohibitionist. Voters in the old community of West Toronto — now part of a couple of city wards — voted dry in Monday's municipal election for the fourth time in 69 years.

Jet Smog Under Fire

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States government announced tough new anti-pollution standards Monday designed to curb drastically jet aircraft smog by Jan. 1, 1979.

Appeal Stalled

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia Supreme Court judge has reserved decision on a preliminary objection aimed at blocking a Crown appeal against a lower court ruling that has put the provincial Motor Vehicles Act point demerit system in question.

Aussie-China Talks

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Gough Whitlam, sworn in today as Australia's first Labor prime minister in 23 years, told a news conference that Australian and Chinese officials will hold a discussion in Paris Thursday on establishment of diplomatic relations.

Snow Snarls City Traffic, Chill Lingers

Arctic winds from the east unloaded up to four inches of snow on Greater Victoria overnight and the weatherman predicted today that chilly weather will linger several days.

The season's first snowfall in the capital region was limited to about an inch around Victoria but that was enough to make roads slippery, generate traffic tie-ups and lead a number of drivers into the ditch.

In Saanich, police had to deal with about two dozen minor accidents. Colwood RCMP had close to 10, Oak Bay four and there was one each reported in Victoria and Esquimalt.

While municipal road crews were out in full force with sand and salt, it wasn't enough to prevent rushhour delays, particularly on hills.

Allan McQuarrie of the weather office said the weather system which brought the snow rolled out of the Arctic to involve most of North America.

There is no sign of any warming trend for at least several days and a chance of another light snowfall Thursday night or Friday, he said.

Temperatures will dip to 20 "or a little lower" tonight and will likely climb to the low thirties Wednesday. Gales in coastal inlets are to continue with winds averaging about 40 miles an hour.

McQuarrie said the easterly winds picked up moisture from Georgia Strait to drop it as snow on the east coast of

No Skagit Dam, Compensation

Environment Minister Jack Davis today said the federal government is in the process of informing the United States that the flooding of the Skagit Valley in southwestern B.C. "won't occur."

At a press conference this morning with Premier Barrett in Victoria, Davis said he expects that Canada or B.C. will have to pay compensation and that there will be a court case to determine the amount.

"The Skagit flooding won't occur. It's a matter of getting the message through not only to Washington but Seattle City Light (company) so they will stop paying lawyers and economists and so on to carry out further studies on the U.S. side," Davis said.

Neither Barrett nor Davis could give any estimate of what the compensation might amount to.

Barrett said B.C. would help in any way Davis wants.

Barrett also announced a new location for the coal shipping port near Squamish is under study by the provincial and federal governments.

Barrett said there has been no decision yet, but studies are going ahead and one of them could be released in two weeks.

Barrett noted that the original Squamish coal dock site has been scrapped by Davis, and "we agree with that decision."

The new location is the nearby Mamquam channel, which Barrett said has "already been destroyed by logging booms."

Slick Ads and Parents Blamed for Drug Cult

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Slick advertising, profit-hungry manufacturers and pill-taking parents are the real culprits behind the explosion of the drug culture among the young, U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson said today.

Nelson, opening two days of hearings into home remedies for coughs and colds, contended promotion of over-the-counter drugs is "nothing short of scandalous."

He said people in the U.S. pay some $1 billion for home remedies every year, hoping to cure everything from stuffy noses to obesity.

Among the targets for this week's hearings will be such popular cold-fighters as Contac, Dristan, Allerest and Coricidin — products for which Nelson said medical science has found "no convincing evidence" of benefit.

In fact, he said, these products may cause undesirable side effects — particularly if the patient has heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure or thyroid disease.

"These products are at best mostly useless, while many are harmful and even dangerous," Nelson said.

"Most of the drug companies' promotion and advertising of these products is simply a generous mixture of false claims and outright nonsense. While the drug companies deserve to be exposed and censured and the law needs to be tightened to control their advertising, the public itself must share the blame for the fact that we have become a nation of irrational pill-poppers."

In testimony before the committee, a doctor suggested today that hot chicken soup might be as effective as some highly advertised medicines in fighting colds and coughs.

Dr. Sol Katz a Georgetown University, Washington, said "cold preparations containing ingredients such as decongestants, antihistamines, analgesics, anticholinergics, caffeine, etc., are objectionable for many reasons."

Katz said the remedies which combine ingredients may harmfully suppress a cough by also prolonging an infection and drying nasal passages when "what is not what you want to do."

"Youngsters cannot buy 6 per cent beer, but they can go into a drug store and buy a cough remedy with 20 per cent alcohol," Katz said. "They can get a high from that."

SEVERANCE PAY OF $25,000

The three members of the disbanded B.C. Mediation Commission have been given severance settlements of about $25,000 each by the NDP government.

Labor Minister Bill King made the announcement today. Former chairman of the commission, John Parker, is to get a settlement of $25,309. The two former members, Alastair Pollock and Pen Baskin, each get $24,762.

King said the figures were arrived at after "discussions" between the government and the three commissioners.

King said the government did not feel legally obligated to make a monetary settlement with the commissioners "but there was a certain moral obligation."

The commissioners lost their jobs when the government decided to disband the Mediation Commission during the special session of the legislature.

Special Features

The Times family section today presents the first of five articles on handicapped children, the extent of their handicap and the facilities available to them and their parents in the province and in Victoria.

The series will examine such handicaps as cerebral palsy, muscular distrophy, mental retardation, hyperactivity and autism. Each article will tell the story of one child's suffering and how his family copes with it.

In another special feature today Saanich and Esquimalt aldermanic candidates plus Saanich school trustee candidates list their concerns in the forthcoming Dec. 9 municipal elections on Page 10.

BCTF to Probe Campbell River

VANCOUVER (CP) — Adam Robertson, president of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, said Monday he will name an independent commission this week "to take a cold, hard look" at the learning environment in the Campbell River school district.

The commission, he said, was requested by district teachers to investigate what they called the rapidly deteriorating educational climate in all district schools during the last year or so.

Robertson said a request for the investigation was made to him and in September by "a considerable number of school personnel" during a visit to the district.

The BCTF executive agreed to the request and on Nov. 18 instructed Robertson to name the commission and get on with the job, he said.

Robertson said he is unsure how many members to name to the commission although it will be no more than three. Its composition will depend on who is available and whom he can trust to do an objective job.

He said he dictated a letter to Education Minister Eileen Dailly informing her of the commission and planned to do the same for school trustees of the district later this week.

He said the investigation would not be a witch-hunt but would be conducted in a positive and orderly manner.

Robertson said he hopes to elicit the co-operation of the school board, and would not discount the possibility he will ask one district school trustee to sit on the commission.

But if the board refuses to allow the commission access to the schools, he said, the investigation will go ahead although it would be "more complicated and the conclusions less valid."

He said the investigation would take about three days and should be completed before Christmas.

School board chairman Hal Newman was not available for comment, but trustee Marianne Otterson said she would welcome the commission and she agreed with Robertson that the educational climate had deteriorated.

"Everything has been hung up on the seemingly eternal issue of John Young," she said, "so that the board has not been able to occupy itself properly with important matters of educational policy."

GAS MAY TRAVEL B.C. COAST ROUTE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — El Paso Natural Gas Co. is reportedly studying a $3 billion pipeline-tanker system which would carry gas from Alaska's North Slope to the western United States along the B.C. coast.

Board chairman Howard Boyd said Monday the proposed 790-mile gas pipeline would probably parallel a controversial oil pipe from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez, Alaska, planned by a consortium of oil companies.

He said the project, which appears "economically and ecologically feasible," involves liquifying the gas at a southern Alaska terminal, shipping it in specially built tankers down the west coast, then regasifying it for distribution in the western third of the nation.

Boyd said El Paso would spend $11 million during the next 18 to 24 months on engineering and ecological studies before deciding whether to expend more than $3 billion on the project.

Oil companies, which spent nearly $1 billion in 1968 for the rights to drill on the North Slope, have not yet received interior department approval for their controversial oil line to Valdez because of conservationists' opposition.

Curtis in N.Y. On Radio Probe

Saanich and the Islands MLA Hugh Curtis and four other members of a legislative sub-committee are in New York investigating radio and television coverage of the United Nations assembly.

The group arrived Sunday and will spend three days at the United Nations before visiting the New Jersey state legislature in Trenton.

The sub-committee, headed by Curtis, was appointed to examine broadcasting methods in other jurisdictions by Speaker Gordon Dowding during a special fall session of the legislature.

Their trip will include a look into radio and television facilities at legislative assemblies in Halifax, Toronto and Edmonton, (and the Toronto Metropolitan Council).

Phyllis Young (NDP — Vancouver Little Mountain), Robert McClelland (SC— Langley), Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) and Maurice Chazottes, chief of Hansard for B.C. are also on the sub-committee.

The sub-committee will hold hearings in January at the Hotel Vancouver on the feasibility of allowing radio microphones and television cameras into the legislature.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the B.C. Association of Broadcasters and the legislative press gallery have been invited to submit briefs.

Deep Cove Given Water For School

Central Saanich council agreed Monday night to supply an extra 7,500 gallons of water to Deep Cove water system if needed, for a high school planned for McDonald Park Road.

The move was a temporary measure taken to supply the new school until the Deep Cove quota can be altered.

The Deep Cove daily allocation of 150,000 gallons was taxed to its limits in peak periods even without the new school.

HORSES WEARING DIAPERS

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — It's ecology — from beginning to end.

Loggers in the Bull Run reservoir area east of here are using horses — and putting diapers on them to protect water quality.

Gordon Hiltbruner, a logger who has contracted with a paper company to work on some 400 acres of U.S. Forest Service land, designed the diapers for his two teams of horses.

"I'd never seen them but they told me I had to have them," he said.

The canvas diapers work with snaps and "they're 99 per cent effective," Hiltbruner said.

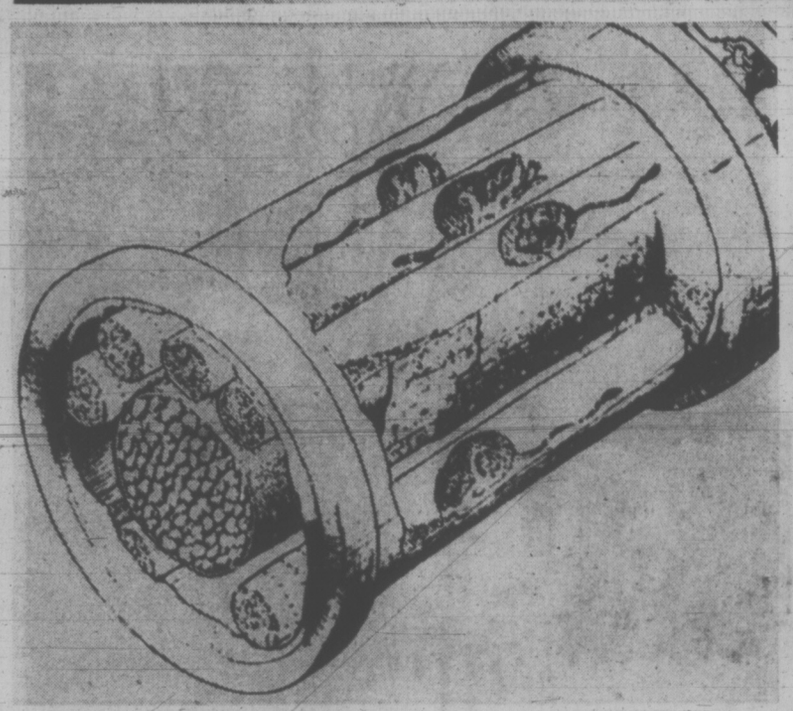
Vancouver Island. Duncan and Nanaimo were reporting a two-inch fall which reached four inches at the top of the Malahat, in the Highland district and at Comox.

Saanich had four sanding trucks, two graders and two other trucks plowing today and planned putting a night shift to work. In Victoria five trucks were salting the roads. The highways department said "everything we have" is at work on the Pat Bay and Trans-Canada Highways.

Oak Bay police said traffic snarls were "terrible" on both Foul Bay and Cadboro Bay hills south of Lansdowne early in the morning but both hills were sanded later in the day.

The RCMP detachment at Colwood said that drivers without snow tires or chains will have "problems" crossing the Malahat.

B.C. Ferries reported all sailings on time except the one from the Gulf Islands to Tsawwassen this morning which had to be cancelled.



5 MICE MAKING TRIP TO MOON

Times News Services

CAPE KENNEDY — Five pocket mice will be aboard the Apollo 17 spaceship when it blasts off at 6:53 PST Wednesday for a farewell visit to the moon.

All systems — human hardware, weather and rodent — were reported in good order today for the liftoff, the United States' first night launching of humans into space.

The rodents will ride the command ship America round and round the moon with astronaut Ronald Evans while Eugene Cernan and Harrison Schmitt explore the combination highland-lowland area of Taurus-Littrow on the surface.

The mice will be inside an aluminum canister (see sketch at left).

Experimenters implanted wafer-like cosmic ray detectors under the skulls of the mice. Back on earth, the tiny natives of the California desert will be killed and their pea-sized brains examined to determine how cosmic radiation has affected brain tissue.

Police are worrying about the 500,000 visitors coming by land, water and air for what undoubtedly will be the biggest fireworks display ever.

Photographers have been told to plan daylight exposure when flames of the Saturn V's 2,953 tons of fuel begin billowing from the launch pad.

There are parties all over the place, on houseboats and yachts in the Banana River; rich party-givers are flying in guests — one using a 747 jet, another a 707; and there will be a bash for the privileged in a tent pitched in the parking lot of a Cocoa Beach motel.

U.S. DROPPING HANOI PRESENTS

Times News Services

HANOI — The U.S. air force, already accused of dropping thousands of counterfeit banknotes on the coastal provinces in North Vietnam in September and October, was today reported to have dropped "small presents" for persons living in the area.

Agence France-Presse reported planes dropped a few hundred transistor radios, candy and children's clothing, as well as coils of nylon twine to repair fishing nets, for the inhabitants of communes in the province of Nam Ha.

The bogus banknotes were spotted by such inaccuracies as wrongly placed accents on Vietnamese letters and rougher drawings.

Sally Ann Hikes Rent for 140 Pensioners

The effects of the new B.C. minimum wage has forced an increase in rent for 140 tenants of the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge, 847 Dunsmuir, Brigadier R. B. Weddell said today.

The room and board rates were raised by $25 to $150 which virtually eliminates any pension increase tenants will receive as a result of the provincial government's decision to raise the minimum pension to $200, said Weddell.

Immediately after legislation raising the minimum wage was passed last month, an application by the Salvation Army to raise the rents was approved by the provincial government, he said.

The new rates become effective this month.

"We just had no choice. The increase in the minimum wage increased our cost by $3,200 a month. With 140 guests, we had to raise the rent by $25," said Weddell.

The lodge is operated by a 40-member staff. "Our staff have been working for us for a number of years and were not getting $2 an hour," he said.

The lodge does not accept anyone with a monthly income of more than $210.

"This is dictated to us by the provincial government. They paid one-third of the cost of building the project," said Weddell.

The boarding home operates at an annual $20,000 deficit which is absorbed by the Salvation Army National Headquarters in Toronto. The rent increase will prevent an additional deficit, he said.

Paying $150 room and board, the tenant is left with only $50 or $60 a month. "Some of them never go outside the door to spend a nickel," said Weddell.

When the lodge opened in 1962, rents were set at $75. They have been raised with each increase in the minimum wage, he said.

The Salvation Army operates Sunset Lodge at 952 Arm Street and another in New Westminster. The others have taken similar action, he said.

North Saanich Stands Firm On Wain Road Extension

North Saanich council reaffirmed its stand Monday on the clearing of the Wain Road extension after a 30-day freeze had been imposed by Mayor Trevor Davis on the original council decision.

The motion followed presentation of a 52-name petition organized by Dr. Kathleen Worrall protesting the extension, and lengthy council debate.

Mayor Davis requested council to reconsider awarding contracts for Wain Road work because "an overwhelming majority of residents have expressed opposition."

The mayor said he was advised that a counter petition organized by those in favor of the road construction had been dropped for lack of support.

"It is improper to award contracts because the total cost has not been properly defined," declared Davis, estimating that the complete job could cost $90,000.

Ald. Doug Boon said he had had two separate surveys carried out and quoted figures to show that the majority were in favor of the program.

Dr. Worrall's petition asked that funds for the Wain Road work be spent instead on improved maintenance of the existing road system.

Ald. H. A. Taylor asked Dr. Worrall why there was sudden objection to the proposed construction when preparatory work had begun in 1970.

"People think differently about these things now, we are much more conscious of our heritage," she said.

Council, with the exception of Ald. Paul Grieve, disagreed with Davis' estimate of costs and in opposition to Davis and Grieve, voted again in favor of the extension.

. . . HIGHEST IN DECADE

It rose to 7.7 per cent in Quebec last month from 7.1 in October and 7.3 a year ago. It rose in Ontario to 4.3 per cent from 4.1 in October, but remained below the 4.6-per-cent level recorded in November last year.

The prairie rate rose to 4.6 per cent last month from 3.7 in October, and 4.2 per cent in November last year.

The unemployment picture also darkened for all workers grouped by age and sex. The unemployment rate was 10.5 per cent for workers aged 14 to 24, up from 10.1 in October and 10.2 in November last year.

For men 25 and over the rate rose to 4.5 from 3.8 in October, but somewhat below the 4.7-percent figure for November last year. For women 25 and over, the rate was four per cent in November compared with 3.9 in October and 3.4 in November last year.

The figures are based on a monthly survey of 30,000 families across the country, but does not cover the northern territories, persons on Indian reserves, and those attached to military establishments. Those too old or otherwise unable to work are not counted as unemployed, and those who are not seeking work are assumed to have withdrawn from the labor force.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said the lack of preparation exhibited by the Liberal government for winter unemployment is inexcusable.

"The November unemployment statistics again confirm that government inaction has placed the unemployment problem on a treadmill," he said in a statement.

"We've not got anywhere with environmental education ideas, for example. Although special education (occupational) has been a controversy, a positive response like setting up co-ordination with businessmen for job-training has not been allowed to come up."

"The board has mainly concerned itself with petty issues which the administration should be able to take care of, since that's what it's there for. The school board should be released to consider matters of policy," Mrs. Otterson said.

She said Campbell River residents had shown by their voting that they were divided over the John Young issue. It was up to the elected board to take into consideration both sides and get on with running the district, she said.

Talk Session Cancelled

PARIS (AP) — The negotiating session today between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho was cancelled this morning, but U.S. and North Vietnamese spokesmen said they would meet again Wednesday.

No explanation was given for cancellation of today's meeting.

In Vietnam, South Vietnamese troops repulsed an attack on one base north of Kontum in the central highlands Monday, but field reports indicated another outpost may have been overrun.

the weather

A deepening storm centre off Vancouver Island is causing light snow across southern areas of the province. This weather system will move to the Oregon coast late today. At the same time a massive dome of Arctic air in the Yukon will surge far down into B.C. and bring a return of mostly clear and very cold weather to all regions tonight and Wednesday.

Police Laud Hit-Run Assistance

Interest shown by the public has assisted in keeping to a minimum the number of unsolved hit-and-run accidents, Victoria police say.

The Times began publishing monthly lists of major unsolved hit-and-run accidents last October and since that time the number of solved cases has increased from 60 per cent to more than 70 per cent, police said.

Constable Fred Beard, of Victoria traffic division, said there are two cases in traffic court as a result of the past two months' response to the publications.

Beard said there has been little response to the actual articles but they have spurred a greater public interest in hit-and-run accidents and "people have been taking down licence numbers. This is particularly noticeable in parking lots."

Investigations into four hit-and-run accidents during November have turned up nothing and police have asked for assistance from any witnesses.

On Nov. 10 a 1972 Volkswagen, parked on Front Street north of Wilson, sustained damage to the right front, caused by a white vehicle.

On Nov. 13 at 9 p.m. an accident involving a 1963 Plymouth sedan, dark blue with B.C. licence AEK-578 occurred at Government and Johnson. The driver and passenger of the car abandoned it.

The car was seized by police and the owner is believed to live in the View Royal-Langford area and may be in possession of a yellow pickup truck.

A turquoise 1957 Chevrolet left the scene of a collision at Cook and McKenzie on Nov. 13 at 9:05 p.m. It was last seen heading north on Cook with slight damage to the front and traces of white paint.

Between 12:30 a.m. and 1:30 a.m. on Nov. 19 a yellow 1972 Volkswagen was damaged to the right side while parked in the Colony Motor Inn parking lot, 2852 Douglas. The offending vehicle left traces of red paint.

Anybody with information regarding any of these accidents is asked to contact Victoria police traffic division at 384-4111.

BABY BORN AT PUMPS

NEW WESTMINISTER (CP) — Lisa Marie Biollo entered the world Monday via the chilly hands of a backhoe operator in front of the gas pumps at a local service station.

The six-pound, six-ounce baby girl was born in sub-freezing weather on the front seat of a small imported car as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Biollo of Delta, were on their way to hospital. When they realized they weren't going to make it in time, Biollo pulled his car into the station.

"A fellow working at the back came and helped and the baby was born in no time at all," he said.

The man who helped was Don McBeth, 38, a former ambulacne driver.

"I was watching out the window and saw the wife having a couple of convulsions," McBeth said. He went to the car with Biollo and realized the baby was being born.

"He asked me if I knew anything about it," McBeth said. "I said I did and he just stepped aside.

When the baby was delivered Mrs. Biollo was concerned that the infant wasn't breathing.

"I took off my gloves and when I turned the baby on her side, she let out a howl," McBeth said. "I guess my cold hands brought her around."

"It was all over in about 20 minutes," said service station manager Wayne Feist. "The only one who looked to be in any panic was the husband."

Cocke Dental Pitch

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Dennis Cocke is seeking co-operation of dentists in integration of health services that will include some dental care of children and the aged in experimental community health clinics to be set up by the end of 1973.

He told a convention of the Vancouver and District Dental Society that he also wants emergency dental care at hospitals when dentists' offices are closed, and will try to get fluoridated drinks on the market to help prevent tooth decay.

In an interview later, Cocke said the community health care clinics will integrate a number of hospital services including dental care.

He said the clinics will be put into isolated areas so that all residents would use the clinic. This could include an ethnic community within an urban area.

Camosun Begins Planning For a Downtown Location

Camosun community college will start planning a downtown centre.

College council passed a motion Monday amended by Councillor Philip Ney, which approved a thrid phase of the college's Interurban Road Centre "concurrent with plans for a downtown centre."

Ney, arguing his amendment, said Camosun should not become an "ivory tower" with its core campus at the Interurban facility.

He said the college needed a foot in the city centre to retain its "community" role.

Ney and Councillor Walter Donald said such a centre should be adapted to arising needs. It could take the form of a renovated older building, some rented offices or even a storefront.

College principal Grant Fisher said he favored the scheme, although he outlined at length the extent to which college activities extended beyond formal campus situations.

He said there were 31 locations off campus where the college operated, and he named hospitals, company labs and business premises as in-training locations.

The future of Camosun's mainly academic campus at the Lansdowne building, formerly Victoria college, is in doubt, although the downtown centre, envisaged to be manned by only one expert councillor, would not be an alternative.

Meanwhile, council also approved provision of credit courses for Salt Spring Island residents through two part-time teachers to be hired by the college to work on the island. Proposed credit courses are Psychology and History. Courses may start early in the new year.

PEARSON CANCER FLARING AGAIN

OTTAWA (UPI) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson is suffering recurrence of a tumor which was removed in 1970 resulting in the loss of one eye, his office said Monday.

In July, 1970, Pearson, 75, underwent an operation to arrest the spread of cancer from the eye which was removed.

He had appeared in satisfactory health since the operation and had been lecturing and working on three volumes of his memoirs, the first of which was published last month.

Last Friday Pearson's wife, Maryon, said her husband "has been very ill and he is getting over it, we hope."

But a statement issued by his office Monday said:

"Mr. Pearson has had a recurrence of the trouble he had in the summer of 1970 and which resulted in the loss of an eye. He is being treated for this condition and hopes to be out and about soon."

Pearson has been confined to his Ottawa home.

BARRETT BACKS WILLIAMS

Premier Barrett Monday defended Resources Minister Bob Williams for his role in a real estate transaction in Vancouver for which the minister has been under recent attack.

Barrett said Williams "is being accused of being a free enterpriser," and added that Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer, who acted as Williams' lawyer in the business transaction "is being accused of being a lawyer."

"Those are pretty threatening accusations," Barrett said.

The deal Williams was involved in took place before the NDP government took office. Williams was an MLA at the time. He and partners bought six rental suites in Vancouver, refurbished them extensively and then sold them.

Williams says the units cost $77,000 to buy and he and the partners sold them again for $127,000. Expenses for renovations plus the purchase price cost him $117,749, Williams said, leaving him with a profit of only $10,052.

Barrett said Monday his government still plans to bring in a conflict-of-interest bill for MLAs and cabinet ministers but said he does not know what form the bill will take. It will appear within a session or two of the legislature, Barrett said.

A Clean Sweep for 3 Ontario Mayors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in Ontario's three largest cities had little difficulty Monday selecting mayors, but computer problems in Ottawa kept one of three winners in the dark about his exact victory total.

Incumbent mayors Vic Copps of Hamilton and Pierre Benoit of Ottawa were returned to office while newcomer David Crombie was swept into Toronto's top municipal office.

The choosing of the three mayors was the highlight of a hectic day of municipal elections across Ontario.

Copps, 53, received only a token challenge from one rival in winning his sixth term as Hamilton mayor.

A 36-year-old university lecturer, Crombie easily defeated fellow aldermen Tony O'Donohue and David Rotenberg as well as four other less influential candidates.

All seven were seeking to succeed retiring William Dennison, 67.

Despite the computer breakdown, voter apathy and bitter weather, Benoit was an obvious winner in Ottawa — possibly in a landslide.

Before the mechanical problems set in, Benoit held a 1,100-vote lead over the nearest of his three rivals.

Officials said the breakdown came because inputs to the computer jammed as all 840 polls attempted to get results in at one time. There are only 33 lines into the computer.

Voters in Metro Toronto put new men at the head of five of their six municipal governments and elected solid "reform" phalanx dedicated to blunting the priorities of construction development.

A strong trend toward youth materialized also in balloting as three under-40 mayors reached office. They were headed by Crombie, 36, a freshman alderman who leaped from the underdog position to become Toronto city's youngest mayor of the century.

In Metro's second largest municipality, North York, 39-year-old Mel Lastman, a discount store owner, took over the vacated mayoralty while lawyer Paul Cosgrove, 37, beat incumbent Robert White, 52, in third-largest Scarborough.

In the other boroughs, Dennis Flynn, 49, Toronto city information officer, won Etobicoke on his second try while Willis Blair, 49, lawyer and Conservative politician, won small East York following the retirement of Miss True Davidson, its perennial reeve and then mayor for 12 years.

The reform trend — synonymous with slowing down apartment and office building — ran strongest in Toronto city where 12 of the 23 returned council members are in that category, probably indicating that big high-rise developments and road construction projects will run second to preservation of the neighborhood and the quality of life.

Teeth for the Watchdog

The Auditor General of Canada has been described as a watchdog, but his function differs radically from that of the usual household guard. His job is not to watch for transgressions by strangers, but to discover and make public the errors, misjudgments, bungling and plain chicanery of the occupants of the house — the government of the day. Thus it is that the people of Canada have a special interest in the activities of Mr. Maxwell Henderson, the Auditor General, for his annual reports are the only means by which many of the government's financial faults may be learned by the public.

Canadians are well aware of some of the spectacular disclosures made by auditors general in the past. One of the most notorious uncovered by Mr. Henderson was the case of the HMCS Bonaventure refitting, a job which was estimated at $8 millions, and eventually cost $17 millions, whereupon the ship was sold as scrap for $875,000. There have been many other incidents of lesser importance, but nevertheless costly to the country, even if they only involve CBC hotel rooms rented and never used, contractors paid for work not done, or surplus supplies which mysteriously disappear.

Each year Mr. Henderson details a sorry list of such events. And almost without exception, each year, the government receives the report, it appears in the news — and that is the end of it.

Too few of the mistakes revealed by the Auditor General are corrected. Too many errors are repeated. Too many incapable public servants are apparently left to pursue their inefficient way at public expense. Over the whole picture looms a background belief that national expenditures are so high anyway that relatively small waste does not matter much. But economy must start somewhere. It could usefully start with the annual report of the Auditor General and a close implementation of his recommendations.

Far from this happening, the fact is that the Auditor General's department is hampered by lack of staff, which the government determinedly fails to rectify. The salaries of senior employees, the experts who provide the machinery of the department, were downgraded in 1969 by the treasury board, discouraging a number of key officers. The situation has reached a point described by Mr. Henderson as a "direct attempt to impair" the work of his office.

The matter of the Auditor General is now receiving attention by opposition members as well as some Liberal MPs and it may well become once again a debating topic in the coming session of Parliament. Mr. Henderson has given notice that because of his staff shortage — the legislation entitles him to 20 more persons than he had been able to obtain through the Public Service Commission — his report will be late this year, as it was last. The mid-January publication may not be ready until early March.

This is not good enough. At a time when governmental costs are soaring in every direction, the taxpayers should be assured that at least obvious waste and inefficiency will be corrected when it is pointed out. The minority government should be impressed with this concern. The present political situation in the Commons provides a good opportunity for pressure to ensure that the Auditor General's office will be given all the powers and the facilities which it requires. But that will only be effective if similar pressure is exerted to see that his reports are heeded.

"... I heard they're gonna make you look like a million bucks ... MY million bucks ..."

The Hordes Came Through the Gates

A number of analysts, weighing the results of Canada's last federal election, reached the conclusion that although the campaign of NDP's David Lewis was highly effective in influencing the voters, it developed a major flaw as far as his own party was concerned. It took votes from the Liberal government but, in very large measure, transferred them to the Conservatives. Hence the NDP, while increasing its total of seats, served the Tories as well as, or better than, it did itself.

The same analysts draw the conclusion that most Canadian voters, if dissatisfied with the Trudeau administration, would not shift far enough to the left to endorse the Socialists.

The situation adds further interest to developments in British Columbia and in New Zealand and Australia. In all three, the voters were not deterred by fears of "Socialist hordes at the gates". They swing left, to the NDP in this province, and put Labor in office in the two countries down-under.

In three Canadian provinces now the political winds of change have been toward the Left. The durability of these administrations (Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia) — as of those in New Zealand and Australia — will depend on their effectiveness in coping with the problems of the day. But those problems are the same for Socialist governments as for any other kind, and no Socialist regime in any country has yet demonstrated that Socialism has all the answers.

Perhaps the greatest disadvantage which the Socialists endure is the fact that in a world which is veering ever farther in the direction of cradle-to-grave security, the other parties have consistently stolen their thunder.

Only a Tree

Highways Department officials are to be commended for their decision to save a fine dogwood tree at the Sooke-Metchosin cutoff when widening work is carried out there. A little extra care can often preserve the scenery without seriously interfering with the main project.

Had a similar policy been followed in earlier years some of our highways today might have retained the beauty they lost to the engineers, notably on the stretch between Langford and Goldstream and in certain parts of the Saanich peninsula. As it is, we are the poorer for that form of progress which matches fragile beauty against the thrust of the bulldozer.

HAROLD GREER

An Old Political Story

TORONTO — There is a provision in the Criminal Code which prohibits — or tries to — the giving of money to a political party for corrupt purposes. It is section 110 (2) and it reads as follows:

"Every one commits an offence who, in order to obtain or retain a contract with the government, or as a term of any such contract, whether express or implied, directly or indirectly subscribes, gives, or agrees to subscribe or give, to any person any valuable consideration (a) for the purpose of promoting the election of a candidate or a class or party of candidates to the Parliament of Canada or a legislature ..."

The section is rarely invoked, partly because of the old-fashioned reference to obtaining or retaining a government contract. There are lots of favors a government can bestow on its financial supporters other than by contract.

Government Responsibility

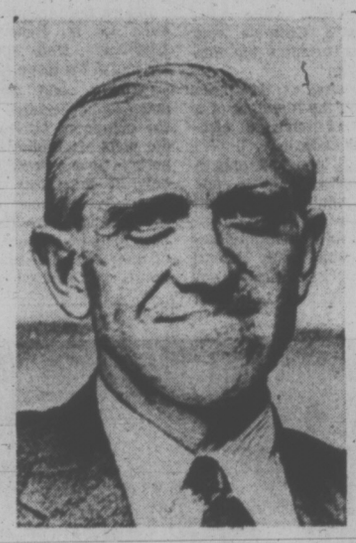
Another and more important reason, however, is that the enforcement of Section 110 (2) is itself the responsibility of government — specifically, under the BNA Act, the provincial governments. Thus, situations can arise where, in effect, a government which has accepted money in return for a government contract is put in the position of prosecuting the person or company who gave it the money.

Naturally, few prosecutions are launched. No police officer is going to swear out an information that he has reasonable and probable grounds to believe Section 110 (2) has been violated without first consulting the local Crown Attorney. No Crown Attorney is going to approve without first consulting his superiors, either the Attorney-General's Department or the Attorney-General himself. In practice there is a tacit understanding that the initiative in such delicate matters rests with the Attorney-General.

And no Attorney General is going to order a prosecution, or even initiate an investigation, under Section 110 (2) if he can possibly avoid it. If the allegation is that his own political party received corrupt money, he will do mental cartwheels, seize any argument and split any hair rather than do his job.

This is an old political story which can be documented many times over from the record. But for sheer obtuseness it would be hard to match the performance that Attorney-General Delton Bales has put on the record of the Ontario Legislature in what is coming to be known as the Fidinam affair.

About a month ago The Globe and Mail reported that Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd. gave a cheque, dated July 23, 1971, for $50,000 to William Kelly, treasurer of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party. Fidinam is a Swiss-controlled company which, through related companies, is building Upper Canada Place, a commercial tower complex at Yonge and Bloor in Toronto.



DALTON BALES
... no facts

Fidinam also has a complicated contract with the Workmen's Compensation Board, a government agency, whereby the WCB is buying part of the land involved, leasing it back to Fidinam, investing $15,000,000 as a first mortgage on the building, and renting much of the resulting office space as a prime tenant. This arrangement was approved in principle by the Ontario cabinet on June 29, 1971 and the ground leasing contract was signed Oct. 21, 1971.

The Globe and Mail further reported two Telex messages in which Fidinam's secretary-treasurer, Betty McDonald, replying to a query from the Swiss head office, explained the $50,000 cheque was a "political donation related to UCP-WCB."

None of the above is in dispute as statements of fact. However, both Miss McDonald and Fidinam president P. A. Saunderson have termed the Telex explanation a "stupid error" and insisted there was no quid pro quo between the $50,000 and the government contract.

Stupid error it may have been but a more clear-cut case for at least an investigation would be hard to imagine. Mr. Bales, however, did nothing and finally Albert Roy (L., Ottawa East), a former assistant Crown Attorney, asked him why, since there appeared to be a clear breach of Section 110 (2).

"Mr. Speaker," Mr. Bales replied, "there have been no facts brought to my attention that would indicate such a breach at all."

By then, it turned out, Mr. Bales had read about the matter in the newspapers, had listened to Premier Davis reject (without any investigation) any suggestion of wrong-doing in the Legislature, had even "looked at it myself," but still had not, somehow, been apprised officially. Now that the question had been raised, he said, he would have the matter looked into.

Wrong Section

Outside the Legislature, Mr. Bales told reporters that his personal investigation had consisted of examining Section 110 and concluding no formal investigation was necessary because the $50,000 had not been paid to a government official or employee.

When the press pointed out that subsection (1) of 110 deals only with payments to government officials and it is subsection (2), dealing with payments to political parties, that is at issue, Mr. Bales mumbled something about the two subsections being tied together (they aren't) and he could not discuss it further.

Mr. Roy, however, was able to invoke a rarely-used parliamentary rule to reopen the debate before the Legislature adjourned. The Attorney-General's replies, he said, indicated he was either naive and incompetent or afraid of the political consequences that would flow from a prosecution.

Never, Mr. Bales replied. "If for any reason we in this government were to find a situation we believe to be improper," he said, "then we want to act positively." But the government had to act "properly and firmly" and "that is what it is going to do."

JAMES RESTON

Predictable Unpredictability

NEW YORK—The one predictable thing about Richard Nixon is that he is unpredictable. The man loves a surprise. Who, for example, could have guessed that his first major decision after winning a spectacular "Middle America" election victory, would have been to appoint three Harvard men to his new second term Cabinet?

As Secretary of Defence, Elliot Lee Richardson, Harvard '41; Harvard Law '47; law clerk to Learned Hand and Justice Felix Frankfurter; Lt. Gov. of Massachusetts; assistant to that gentle progressive man, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, lecturer at the Harvard Law School; a Boston Brahmin, a sensible establishment man of peace, former Under Secretary of State and Secretary of HEW, but certainly no Middle American type: handsome, ambitious, almost arrogantly patrician.

To Preside Over Cuts

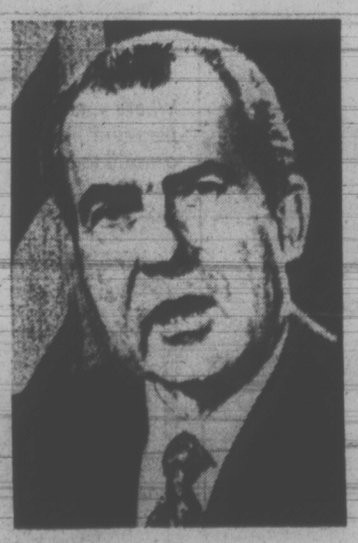
As Secretary of Health Education and Welfare, Casper Willard Weinberger, 1938 Harvard classmate and friend of Arthur Schlesinger, Magna Cum Laude, Harvard Law School, 1941, Phi Beta Kappa, finance director for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, member of Gen. MacArthur's intelligence staff, newspaper columnist in the San Francisco Bay area, director of the Office of Management and Budget in the White House: a handsome, sophisticated, moderately conservative Republican, who now has to preside over cutting back the Nixon HEW budget.

Roy Lawrence Ash, electronics manufacturer, president of Litton Industries, efficiency expert, Horatio Alger character out of California, who never went to undergraduate college but came out of Harvard Business School in Boston with highest honors in 1947.

Still, there is something very logical in all this illogic. It is the theme and contradiction of Nixon's life. He has made one of the great American political careers out of doing the unexpected.

After losing the Presidency in 1960 and the governorship of California in 1962, and announcing his retirement from politics, he made the greatest comeback since Lazarus. He lost the Presidency as an anti-Communist hawk, and won and retained it as a man of peace and accommodation with the Communists.

And in the last few days, he has been almost more generous to his critics than to his allies in the last election. He has not been defending his White House staff, but insisting that it is too big and has to be cut back.



RICHARD NIXON

He has not been arguing for his "winning team" of the last four years, but calling for a new team, for new changes, and for a new and more powerful Cabinet, which would be responsible to the Congress and the people.

For a time in his first term, he seemed to be turning the White House into a palace, with uniformed guards in music hall plumes, but now he is retreating from the majesty of the White House and the formality of his Camp David retreat high in the Maryland mountains.

The historians and psychiatrists of the future will probably be very interested in all this, but for the time being, his appraoch to his second term is reassuring. Whatever the past, he is now dealing with the future.

He is trying to deal with the lessons of history. Presidential second terms tend to get tired and soft: therefore they have to get new men, new ideas, new vigor; landslide victories tend to bury the victorious President, therefore he has to think anew and change the question.

History Versus Politics

Ever since it was clear that Nixon was going to be re-elected—which now seems a long time ago — both his critics and, what is more interesting, even many of his most intimate supporters, wondered whether he would be magnanimous or vindictive if he was re-elected overwhelmingly by his fellow-countrymen.

In his talk with the reporters at Camp David the other night, he was more generous, more composed and more serene than any of his contemporaries can ever remember. He seemed, almost for the first time, to be thinking of history instead of politics, and this could be a significant change.

For he has not been trusted in the past because he trusted no man, which was the tragedy of his predecessor, Lyndon Johnson; but in his little talk at Camp David, he seemed to be reaching out in a new spirit for a new accommodation at home, as he did with his adversaries in Moscow and Peking. And this could begin a new chapter in American politics, if his critics respond in an equally generous spirit.

Editorial Correspondence

Oak Bay's Holdings

I feel compelled to reply to Monica Oldham's letter which you published under the heading "And Nothing Left to Sell", as it indicates that confusion exists regarding Oak Bay's municipal land holdings and their role, both present and proposed.

First the recreation centre site, purchased by council for this purpose, lies between Bee Street and the Oak Bay Junior High school grounds and between Goldsmith Street and Bowker Creek. The commercial area referred to in Monica Oldham's letter lies between Bee Street and Foul Bay Road and is adjacent to the municipal land.

The area in the north end of Oak Bay she mentions as containing natural woods is in fact Henderson Park which it is council's intention to formally dedicate next year following a referendum on dedication as required by Statute. This park contains not only the woods, which it is intended to retain in their natural condition, but also two playing fields, a pavillion with tennis courts, and a children's play area.

Adjacent to Henderson Park and bounded also by the Uplands golf course and Cadboro Bay Road lies the triangular-haped riding academy site of 9.2 acres which was purchased by Council in 1965 as an investment. It is not needed for park purposes, as Henderson Park is about twice the size of Windsor or Carnarvon Parks yet serves the least densely populated part of the municipality. This is the land which council intends to sell to pay for the recreation centre buildings, being a skating rink and a swimming pool. The recently released Zech report on apartment development indicates a value for this site of $1.2 million for a medium-density apartment development and, after development, a net return to the taxpayer of 2.7 mills to hold down our taxes.

An alternative to accepting this capital sum and annual tax return is to maintain the riding academy, but this would mean not only enormous loss to the taxpayer, but also further major expenditure to virtually rebuild the worn-out buildings now being used. While I would like to see horse riders provided for, I believe, on balance, that the best public interest would be served by its sale.

I trust that this letter will help to clarify the position regarding Oak Bay's land holdings. — Douglas Watts, Alderman, Oak Bay.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of December 5, 1912:

OTTAWA — There is but one topic of interest in Ottawa today, the naval announcement to be made by Premier Borden when the House opens this afternoon. The interest is even greater than it was on the occasion of the explanation by Mr. Fielding of his reciprocity pact. Mr. Borden expects to be on his feet for about one hour.

The greatest curiosity exists as to the details of the bill, but the Premier has closely guarded the secret which he proposes to reveal to the House this afternoon.

Blue Collar or White, They've All Got the Blues

He is a middle-aged man drawing a middle-income salary from his factory job. His job is dull and dreary and there isn't much chance to move up or out. Life is tedious, he detests his work and he puts into it just enough effort to get by.

Dissatisifed with his lot, he is also politically angry. He believes that others above and below him in status get all the breaks: the rich have tax advantages, the poor have welfare. So he is tempted by extremists of the right or left.

The stereotype is that of the man with "blue collar blues," an affliction supposedly peculiar to the man on the assembly line.

It isn't true, according to recent research at the University of Michigan. The middle-aged factory worker is no more afflicted with the "blues" than, for example, the white-collar employee who makes more money.

Dissatisfaction with jobs is common in all strata of American life and the blue-collar, middle-aged worker isn't any more dissatisfied than people above or below him. He feels stifled at his work, but no more so than people in other broad economic groups.

He isn't so much disturbed by the low pay or discomforts of his job, but by the lack of personal initiative and fulfilment it provides. Even that bothers him no more than other Americans of higher or lower status.

Furthermore, his political views are hardly unique. Only on a few specific issues involving race and rioting, does his group differ markedly from other groups.

"It is grossly in error to remain fixed on the idea that the blues syndrome is the exclusive property of the . . . hardhat,'' say the researchers.

"He shares it about equally with his neighbors of disparate personal backgrounds, occupations and incomes."

The study of what they call the "middlemass" American workers was performed by Stanley E. Seashore and J. Thad Barnowe of the University of Michigan's Institue for Social Reserach.

By WILLIAM CHAPMAN
The Washington Post

It is based on interviews with 1,533 employed adults. The authors used several statistical techniques in an effort to determine whether the cluster of attitudes popularly known as "blue collar blues" could be attributed to the particular social class of workers.

They couldn't. ". . . vulnerability to the 'blues' is endemic in the whole of the work-force and rests only slightly upon demographic variables of the kind invoked by the popular stereotype of the middle-mass worker," they concluded.

They found that there was little relationship between the "blues and the amount of money earned. More often, the afflicted complained of less tangible factors, such as inability to use personal skills or having to put up with petty-minded supervisors.

"High-income workers may have the blues despite their income," the authors wrote. "Low-income workers may be spared the syndrome despite their low income."

Having to work very hard or very fast at their jobs, surprisingly, seemed to diminish rather than increase the feelings associated with blue collar blues.

The researchers said that, "The message is clear: the blue collar blues are prominently associated with those working conditons that discourage good work performance, impede personal growth, fail to stimulate hard and fast work, and that strifle autonomy and creativity."

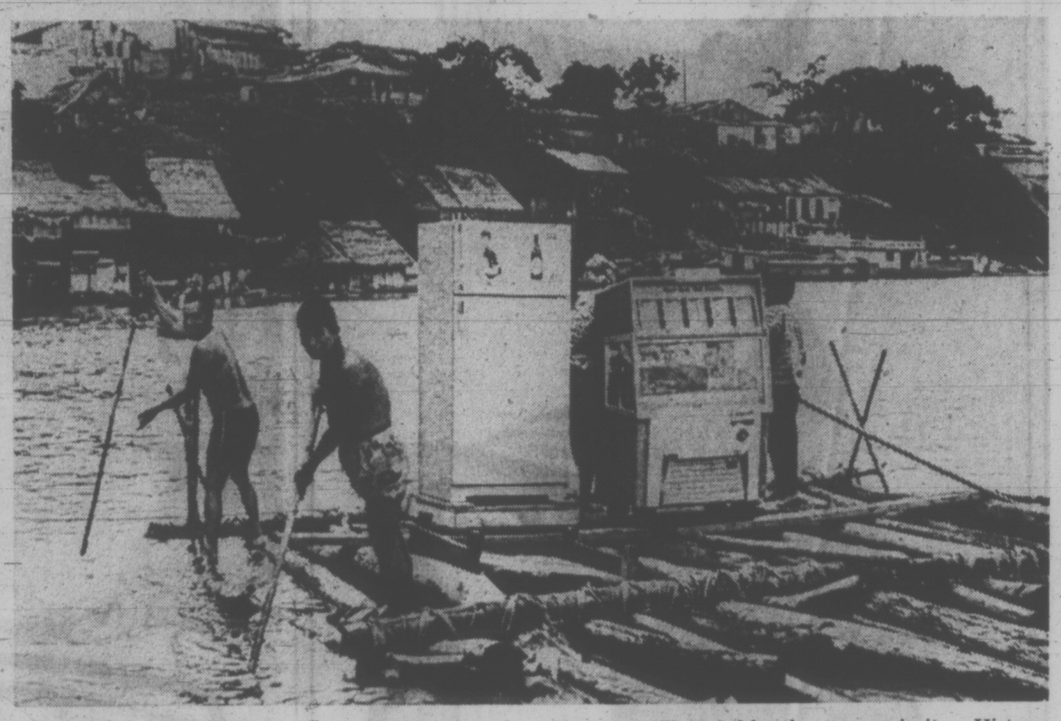
In their political and social views, the men of "middlemass" tended to differ little from their contemporaries in higher or lower income brackets.

In only one or two respects were their attitudes markedly different. They were, for example, inclined to be more "racially ethnocentric" — finding it more difficult, for example, to make friends with blacks of similar incomes than with whies.

More than other groups, they were inclined to discourage contacts between members of different races. Yet they were less inclined than those of higher income to say that whites have a right to keep negroes out of their neighborhoods.

"Middlemass" men took a distinctly darker view of the urban riots than those richer or poorer than themselves. More than half of them—56 per cent—believed that the urban disturbances of 1968 were planned in advance. Only 43 per cent of those of higher incomes believed that and only 35 per cent of those with lower incomes concurred.

Rich Rob The Weak



By ARNOLD TOYNBEE
The London Observer

THE RICH MINORITY of the world are unhappy with their abundance of material possessions, but they are still envied by the poor majority. Historian Toynbee says a change is coming.

Mankind is now waging what is, in effect, a third world war.

The belligerents are, as usual, trying to justify in themselves their inhuman treatment of their fellow human beings by hoisting ideological banners. The professed ideologies of opposing sides are intentionally incompatible with each other, but they are shams. There is no difference between the combatants' objectives and no difference, either, in their behavior.

The common objective is a continuous increase in material wealth; the common behavior is a ruthless use of power, whether individual or collective, to victimize the weaker members of society and to push them to the wall.

The weak include the great majority. In the rich minority of countries, they include all who are old, unemployed, or low-paid. In the economically backward majority of countries, they include everyone except a handful of the scandalously wealthy.

Today, the rich minority is unhappy, yet is envied by those members of the poor majority who have been fascinated by the rich minority's aim in life. These are paradoxes. They signal the end of an epoch and portend a revolutionary change of mechanized man's aim and conduct.

Seers Rejected

At the same time, these paradoxes are not surprising. They are the consequence of the rejection of the precepts of mankind's greatest seers, from the Buddha to St. Francis of Assisi. These precepts are unanimous.

The seers have declared that the maximization of material wealth is not a right, and is therefore not a satisfying objective for human beings. This is of course, a hard saying. Ordinary men have never lived up to the seer's ideals, but these ideals were not repudiated consciously and deliberately until the outbreak of the industrial revolution in Britain.

Within two centuries of that 18th-century turning point in history, we find ourselves suffering the consequences of that rejection of the ethical wisdom of past ages.

Out present paroxysm of ruthless strife has been the penalty for discarding traditional human restraints on the greed that is innate in human beings as well as in all other living creatures.

In the mechanized minority of mankind, the large increase in material productivity that mechanization has brought with it, has now been overtaken and surpassed by a still greater increase of appetite. We are attempting to consume more than we produce, and, since that is impossible, the result is inflation.

So long as excessive demands continue, inflation is bound to continue, and inflation is a grievous social and moral evil. The price of inflation is chronic strife and escalating injustice. In each successive round of the strife, the strong misuse their strength to rob the weak. This progressive brigandage is morally odious.

In Britain, inflation was impossible to curb by mutually agreed voluntary restraint on appetites. Negotiations failed, and the British people today face a compulsory curb on inflation by statute.

Thus the price for the restraint of greed is a drastic restriction of private economic enterprise. The "freeze" hits landlords, investors, speculators, as well as trade unionists.

Negotiations could not be a cure, for the cause of the malady is deep-seated. The cause of it is spiritual. We are suffering from having sold our souls to the pursuit of an objective that is both spiritually wrong and practically unattainable. We have to reconsider our objective and to change it. Unless and until we do this, we shall not have peace either among ourselves or within each of us.

If we are to win peace, we have to ask ourselves some searching questions to which the mechanized minority of mankind has closed its mind since its repudiation of traditional ideals at the outbreak of the industrial revolution.

Is the maximization of material wealth worth the spiritual price that we have been paying for it? The mechanized work by which we earn our now evaporating money wages is repugnant to us, whether it is "blue-collar" work in an assembly line or "white-collar" work in a computerized office. The trade unionist is enslaved to two masters, his employer and his union that keeps his employer at bay. One cannot be a combatant without being regimented. In the modern world, who is free?

Numbers Decline

Perhaps the farmer, the self-employed worker in a "liberal" profession, and the owner-occupier of a house. But their numbers are rapidly shrinking.

Among the indigenous minority of the population of the United States, there is one surviving people, the Pueblo Indians whose way of life is the antithesis of modern mechanized man's. The Pueblo people, like the rest of us, are concerned to secure their material subsistence, but they are not concerned to maximize either their collective or their individual wealth.

Their chief interest in life is not material enrichment; it is the corporate worship of the gods who, in their belief, are the givers of the harvests that provide them with their daily bread. The Pueblo people's way of life is the way in which the ancestors of present-day non-indigenous Americans once lived.

The non-indigenous Americans, Europeans, Russians and Japanese ought now to ask themselves which of these two ways of life is the happier and the better way: The Pueblo people's way, or modern mechanized man's?

A reversion to the Pueblo way may look impracticable on a short view, but we ought to take the long view. Mankind's habitat is limited forever to the thin film of earth, air, and water that coats the surface of our native planet. If other potential "biospheres" exist on planets of other suns in our own galaxy or farther afield, these hypothetical "new worlds" are out of reach for us.

Mankind's expectation of life within our biosphere is perhaps as much as 2 billion more years, and our biosphere's resources are limited. This biosphere contains no more new worlds for Europeans to conquer at the expense of the luckless native inhabitants.

If mankind is to secure its survival on earth for as long as the earth's surface is going to remain habitable, we shall have to reduce our material life to a Pueblo-like stability. We shall have to renounce our present objective of maximizing material wealth.

At present, every politician in every mechanized country is having to promise to each of his consituteunts an annual increase of material affluence. As fast as these promises are made, they are being voided by inflation. Yet the politicians have to go on making them. The penalty for telling the truth would be political suicide.

But politics are not going to be able to exorcise realities. Cast your mind back over the history of the man-like creatures during the last two million years; cast it forward over the next 2 billion years; and then set back the date of the beginning of "homosapien's" increase in material affluence from the outbreak of the modern industrial revolution in the 18th century of the Christian era to the outbreak of the upper Palaeolithic industrial revolution circa 30,000 B.C.

Not Bread Alone

You will perceive that the period of economic growth has been a brief exceptional interlude between two aeons of economic immobility.

It follows from this that economics is an unpromising field for the investment of our treasure. The Pueblo people has invested more providently, as the Buddha and St. Francis would say. Man does not live by bread alone. The simpletons and the seers are surely going to have the last word.

We All Have Own Idea Of What Makes Equality

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

When new public concerns roil the surface of politics, we often wait for someone with a longer view of society to identify the issue underneath. In the case of the new American concerns about busing, quotas and the like, that function has now been brilliantly performed by Daniel Bell, the Harvard sociologist.

His analysis, taken from a forthcoming book on post-industrial society, is in the current number of the quarterly that Prof. Bell co-edits, The Public Interest. He argues that what really divides opinion in America, and will increasingly do so there and elsewhere, is a difference of view about equality.

The longstanding liberal belief has been in equality of opportunity. The object has been to free the individual from discriminations of race or class, so that he can rise in society on his own merits.

The new demand is for equality of result. Thus it is not enough that society should seek to give members of different groups an equal chance at a good education; it must try to minimize differences among graduates by reducing life's rewards for high achievement and competitive success. Not only should unfair obstacles to good jobs be removed, but groups should be assured by quotas their share of income, status and power.

Bell demonstrates the dangerous implications of the new equality. It takes a bloc view of life, he rightly says, rather than an individual one. It would require "representation" of groups in all aspects of society: a proportionate number of blacks and Chicanos and women on university faculties, for example.

The irony of that approach is that it reverses the historic Western movement toward respect for the individual. We have objected, Bell says, when a person was "judged and excluded because he was a member of a particular group" — a Jew or a black, say. Now the argument is that one ought to have a particular status because one is a member of a group.

But everyone belongs to more than one group in society. Which is to count in determining status — one's color? Sex? Religion? Age? Ethnic background? How can democracy work in such fractionated confusion? Are we really to have a "representative" Supreme Court?

The ultimate risk seen by Bell is a leveling down of excellence. If it is unfair to select only some high school graduates for colleges, then we have open admissions and let all in. But is it not equally unfair, under the new egalitarianism, to have unrepresentative faculties? And why should one university be more elite than another? Shouldn't a national system distribute teachers and students equally among all?

As the logic of the new equality is pressed to the extreme, its danger appears. If merit and hard work are to be subordinated as the basis for advancement in universities or business or other institutions, the resulting society is likely to be less productive and less cultivated. So Bell argues, concluding:

"A society that does not have its best men at the head of its leading institutions is a sociological and moral absurdity."

Reducing Bell's elegant essay to these few paragraphs may make him sound harder than he is. He is highly sensitive to social injustice. But the way to ease it, he argues, is not to extinguish competition but to prevent those who make it to the top from seizing disparate material and social advantages.

He is optimistic about that. Differences of wealth, he predicts, "can — and will — be mitigated by a social minimum." He ends by saying: "A well-tempered meritocracy can be a society not of equals, but of the just."

It is an essay of powerful clarity. But I find that I disagree with some major premises.

The demand for the new equality may not in fact be the "central value problem" of our time, as Bell posits. It may be a transitional phase, resulting from the sudden awareness by some groups of the immense historic roadblocks to their advancement on merit. If he looks around, Bell might even find some evidence that it is harder for women than for men to advance on the Harvard faculty. The pressure for quotas will hopefully ease as discrimination does.

Nor is American society as much of a meritocracy today as Bell seems to assume, at least in the financial sphere. The tax laws favor the rich, and changing them against entrenched privilege is enormously difficult.

Finally, and most important, Bell's optimism about providing a "social minimum" seems to me wildly misplaced. Has he any idea of the public's hatred of welfare? The working and middle classes seem to be turning their economic resentments against the lower minority — the poor, the broken families, the inadequate. I think the central problem is still to find the social and political path to a "well-tempered meritocracy."

The Gold Medal that Canada Won this Summer.

This summer Canada won a gold medal.

Not at Munich, but Geneva, at the annual judging of Monde Selection, the "Olympics-of-food-and-drink." When it comes to judging whisky, Monde Selection is the toughest competition in the world.

Schenley's OFC 8-year Old won the gold medal for Canadian Whisky.

The highest award for taste and quality. The world renowned standard of excellence.

OFC is the only premium certified 8-year Old, AND the only Canadian whisky to be awarded the gold medal by Monde Selection since 1968.

All things have a "prime-of-life," a peak of quality.

OFC 8-year Old is called the "Prime Canadian" because Schenley has found 8 years of aging to be the prime years for premium Canadian whisky.

Monde Selection agrees.

A Funny Time in the Kitchen

By HENRY MORGAN
The Toronto Star

It was on television the other night. Twenty-eight young ladies, most of whom had long, dark brown hair and pretty smiles, walked around on a stage in front of nobody knows exactly whom in order that five "judges" could choose the prettiest, or the most talented, or the one with the best brain.

Or none of the above.

It had been an exciting week for the girls. This was announced in a grave, assured voice by the assistant mortician who had been hired to speed the proceedings along.

"Very exciting," agreed the beautiful but passionless young lady who assisted the assistant. She was far more attractive than any of the contestants but somebody had taken the heart out of her.

The undertaker announced that the girls would now walk about in evening gowns, designed, for the most part, by their mothers. It is almost impossible for a healthy 18-year-old with a nice figure to look dowdy, but these girls had help.

(Later on they were to wear "swimsuits," fairly accurate copies of what was haute couture, Atlantic City, 1928.)

The time came for the contestants to demonstrate their talents, showbiz-wise.

Listen, they're all nice kids and there's no point in tearing them down. They recited or danced or sang, each according to her ability, each, by a remarkable circumstance, in a field differing from that of the others. Fortune was smiling on the producers of the show. Well, somebody was smiling. How lucky can you get, to have the semi-finalists all with different specialties?

It came time for the undertaker to ask each girl a question, the answer to which, he intoned, would demonstrate her poise, her intellect, her ability to think on her feet, and her general qualifications to be the next prime minister.

"I understand," he said to one little girl, "that you had a funny experience in the kitchen."

"Yes," she twinkled, "I washed the dishes and then put them in the refrigerator."

"Thank you," he said, "that was beautifully told."

His own poise wasn't shaken a bit. He was secure. There were other bodies to be taken care of.

At last the excitement grew unbearable.

"The excitement is growing unbearable," read the undertaker-man from his scratch pad.

At last, a young lady was chosen to wear a chinchilla coat for the coming year.

Where they're sending her, she'll need it.

Herring Quota Stays

VANCOUVER (CP) — Representatives of British Columbia fishermen and fish packing companies met federal Environment Minister Jack Davis Monday in a vain attempt to persuade him to increase the quota on herring.

The minister has set a yearly quota of 50,000 tons. Industry spokesmen tried to persuade him to double this, or at least increase the quota to 75,000.

Davis said he refused to budge from the original 50,000-ton quota. But he says he offered to increase the catch on the basis of one more ton of herring for every ton of dogfish taken.

Davis said the industry declined the ofer on grounds there is no market for dogfish.

b.c. briefs

Not Consulted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mike Harcourt, a Vancouver aldermanic candidate, said Monday a jumbo jet runway is planned for Vancouver International Airport on Sea Island within one mile of residential property and the city was not consulted. Harcourt, running for The Electors Action Movement (TEAM) said a major study should be undertaken to determine if the federal government plan is acceptable to Vancouver.

Schools Approved

QUESNEL (CP) — Ratepayers in Quesnel school district have approved a referendum for $326,000 for school construction. The ratepayers also elected Siegfried Fobe as district school trustee, defeating incumbent Jack Fraser.

MP Not Guilty

VANCOUVER (CP) — C. P. (Paddy) Neale, New Democratic Party MP for Vancouver East, was found not guilty Monday on a charge of impaired driving laid against him in August.

Provincial Court Judge R. W. Greig reserved decision on a second charge or refusing to undergo a breath analysis test arising from the same incident. Neale was charged after being stopped by an RCMP patrol car in suburban Richmond municipality.

Second Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — The second fire in less than a week was extinguished Monday in a Shaughnessy hospital room holding three Doukhobor women serving prison sentences for arson and parole violations.

A mattress, the only flammable item remaining in the room, was set afire, but a hospital spokesman said it was of a type that only smouldered when a match or lighter was held against it.

The women, Polly Chernoff, Mary Astafooroff and Vera Posnikoff, had been in Kingston Penitentiary in Ontario and were later transferred to Shaughnessy.

Mediator Named

VANCOUVER (UPI) — B.C. Appeal Court Justice Nathan Nemetz, has been named by the federal government to mediate the prolonged B.C. longshoremen's contract dispute.

Protect Area

VERNON (CP) — Coldstream Alderman John Costy said Monday the municipality has been assured by the provincial government that there will be no unsatisfactory subdivision of some 2,000 acres of land on an area ranch. Marathon Realty had indicated earlier it was interested in a possible real estate development in the area.

Search Under Way

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Searchers were looking Monday for two men aboard the 46-foot tug Cedar Champ, overdue on a 180-mile trip from Hodson's Hope to Mackenzie on Williston Lake. Winds gusting as high as 40 miles an hour hit the area during the weekend and it is thought the men may have sought shelter somewhere along the lakeshore. The men left early Thursday and were due in Mackenzie Friday night.

103 Drinkers Nabbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police roadblocks in the city came up with 103 drinking drivers on the weekend. Police said 22 persons were charged with impaired driving or drinking with a blood-alcohol content of more than .08. The other 81 persons received 24-hour roadside suspensions.

OAK BAY BIDS FOR GREENBELT

The Capital District Improvement Commission will be asked by Oak Bay to consider providing funds to buy properties on the Willows Beach Esplanade to ensure a "greenbelt" linking Willows and Uplands Parks.

The matter was discussed by Oak Bay council Monday night after consideration of a letter by J. L. LeHuquet, 2455 Beach, written to Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall.

In his letter to Hall, LeHuquet said:

"The beauty of our coastal water fronts, on salt water or fresh, must never become pawns of those who would so quickly move in and destroy our heritage under the theory that growth is good."

Suggesting that the Esplanade could be widened with parking bays and proper landscaping, LeHuquet noted that the 1967 Oak Bay Plan stated:

"In some areas it will be necessary to have long-term plans to buy waterfront property."

LeHuquet said seven out of 10 people using Willows Beach come from areas other than Oak Bay.

Mayor Frances Elford said she would bring the matter up at the next CIDC meeting but explained that CIDC funds have been earmarked for Victoria Inner Harbor projects.

"There is always a possibility that there will be an increase in the allocation," she said.

Council was due to adopt a bylaw Monday night that would tighten requirements for the areas from Willows to Uplands and Beach to Estevan.

The area, known officially as Zone B, has been zoned for frame apartments since 1927. The new bylaw will require concrete construction, underground parking and height restrictions of 30 feet.

The bylaw was tabled Monday so that another could be prepared. The new bylaw will relax front and rear setback restrictions by five feet. The shelved bylaw called for 30 feet for two-storey buildings and 35 feet for three-storey apartments.

The new bylaw will be read at the Dec. 18 meeting.

SPEAKER at the Dec. 9 and 10 meeting of the Victoria and Islands branch of the Canadian Authors Association in the Empress Hotel, will be national president, Cmdr. C. H. Little of Ottawa. Little, director of Naval Intelligence during the Second World War, is the author of several books.

Shopping Centre Plan Vetoed

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford and Ald. Douglas Watts were defeated Monday night when they fought for approval of a new shopping complex on Foul Bay Road opposite the liquor store.

In spite of their opposition and a lengthy presentation by a representative of the owners of the property, the rest of council voted in favor of a bylaw that will rezone the property down to medium-density apartments.

Arnold Birks of West Vancouver represented Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd. at the public hearing.

He said the complex of roughly 32,000 square feet would consist primarily of a Super Valu supermarket and another store.

Questioned by aldermen, he conceded that it would be an "automobile-orientated" complex and that, like any commercial project of that nature, to generate traffic meant business success.

Mayor Elford said it was "completely uneconomic" and it would "sterilize the area" if it was zoned for apartments. She described the new bylaw, which allows five-storey apartments with a maximum height of 45 feet and 100 per cent underground parking, as a "retrograde step."

She drew fire from Ald. Douglas McLelland when she disagreed that too much traffic would be generated by another shopping complex in the area and suggested that not enough was known about the traffic patterns.

McLelland retorted that, if that was the case, "it (the commercial zoning) should never have been passed in the first place."

The mayor and Watts were on council in 1969, when under former mayor Fred Hawes, the shopping complex zoning passed.

Watts, contending that apartment zoning in the area was unrealistic, urged council again and again to sit down with Kelly Douglas representatives and discuss the matter further.

Ald. John Goult insisted that another shopping complex on Foul Bay "would be a disaster." He said that another bylaw passed Monday night, that designated an area running through to Cadboro Bay from Bee a development area (including the Kelly Douglas property) still allowed the company to negotiate a development with them.

Ald. Brian Smith, stating that he didn't want to see another sea of blacktop on Foul Bay, added, "I can see rows of buggies pushing liquor from the liquor store."

He said council would be remiss if it allowed a shopping centre.

McLelland said, "I see only one central question — is a shopping centre in this area a good thing in Oak Bay. We must prevent the affliction — not put a band-aid on it!"

Civic Campaign In Esquimalt Moving Slowly

Lack of major issues in Esquimalt and no mayoralty contest is resulting in a quiet election campaign, devoid of public meetings.

Five candidates, two of them incumbents, are standing for three seats on council in the Dec. 9 election.

Veteran council member, Alud. Ed. De Costa, 54, of 774 Hutchinson, has been an alderman for 14 years.

A native son and engine fitter in HMC Dockyard, De Costa says:

"Progressive development is most important to citizens of the area."

De Costa has served as acting mayor and chairman of all committees.

Leslie Fuller, 54, of 1162 Hadfield, also works in the yard as the manager of a section in the engineering department.

A veteran organizer, he has lived in the municipality for 26 years and is chairman of Esquimalt's Board of Variance.

Fuller says that each resident should be willing to serve the community to what degree he is able and says he's standing for office because he considers he can do a "rational job."

Conrad Lundgren, 29, of 625 Admirals, is a machinist in the dockyard.

He says: "I would like to see no highrise development in Esquimalt, the waterfront kept clear of multiple dwellings and severe restrictions placed on multiple-dwelling building."

He also would like to make the industrial area "less of an eyesore.'

Lundgren says, although multiple-storey box apartments bring revenue into the municipality they also bring high density that puts a strain on community services, resulting in higher expenditures.

'Orderly Progress' Platform

Jim McEvay, 50, of 401 Treebank, is owner-manager of Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd.

McEvay says, "I am for orderly progress in Esquimalt with good value for the tax dollar."

He calls for better communication between council and the public on zoning matters, adding, "Only good quality medium-density apartments should be permitted and only in areas presently zoned for this purpose."

McEvay asserts the municipality must continue to upgrade services and provide adequate recreation facilities for all ages.

Incumbent Ald. Terry Prentice, 38, of 1297 Rockcrest, has served two years on council.

An engineer with the Public Utilities Commission, Prentice is chairman of the traffic and planning, zoning and housing committees. He is also a member of the recreation and sports centre commissions.

Stating that two years ago he emphasized the need for long-range planning and proper development, Prentice reports:

"Reports have since been made, or are in preparation, on sanitary and storm drain systems, multiple-family dwelling areas, Esquimalt Road beautification and on traffic flows.

"These reports are forming the basis of sound policy decisions by council."

Games Studied

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta has decided to "exercise caution" in becoming involved in the 1978 Commonwealth Games.

The board of governors concluded at a meeting that the university "is the only facility that has the resources and experience to do the job" but expressed concern about giving the Commonwealth Games Foundation "a blank cheque."

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

TO STOP or not to stop may be the question facing a conscientious driver confronted with contradictory traffic signs on the corner of Topaz and Blanshard. He's not allowed to stop but what if pedestrian is in the crosswalk? Let's hope most drivers aren't as finicky as Times photographer John McKay who snapped the picture on a quiet Sunday afternoon.

Issues Few in Saanich

Nine candidates are chasing four aldermanic openings on Saanich council next month, despite a lack of hard issues thus far in the campaign.

The eight men and a woman include three incumbents and a former alderman, most of whom in prepared statements assert a desire to foster orderly development of the community.

Most recognize discussion recently by both council and public on pressure for and priority to be assigned the development of new skating rink facilities, and some five recreation top spot on their list of local concerns.

The arena question comes closest to being a campaign issue in this election since it was that which split the council on a vote seeking to place a construction borrowing referendum before ratepayers.

The mayor and aldermen voted 5-4 to have the question put to a referendum at the earliest opportunity, which will be sometime following the election, possibly in the spring of 1973.

Meanwhile, council has consented, without obligation, to examine a proposal for privately-owned arena facilities for which a feasibility study is under way by a Burnaby firm.

For Gordon Head residents the proposed designation of land north of McKenzie as a special development plan with specified areas for single family, low and medium density housing and a commercial core, appears to be warming up as a local issue. Many property owners oppose commercial and multiple density zones in Gordon Head.

Candidate statements follow:

Joseph S. T. Bourque, 37, of 3636 Revelstoke Place Investment manager with 17 years' experience in banking. Feels the real concerns of residents include spending priorities and whether "value items" such as roads, sidewalks and street lighting should take precedence over recreation and community centres.

He opposes spot zoning outside an over-all planning framework; questions current methods of refuse disposal and urges maximum tax value.

Bourque favors further implementation of Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co. efficiency recommndations for the municipal administration.

Gregory Cook, 56, of 1091 Laburnum. High school teacher, Saanich alderman 1959-65. Cites lack of basic council policy and failure of aldermen to consider broad situations in reaching decisions.

He favors multiple use of school facilities as a means of curbing waste of tax-generated finances; permitting the municipal staff to achieve greater efficiencies, and making property assessment a regional board responsibility.

Cook favors examination of the entrepreneurial approach to providing and operating recreation facilities, non-political municipal planning left to professional planners, road development on a regional basis and better planning of multiple density housing.

He believes in the dedication of parkland to ensure its preservation and opposes the re-plotting of subdivisions without property owner approval. Council, he feels, should not be in the land-assembly business for other than strictly municipal purposes.

Nora Grace Lindsay, 54, of 5222 Santa Clara. Real estate saleswoman with four years' experience (two as chairman) on School District 63 board of trustees, 1964-68.

She wants an immediate system of co-ordinating municipal departments and intermunicipal bodies for matters of zoning, building permits, works and sanitation projects.

Blanshard Street extension to connect north-south traffic with the highways and McKenzie Avenue extension to flow traffic west should take place immediately, and council should act quickly to extend the sewer system to Royal Oak, eliminating a bulk hauling situation and relieving school problems.

The candidate urges a province-wide protest to the system of collecting school taxes by municipalities and of councils rubberstamping school budgets. She suggests a finance committee member of each council in a local school district have some authority at school budget-setting discussions, particularly where teacher salaries are concerned.

John L. McDonald, 36, of 3674 Doncaster. Bakery president-general manager, member of business-oriented organizations and interested in amateur sports.

He cites establishment of his business in Victoria, and later in Saanich, as qualifications for alderman. He seeks the opportunity to apply his business experience to the decision-making process for the people of Saanich in such matters as taxation, recreation and general municipal management.

Alan J. H. Newberry, 35, of 1900 Mayfair. An alderman for eight years, he has served as chairman of municipal committees, including finance, planning, parks and outdoor recreation and has chaired Greater Victoria Library Board and B.C. Library Association trustees. He is a Capital Regional District alternate director.

A second ice surface is first in his view of municipal priorities, followed by a new five-year recreation plan for adding new facilities, a branch library in Gordon Head, expansion of alienated youth programs in Burnside and Cordova Bay, further beach access development, a community plan to involve east Saanich, park and recreation programs north of Royal Oak and close watch on pbllution.

Council, Newberry believes, should provide necessary community services, nurture tax dollars and limit administrative strangulation.

Leslie Passmore, 74, of 2873 Austin. Retired, serving his 31st year on council, chairman of indoor recreation and special events, the only alderman belonging to both council committee groups.

An alternate director of the Capital Regional District Board, Passmore is municipal representative on six outside bodies.

First priority he gives to completion of the Saanich sewer enterprise program to remove septic tanks and make more land available for subdivision, thus checking inflated land prices. He believes in compromise in considering service requirements in light of the municipal burden of school tax and social service costs.

His personal interests are with young people, particularly relating to recreation facilities, which despite the cost, make youth into better citizens, he believes.

Leslie Peake, 42, of 2610 Arbutus. Assistant professor in physical education at University of Victoria, with special interest in parks and recreation. Has served as adviser and leader in community recreation, and as teacher, adviser and co-ordinator in school districts.

He believes there should be no increase in property taxes until the education tax is removed from local responsibility; an ice rink has some priority (alternatives other than those publicly discussed are available); a master regional plan incorporating parks, open space, hiking trails, housing development and industrial sites; stricter control on building programs, an end to hilltop development, more sidewalks and more council representation for salaried and wage-earning electorate.

Vaughn L. Thompson, 47, of 4961 Georgia park, real estate salesman, member of Saanich Advisory Planning Commission with extensive business experience, mostly in Alberta.

He campaigns for an overall municipal development plan, eliminating spot zoning and development; more low-cost housing projects and municipal participation in land assembly for housing; courtesy and co-operation with small business and secondary industry wishing to locate in Saanich.

There should be an independent feasibility study on total amalgamation of Saanich, Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt; support for mobile home court development, better bus service, fire-resistant apartments and park and recreation facilities for all age groups.

Francis Edward Waring, 59, of 3761 Waring. Wholesale supply manager serving fourth year on council, is chairman of planning, commercial-service land use, joint school planning and health committees and member of Metro Health board, Jubilee Hospital board, Advisory Planning Commission and other municipal committees.

He supports removal of education and welfare costs from residential land; would continue the road, sidewalk and drainage program and to work for orderly development to protect environment and meet community housing needs, and to provide sports and recreation facilities.

Navy Ships Coming Home

The Esquimalt-based HMCS Provider, HMCS Gatineau and HMCS Qu'Appelle have left New Zealand bound for home.

A naval spokesman said today the three ships will steam non-stop at an average speed of 17 knots.

They are due to arrive in Esquimalt at 10 a.m., Dec. 18.

Peninsula School Board Election A Candidate Short—Technicality

Four candidates are seeking election to two vacancies on Saanich District 63 School Board and a third vacancy is without a candidate because of incorrectly-filed nomination papers.

Donald Graffon, 4923 Townsend, filed for school trustee representing Saanich municipality but, because of a technicality, his papers were rejected by the returning officer.

In Central Saanich, trustee Gordon Ewan was re-elected by acclamation.

In Sidney, Norma Sealey, 9366 Lochside and Bernard Ethier, 2245 James White Blvd., are running for the post of trustee.

Mrs. Sealey who has been a Sidney alderman, is now concerned that taxpayers get the best value for their money in the face of rising educational costs. One way to get extra mileage, suggests this candidate, is to encourage more volunteer help within the community.

The ultimate goal, says Mrs. Sealey, is implementation of the community school use concept.

Ethier is concerned about teacher salary negotiations and suggests wages should be settled on an individual basis with three or five-year contracts. Sidney is losing out in its present representation on school board, continues Ethier, having only one trustee in contrast to Central Saanich municipality which has two representatives.

Closer relations between council and school board would promote better understanding of the financial situation, says this candidate.

Col. Henry J. Lake, 11080 Chalet, is a retired Canadian army officer making a first bid for school board in North Saanich.

Lake fels trustees must work to their utmost for improvement in education today.

"They must consider carefully all expenditures however and make sure that these lead to a better elucation and are not merely frills," added Lake.

Lois Walsh, 930 Downey, is also a candidate for school trustee in North Saanich. Mrs. Walsh, a housewife, has been president of Deep Cove Elementary school parent-teacher group for two years.

"There are two issues at stake" says this candidate, "quality and cost." Mrs. Walsh's sole consideration is for the dollars spent without impairing the quality of education.

While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks

While shepherds watched their flocks by night,
All seated on the ground,
The Angel of the Lord came down,
And glory shone around.

"Fear not," said he, for mighty dread
Had seized their troubled mind;
"Glad tidings of great joy I bring
To you and all mankind.

"To you, in David's town, this day
Is born of David's line
A Saviour, who is Christ the Lord;
And this shall be the sign.

"The heavenly Babe you there shall find
To human view displayed,
All meanly wrapped in swathing bands,
And in a manger laid."

Thus spake the seraph; and forthwith
Appeared a shining throng
Of angels, praising God, who thus Addressed their joyful song;
"All glory be to God on high,
And to earth be peace;
Goodwill henceforth, from heaven to men
Begin and never cease."

Hark, the Herald Angels Sing

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King,
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled."
Joyful, all ye nations rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With angelic hosts proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem."

Refrain

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King."

Christ, by highest heaven adored,
Christ, the everlasting Lord;
Late in time behold Him come
Offspring of a Virgin's womb.
Veiled in flesh the Godhead see;
Hail the incarnate Diety.
Pleased as man with man to dwell,
Jesus, our Emmanuel.

Hail the heaven-born Prince of Peace
Hail the Son of Righteousness.
Light and life to all He brings,
Risen with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by;
Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.

It Came Upon the Midnight Clear

It came upon a midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold;
"Peace on the earth, goodwill to men
From heaven's all gracious King."
The world in solemn silence lay
To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled;
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lonely plains
They bend on hovering wing,
And ever o'er its Babel-sounds
The blessed angels sing.

Yet, with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And men, at war with men, hear not
The words of peace they bring;
O hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the arduous way
With painful steps and slow;
Look now, for glad and joyous hours
God's messengers will bring;
O rest beside the weary road
And hear the angels sing.

For lo! The days are hastening on
By prophet-bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes around the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

Here Comes Santa Claus

Here comes Santa Claus!
Here comes Santa Claus!
Right down Santa Claus Lane!

Vixen and Blitzen and all his reindeer are pulling on the rein.
Bells are ringing, children singing, all is merry and bright.
Hang your stockings and say your pray'rs,
'Cause Santa Claus comes tonight.

He's got a bag that is filled with toys for the boys and girls again.
Hear those sleigh-bells jingle jangle,
what a beautiful sight.
'Cause Santa Claus comes tonight.

Carol of the Drum

"Come," they told me
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
"Our new-born King to See!
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
Our finest gifts we'll bring,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
To lay before the King!
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum.
So to honor Him,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
When we come."

"Baby Jesus,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I'm a poor boy too,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I have no gift to bring,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
That's fit to give a King,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum
Shall I play for you,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
On my drum!"

Mary nodded,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Ox and ass kept time,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I played my drum for Him,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum
Then He smiled at me,
Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Me and my drum!

Do You Hear What I Hear?

Said the night wind to the little lamb,
Do you see what I see?
Way up in the sky, little lamb,
Do you see what I see?
A star, a star,
Dancing in the night,
With a tail as big as a kite,
With a tail as big as a kite.

Said the little lamb to the sheperd boy
Do you hear what I hear?
Ringing through the sky, shepherd boy,
Do you hear what I hear?
A song, a song, High above the tree,
With a voice as big as the sea,
With a voice as big as the sea.

Said the shepherd boy to the mighty king,
Do you know what I know?
In your palace warm, mighty king,
Do you know what I know?
A Child, a Child shivers in the cold;
Let us bring Him silver and gold,
Let us bring Him silver and gold.

Said the king to the people everywhere,
Listen to what I say!
Pray for peace, people everywhere,
Listen to what I say!
The Child, the Child, sleeping in the night;
He will bring us goodness and light,
He will bring us goodness and light.

Silent Night

Silent night! Holy night!
All is calm, all is bright;
Round yon virgin mother and child
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Silent night! Holy night!
Shepherds quake at the sight!
Glories stream from heaven afar.
Heavenly hosts sing Alleluia.
Christ. the Saviour, is born!
Christ. the Saviour, is born!
Silent night! Holy night!
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.

The First Nowel

The first Nowel the angels did say,
Was to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay;
In fields where they lay keeping their sheep,
On a cold winter's night, that was so deep.

Refrain

Nowel, Nowel, Nowel, Nowel,
Born is the King of Israel.
They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the East beyond them far,
And to the Earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night.
And by the light of that same star
Three wise men came from country far,
To seek for a King was their intent,
And to follow the star wherever it went,
This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest,
And there it did both stop and stay
Right over the place where Jesus lay.
Then entered in those wise men three
Full reverently upon their knee.
And offered there in his presence
Their gold and myrrh and frankincense
Then let us all with one accord
Sing praises to our heavenly lord;
That hath made heaven and earth of nought,
And with His blood mankind hath bought.

Winter Wonderland

Sleigh-bells ring,
Are you list'nin?
In the lane
Snow is glist'nin
A beautiful sight
We're happy tonight,
Walkin' in the Winter Wonderland!
Gone away is the Bluebird,
Here to stay is a new bird,
He sings a love song,
As we go along,
Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland!
In the meadow we can build a snowman,
Then pretends that he is Parson Brown,
He'll say "Are you married?"
We'll say "No man!"
But you can do the job when you're in town,
Later on, we'll conspire,
As we dream by the fire
To face unafraid
The plans that we made,
Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland!

O Come, All Ye Faithful

O come all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant,
Come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem:
Come and behold Him,
Born the King of Angels:

Refrain

O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
Christ the Lord.

Sing choirs of Angels,
Sing in exultation,
Sing all ye citizens of heaven above.
Glory to God
In the highest.

Yea, Lord we hail Thee
Born this happy morning;
Jesus, to Thee be glory given,
Word of the Father,
Now in the Flesh appearing.

Away in a Manger

Away in a manger, no crib for a bed,
The little Lord Jesus lay down his sweet head;
The stars in the bright sky looked down where He lay,
The little Lord Jesus asleep on the hay.
The cattle are lowing, the Baby awakes,
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes;
I Love Thee, Lord Jesus; look down from the sky,
And stay by my side until morning is nigh.
Be near me, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever and love me, I pray;
Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care,
And fit us for heaven to live with Thee there.

O Little Town of Bethlehem

O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie,
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark street shineth
The everlasting light,
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.
For Christ is born of Mary;
And, gathered all above
While mortals sleep, the angels keep
Their watch of wandering love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the Holy birth,
And praises sing of God the King,
And peace to men on earth.
How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given,
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
No ear may hear His coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive him still
The dear Christ enters in.
O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us we pray;
Cast out our sins and enter in;
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas Angels
The great glad tidings tell;
O come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord, Emmanuel

Christians, Awake

Christians, awake, salute the happy morn
Whereon the Saviour of the world was born;
Rise to adore the mystery of love,
Which hosts of angels chanted from above
With them the joyful tidings first begun.
Of God incarnate and the Virgin's Son.

Then to the watchful shepherds it was told
Who heard the angelic herald's voice,
"Behold,
"I bring good tidings of a Saviour's birth!
"To you and all the nations upon the earth!

"This day hath God fulfill'd His promised word;
"This day is born a Saviour, Christ the Lord."
Then may we hope the angelic hosts among.
To join, redeemed, a glad, triumphant throng;

He that was born upon this joyful day
Around us all His glory shall display.
Saved by His love, incessant we shall sing
Eternal praise to heaven's almighty King.

Silver Bells

City sidewalks, busy sidewalks,
Dressed in holiday style.
In the air there's a feeling of Christmas,
Children laughing, people passing, meeting smile after smile,
And on every street corner you hear:
Silver bells, silver bells,
It's Christmas time in the city.
Ring-a-ling, hear them ring.
Soon it will be Christmas day.
City street lights, even stop lights,
Blink a bright red and green,
As the shoppers rush home with their treasures,
Hear the snow crunch,
See the kids bunch,
This is Santa's big scene,
And above all this bustle you hear:
Silver bells, silver bells,
It's Christmas Time in the city.
Ring-a-ling, hear them ring,
Soon it will be Christmas day.

Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer

You know Dasher and Dancer and Prancer and Vixen,
Comet and Cupid and Donner and Blitzen,
But do you recall the most famous
Reindeer of all?

Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer had a very shiny nose,
And if you ever saw it, you would even say it glows.
All of the other reindeer used to laugh
and call him names,
They never let poor Rudolph join in any reindeer games;

Then one foggy Christmas Eve, Santa came to say:
Rudolph with your nose so bright, won't you guide my sleigh tonight;
Then how the reindeer loved him as they shouted out with glee,
Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer, you'll go down in history.

What Child Is This?

What child is this who laid to rest
On Mary's lap is sleeping?
Whom angels greet with anthems sweet
While shepherds watch are keeping.

Refrain:

This, this is Christ the King
Whom shepherds guard and angels sing,
Haste, haste to bring him in
The Babe, the son of Mary.

Why lies He in such mean estate
Where ox and ass are feeding?
Good Christian, fear for sinners here
The silent word is pleading.

So bring him incense, gold and myrrh,
Come peasant, king and own him.
The King of Kings salvation brings
Let loving hearts enthrone him.

The Christmas Song

Chestnuts roasting on an open fire,
Jack Frost nipping at your nose,
Yule-tide carols being sung by a choir,
And folks dressed up like Eskimos,
Everybody knows a turkey and some mistletoe,
Help to make the season bright,
Tiny tots with their eyes all aglow,
Will find it hard to sleep tonight,
They know that Santa's on his way.
He's loaded lots of toys and goodies on his sleigh,
And every mother's child is gonna spy,
To see if reindeer really know how to fly.
And so, I'm offering this simple phrase,
To kids from one to ninety-two,
Altho' it's been said many times, many ways,
"Merry Christmas to you."

— 12 —

Infant Holy

Infant holy, infant lowly,
For his bed, a cattle stall;
Oxen lowing, little knowing
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.
Swift are winging, angels singing,
Nowels ringing, tidings bringing,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

Flocks were sleeping, shepherds keeping
Vigil till the morning new
Saw the glory, heard the story,
Tidings of a gospel true.
Thus rejoicing, free from sorrow,
Praises voicing, greet the morrow,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

— 13 —

God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ your Saviour
Was born upon this day,
To save us all from Satan's power
When we were gone astray.

Refrain:

O tidings of comfort and joy, comfort and joy,
O tidings of comfort and joy.

In Bethlehem, in Jewry,
This blessed Babe was born,
And laid within a manger
Upon this blessed morn;
The which His mother Mary
Did nothing take in scorn.

From God our Heav'nly Father,
A blessed angel came,
And unto certain shepherds
Brought tidings of the same.
How that in Bethlehem was born
The Son of God by name.

"Fear not then," said the angel,
"Let nothing you affright,
This day is born a Saviour
Of a pure Virgin bright,
To free all those who trust in Him,
From Satan's power and might."

The shepherds, at those tidings,
Rejoiced much in mind,
And left their flocks a-feeding
In tempest storm and wind,
And went to Bethlehem straightway
The Son of God to find.

And when they came to Bethlehem,
Where our dear Saviour lay,
They found Him in a manger,
Where oxen feed on hay;
His mother, Mary, kneeling down,
Unto the Lord did pray.

Now to the Lord sing praises,
All you within this place,
And with true love and brotherhood
Each other now embrace;
This holy tide of Christmas
All other doth efface.

Jingle Bells

Dashing thro' the snow,
In a one-horse open sleigh
O'er the fields we go,
Laughing all the way;
Bells on bobtail ring,
Making spirits bright;
What fun it is to ride and sing a sleighing song tonight!

Chorus:

Jingle bells, jingle bells,
Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride,
In a one-horse open sleigh!

A day or two ago,
I thought I'd take a ride,
And soon Miss Fannie Bright was seated by my side;
The horse was lean and lank,
Misfortune seemed his lot,
He got into a drifted bank and then we got upsot!

Now the ground is white,
Go it while you're young;
Take the girls tonight
And sing this sleighing song;
Just get a bobtail'd nag,
Two-forty for his speed.
Then hitch him to an open sleigh and crack! you'll take the lead.

Good King Wenceslas

Good King Wenceslas looked out
On the feast of Stephen,
When the snow lay round about,
Deep and crisp and even;
Brightly shone the moon that night,
Tho' the frost was cruel,
When a poor man came in sight,
Gath'ring winter fuel.

"Hither, page and stand by me,
If you know'st it, telling,
Yonder peasant, who is he?
Where and what his dwelling?
"Sire, he lives a good league hence,
Underneath the mountain,
Right against the forest fence,
By St. Agnes' fountain."

"Bring me flesh and bring me wine,
Bring me pine logs hither;
Thou and I will see him dine,
When we bear him thither."
Page and monarch forth they went,
Forth they went together,
Through the rude wind's wild lament,
And the bitter weather.

"Sir, the night is darker now,
And the wind blows stronger;
Fails my heart, I know not how,
I can go no longer."
"Mark my footsteps, good my page,
Tread thou in them boldly;
Thou shalt find the winter's rage
Freeze they blood less coldly."

We Three Kings

We three kings of Orient are Bearing gifts; we traverse afar
Field and fountain, moor and mountain
Following yonder star.

Refrain:

O star of wonder, star of night,
Star with royal beauty bright,
Westward leading, still proceeding,
Guide us to the perfect light.

Solo (Melchoir)

Born a King of Bethlehem's plain,
Gold I bring to crown Him again.
King forever, ceasing never,
Over us all to reign.

Solo (Casper)

Frankincense to offer have I,
Incense owns a Deity nigh;
Prayer and praising, all men raising,
Worship Him, God most high.

Solo (Balthazar)

Myrrh is mine; it's bitter perfume
Breathes a life of gathering gloom;
Sorrowing, sighing, bleeding, dying,
Sealed in the stone cold tomb.

Glorious now behold Him arise,
King and God and Sacrifice;
Alleluia, alleluia,
Earth to heaven replies.

Santa Claus Is Coming To Town

Oh, you'd better watch out,
You'd better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He's making a list and checking it twice,
Going to find out who's naughty and nice,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He sees you when you're sleeping,
He knows if you're awake,
He knows if you've been bad or good,
So be good — for goodness sake!

Oh, you'd better watch out,
You'd better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

White Christmas

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know
Where the tree tops glisten
And children listen to hear sleigh bells in the snow.
I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
With ev'ry Christmas card I write
May your days be merry and bright
And may all your Christmases be white.

See Amid the Winter's Snow

See amid the winter's snow,
Born for us on earth below;
See the tender lamb appears,
Promised from eternal years.

Chorus:
Hail, thou ever blessed morn;
Hail, redemption's happy dawn;
Sing through all Jerusalem,
Christ is born in Bethlehem.

Lo, within a manger lies
He who built the starry skies;
He who throned in height sublime
Sits amid the cherubim!

Say, ye holy shepherds, say
What your joyful news today;
Wherefore have ye left your sheep
On a lonely mountain steep?

As we watched at dead of night,
Lo, we saw a wondrous light;
Angels singing "Peace on earth"
Told us of the Saviours birth.

Teach, O teach us, Holy Child,
By Thy face so meek and mild,
Teach us to resemble Thee,
In Thy sweet humility.

Here We Come A-Wassailing

Here we come a-wassailing among the leaves so green;
Here we come a-wandering, so fair to be seen.

Refrain:

Love and joy come to you and to you our wassail, too.
And God bless you and send you a Happy New Year!
We are not daily beggars that beg from door to door;
But we are neighbor's children whom you have seen before.

We have little purses made of matching leather skin;
We want a little sixpence to line it well within.
God bless the master of this house, likewise the mistress, too!
And all the little children that round the table go.

26-Year Beat Leaves No Regrets

For 26 years Saanich police Detective Les H. Ledson has lived with the ups and downs of being a cop.

Now in his 60th year, Ledson is due for retirement Dec. 31.

When he began his career in 1946 Saanich court convened every Thursday afternoon and handled "seven or eight" cases. Victoria provincial court's caseload is so heavy now that trials have been set for March, 1973.

Ledson has been through the works — general investigation, traffic patrol, detective work, and in his last years, youth detail.

"In my younger days I used to like traffic very much. Now I think it's more rewarding working with juveniles. When you think about it, if you can straighten one of them out, it's a good feeling," he said.

"You used to be able to deal with them a lot more severely than you can now and the parents would be 100 per cent behind you," he said.

"But the kids used to respect it." The attitude has changed to "what are you going to do about it, you can't touch me," he said.

"They're taking the power and the authority away more and more so that you're almost scared to say boo to them," said Ledson.

Juvenile offences have "gone up, I don't know how many hundred percents. It used to be almost an occasion to have a juvenile in court," he said.

The nature of the crimes has changed too, said Ledson.

"There were a few B and E's, but not anything like there are now. Most of the stuff now is revolving around drugs" and "liquor has a big gearing on court cases," he said.

Shoplifting has become a popular pastime. School children often form clubs. "To get into the club you have to shoplift," said Ledson.

A former auxiliary policeman, Ledson joined the force when it operated out of Royal Oak with one room and the chief's office.

. . . he'd carry on

"When I started I was constable number four. There was the chief, a juvenile officer, one corporal, one sergeant, and four constables," he said.

There are now 82 members.

"I got my initiation a few weeks after I started — a double-murder and suicide. This fellow had killed his baby and his wife and then killed himself with a shotgun," said Ledson.

After leaving the scene he went back to the station and ate his lunch.

With the exception of a couple of warning shots, Ledson's gun has remained in its holster throughout his career.

Asked if people stop at a warning shot, Ledson replied, "no, it gives them a little more push."

Ledson remembers a high-speed chase, which resulted in death for a young boy and the demolition of a car, as one of the highlights of his career.

After receiving a report of a stolen car heading south on Douglas, he and Inspector Ted Owens, still on the force, waited in front of the old municipal garage (now Town and Country Shopping Plaza) waiting for the car to pass.

They chased the car on Douglas to Topaz where it turned right, went onto a bank and around a roadblock to Cook Street. "We were doing better than 100 going down Cook," he said.

The car "jumped the curb" at Dallas Road, went along the edge of the cliff and dropped some 70 feet to the beach.

"That was in 1957," he said. He still remembers the licence number.

Asked what he thinks he'll miss about the job, Ledson replied, "I'll miss the associations."

Asked what he won't miss, he replied, "That's a good question, a very good question. I've enjoyed the whole thing so much that I wouldn't mind carrying on."

A member of the Village Squires Barbershop Chorus and the National Model Railroaders' Association, Ledson says he hasn't made any plans for the future.

One thing he's sure of — somebody else will take his place and tackle the ups and downs of being a cop.

POWER LINE PROTESTS DELAY ROUTE DECISION

Neighborhood protests over proposed routing of a B.C. Hydro primary power distribution line prompted Saanich council Monday to seek delay until alternatives can be discussed.

Residents of Pomona Way and adjoining streets in northern Gordon Head petitioned against the routing of a line along Grandview and Pomona because poles and lines would cause "visual pollution" and impair the only view from Ponoma of Margaret Bay.

It was recommended the municipal engineer and Hydro discuss the matter further, including an alternative of placing the line along Ferndale where there are sufficient trees to screen it. Council also asked for further information on the cost of placing the line underground as petitioners suggested.

Hydro has suspended the work and estimated the extra cost of going by way of Ferndale would be about $4,000. This also would expose the line to risk of failure due to falling limbs.

Municipal administrator John Tribe noted the line would not come within the terms of provincial legislation providing for funds to put transmission lines underground.

In other business council:

Agreed to hold a public hearing on planning committee recommendation to place all municipal parks in a new P-7 zoning category as a means of helping to safeguard them.

Rejected an application by Wesley L. Desjardins, 4986 West Saanich, to zone property at West Saanich and Goward for trailer and mobile home park use.

SAANICH BOOKS BALANCE

Saanich municipal finances at year-end will be just about where the administration expected them to be, aldermen were told Monday night.

Revenue surplus or contingency find will be $67,205 on gross expenditure of $16.88 million, "provided we don't run into any unexpected expenditure," said administrator John Tribe.

A statement prepared by comptroller Roy Broughton showed about $106,000 less than anticipated on per capita billings for social services, but a $33,850 deficit in the water supply system budget due to a large increase over budgetted amount for the cost of water purchased from Greater Victoria Water District.

Noise Bylaw Ready to Take First Step

Preparations for a draft anti-noise bylaw in Saanich culminated Monday with a council decision to give the law first reading at the next meeting a week before Christmas.

Intermittent discussion during the early part of the year, in the summer and fall resulted in the draft being sent back to committee and almost caused its death on the chamber floor when it seemed there was little hope of police enforcement.

But the draft as recommended by solicitor D. A. M. Patterson relies on complaints from citizens with support from other citizens directed at offences against a neighborhood. These, he suggested, stand the best chance of prosecution in a courtroom.

Patterson pointed out that a similar bylaw in Vancouver has proven effective, almost to the point of eliminating charges. He said the practice there has been for citizens to sign a petition complaining of an irritating noise.

Police then use the petition to show the alleged noise-maker he is disturbing others and usually that is effective in stopping the noise, Patterson said.

If not, then the petition is useful as a source of witnesses to support a charge.

In response to a request that he consider the merit of incorporating the noise bylaw in the Nuisance Bylaw, Patterson said he doubted the advantage and could cite no precedent.

He also doubted that a municipality could legislate against construction machinery not equipped with satisfactory exhaust mufflers since that area seemed to be in national or provincial jurisdiction.

Noise from almost any source, with noted exceptions, would be covered by the Saanich bylaw, and loud noises such as from construction machinery would be permitted within certain limitations.

Patterson said experience elsewhere had shown the difficulty of attempting to enforce a technical type of noise bylaw, which relies on the actual measurement of sound, often complicated by a din of background noise making it hard to isolate the offending sound.

Gordon Head Plan To Be Explained

Saanich planning department will meet Gordon Head residents on their home ground to explain the preparation of an official community plan for the northern part of the district.

A memo from municipal planner Tom Loney to acting mayor Ald. Leslie Passmore made public Monday referred to "misconceptions" that have arisen regarding long-term development of Gordon Head, which council proposes to maintain essentially as a single-family residential area.

In order to do this and to provide for a central core of commercial and medium-density multiple housing at about Tyndall and San Juan, the community plan method is advocated. This would confine apartments and row housing and a limited shopping complex to a single zone and eliminate spot zoning.

Loney's memo was intended to clarify the proposal, he said, adding "it is regrettable that the publication of these suggestions has generated very little public feedback over the past seven years and has only become a matter for public debate in the past few weeks."

Loney said Saanich is pleased to have an opportunity to benefit by public involvement in preparation of a community plan and space will be arranged at Gordon Head Community Hall on Tyndall to meet with residents at their convenience several afternoons or evenings.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced today to the highest levels in more than 18 years on the Broad of Trade.

Prices moved in ahead 8⅜ cents, then swung wildly through the remainder of the session in a range of about 3 cents.

With five minutes remaining, another rally was set off and the electronic quotations board went out of service. Prices then closed at 9½ cents above the previous close.

Soybean meal in the expiring December option, gained slightly more than $6. Soy oil, however, lost around 15 points.

The strong export demand and concern that this year's soybean crop may suffer from wet fields and snow damage were the prime influences on the market. Heavy short-covering was noted in all pits on the advances.

Bond Yields On Decline

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The average yield of 40 Canadian bonds declined during November to 8.115 per cent compared with a yield of 8.36 per cent at the end of October.

Average yield of the 40 bonds had been 7.94 per cent as of Nov. 30, 1971.

Value index of the bonds was 231.77, up from 225.76 in October and 217.43 in November, 1971.

Price index was 57.91 at Nov. 30 compared with 56.79 last month and 58.99 last year.

The study of 10 provincials, 10 municipals, 10 public utilities and 10 industrial bonds was made by McLeod, Young, Weir.

Here are the latest yield averages in the four categories:

	Nov. 30 1971	Oct. 31 1972	Nov. 30 1972
10 provincials	7.63%	8.20%	7.93%
10 municipals	7.77	8.32	8.15
10 public utilities	8.23	8.49	8.25
10 industrials	8.14	8.41	8.25

Government of Canada 5 per cent bonds dated Oct. 1, 1973, had a yield of 4.87 per cent at the end of November compared with 5.35 per cent a month ago and 4.16 per cent a year ago.

Government of Canada 4.5 per cent bonds, Sept. 1, 1983, were 6.60 per cent compared with 6.87 per cent a month ago and 6 per cent a year ago.

Government of Canada 5.75 per cent bonds, Sept. 1, 1992, were 7.30 per cent compared with 7.45 per cent a month ago and 6.60 per cent a year ago.

Confident in B.C.

Victoria-born Charles Ball, 50, has been appointed manager of the first British Columbia branch of Canadian Business Service which will have its official opening in Vancouver in three months.

Ball said the company's expansion into B.C. was an expression of confidence in the investment future here despite the recent change in government.

Premier Dave Barrett has given investors no reason to fear they will lose money as a result of his policies, Ball said.

Ball graduated from Victoria High School and attended University of B.C. where he graduated in economics.

He has spent more than 20 years in the investment business in Vancouver and Calgary before being selected to head the B.C. operation of Canadian Business Service.

The Vancouver office will be the company's first expansion outside Toronto.

Ball said CBS will operate in the Yorkshire Trust Building in Vancouver but the opening has been delayed by the elevator strike.

"The present tenant is unable to move out," he said.

CBS is a securities analyst company that manages portfolios of $10,000 and up. The company has 30 employees studying more than 250 Canadian stocks — many of them B.C. companies.

First announcement of the CBS expansion was made by company president Michel Comette of Toronto.

Comette said the election victory by the New Democratic Party presents a challenge for investment counsellors requiring a greater state of alertness than under the Social Credit administration.

MB Forms Ship Line

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. has formed a new shipping company in partnership with Furness Withy and Co. Ltd. of London.

The company is called Oceanspan Carriers and will operate out of Hamilton, Bermuda.

Oceanspan Carriers will initially use chartered vessels for its shipping needs but intends to build up its own fleet later.

Managing director of the new company is Kaare Langstrom, 45, a Norwegian who until recently was managing director of the Norwegian shipping firm of A-S Kristian Jebsen Rederi.

He has been in the shipping business since 1948.

Home Starts Up

Dwelling starts in the Victoria area totalled 295 during October to bring the 10-month total for 1972 to 3,292, according to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

During the 10 months, a total of 1,11 2single family homes were started and 2,180 multiple family units were begun, both above 1971 levels.

More than half the apartment units — a total of 1,258 out of 2,180 — were started inside Victoria city limits.

However only 47 single family homes were started in Victoria proper during the 10-month period, compared with 416 in Saanich municipality.

Construction of single family homes was also brisk in Sidney during the first 10 months with 151 started in the period.

In Vancouver, dwelling starts during the first 10 months totalled 11,316, down 9 per cent from last year. The decline was entirely due to fewer apartments being constructed.

Construction of single family homes continues to be brisk on the mainland.

Land Development

Victoria Mortgage Corporation Ltd. is continuing to diversify its business.

President Douglas Hawkes says the company will move towards a heavier emphasis on land development.

The company has purchased 105 lots overlooking Nanoose Bay to add to its present holdings.

The company has sold 22 of its 24 lots at Anderson Cove, eight of its 10 at Powell River, 10 of its 13 at Guildford Development in Surrey.

The Duncan development of single family lots has been halted and an application to rezone the area for apartments has been made, Hawkes said.

Building Permits Rise in Saanich

Value of building permits issued by Saanich dropped slightly in November compared with a year ago without impairing the lead held by the first 11 months this year over 1971.

Permits for the month totalled 85 with a value of $1.1 million compared with 96 and $1.4 million in November 1971. Dwellings fell from 36 to 29 and from $913,500 to $649,900.

To date this year building permits for 1,064 projects worth $21.9 million have been issuel, as compared with 1,050 worth $17.37 million to Nov. 30, 1971.

Dwellings account for 456 permits of a total value of $12.5 million, while in the same period last year there were 332 permits for dwellings totalling $8.25 million value.

One undertaking last month was valued at more than $50,000, a $280,000 warehouse-office building at 872 Cloverdale being built by Ridon Holdings Ltd.

Toronto Dominion

Toronto Dominion Bank will purchase just over five per cent of the issued ordinary shares of Arbuthnot Latham Holdings Ltd. of London, England.

Under the agreement, Toronto Dominion will purchase 183,704 shares at 450 pence — about $10.75 — a share. Arbuthnot Latham is an acceptance house with merchant banking and other financial interests.

Mercantile

The Mercantile Bank of Canada reports balance of profits of $2.46 million or 95.2 cents a share for the year ended Oct. 31 compared with $1.79 million or 89.3 cents last year.

Balance of revenue was $4.7 million, up 23.1 per cent from $3.8 million last year.

Total assets were $390 million, an increase of 35.2 per cent over $288 million last year.

Loans were $332.9 million, up from $242.2 million while deposits increased to $350.9 million from $260 million.

IH

International Harvester Co. of Canada Ltd. reports record net income for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 of $17,006,000, more than double 1971 earnings of $8,181,000.

President W. Norman Smith says in his annual report total sales rose to an all-time high of $363,682,000 from $278,929,000 last year.

International Harvester (Canada) is a wholly owned subsidiary of its U.S. parent company.

Smith says 1972 was a year of firm markets, following a trend established in the previous year.

Continued sales strength for IH trucks and farm machinery is expected in 1973. Good improvement was noted in demand for industrial tractors and equipment and in the construction equipment industry.

Probers Trying To Solve Riddle Of Malone's Fall

TORONTO (CP) — From president of a million-dollar securities firm to "just sharing an office with some friends" is an oversimplification of Terry Malone's business career.

It is more than a year now since Malone's firm, Malone Lynch Securities, sank into bankruptcy. Investigations, which have involved the Toronto Stock Exhange (TSE), the Ontario Securities Commission and the RCMP, are continuing.

The mystery they're trying to solve: How did an apparently prosperous securites firm suddenly fall into bankruptcy?

"We're still trying to tie in loose ends," said Edward Royce, chairman of the commission.

In mid-1971 the company had more than 3,000 public clients. Then it became involved in a deal to distribute shares of Freehold Gas and Oil Ltd.

Freehold, a small Calgary company whose shares are still traded on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, acquired an interest in a California oil well and the stock began to climb.

From 75 cents in June, 1971, the stock rose to more than $3 by August.

By that time, several accounts in Malone Lynch Securities had accumulated substanial amounts to Freehold but, unfortunately much of the stock wasn't paid for.

That development left the company about $100,000 short of the minimum capital required by the TSE. And when Freehold shares dropped to about $1.75, the firm's entire capital of $930,000 was lost.

The company's phones were disconnected within a week, the TSE suspended its trading privileges and the company was forced into bankruptcy.

There were few public victims, however, since the stock and bond industry's National Contingency Fund picked up $1.17 million of the losses by clients.

Seven of the nine partners of Malone Lynch are still forbidden by the TSE to deal with the public.

Malone now occupies a Bay Street office indentified as the head office of Shawnee Petrolems Ltd.

"Basically, I'm not doing anything," he said in an interview. "I'm just sharing an office with some friends."

MINE CLOSING

VANCOUVER (CP) — O.K. Syndicate of Vancouver announced Monday that it will shut down its 500-ton-a-day copper mine in the Highland Valley, south of Kamloops, effective Dec. 15.

The mine employs about 90 persons.

"The suspension is necessitated by the current production rate and economic conditions," the company said in a statement. "During the suspension, an evaluation will be made of the future mining program.

"Resumption of operations will depend on the results of the study and economic factors prevailing at the time," the company said.

O.K. Syndicate is owned 50 per cent by Alwin Mining Co. Ltd. D.K. Mining Inc., of Calgary, a subsidiary of Dekalb Inc. of Illinois, owns 25 per cent and International Minerals and Chemical Corp. of Illinois owns the other 25 per cent.

Directors of Alwin Mining Co. said that the mine closure was temporary. They said they had every reason to believe the several million dollars invested in the mine "will be fully protected in future years of production and earnings."

Ram Magic Baffles '49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Roman Gabriel's third-down magic, aided by some of Coach Tommy Prothro's trickery, was just too much for San Francisco '49ers to handle.

"We would hold them for two downs, and on the third they'd get it," '49ers middle linebacker Ed Beard said.

That told the story of Los Angeles Rams' 26-16 victory over San Francisco Monday night that made Atlanta Falcons, 7-5, the new leaders in the National Football League's wildest race.

The '49ers fell from first in the National Conference West standings and into a second-place tie with the Rams at 6-5-1.

Things are sure to be shaken up again Sunday when the Falcons meet the '49ers here and the Rams to go St. Louis to play the Cardinals on the next-to-last weekend of the season.

"I can't see us letting down the last two games," said Gabriel, who helped the Rams snap a three-game losing streak by throwing a pair of touchdown passes on third down plays.

The Rams made first downs on seven of 16 third-down situations. Four of the times they missed, David Ray followed with field goals, ranging from 12 to 42 yards.

Gabriel scrambled away from '49ers' rushers in the second period to fire a 26-yard touchdown pass on third-and-13 to tight end Bob Klein, sending the Rams ahead 10-9.

He sent running back Willie Ellison downfield on a third-and-five play in the third quarter that resulted in a 39-yard scoring play and a 23-9 Rams' lead.

The Los Angeles quarterback wasn't involved in his team's first third-down play of the game.

With a third-and-seven at San Francisco's 34, running back Jim Bertelsen took a direct snap, faked a handoff and ran for nine yards. Ray made the score 3-0 with his first field goal a few plays later.

Steve Spurrier, in his seventh game as the '49ers' starting quarterback, threw two touchdown passes to give him the NFL lead with 18. But three of his 46 throws were intercepted.

The 27-year-old Spurrier had 257 yards passing. The touchdowns came on a six-yard pass to Ted Kwalick in the first quarter which put the '49ers ahead 6-3, and on an eight-yard pass in the third period to Gene Washington, who leads the NFL with 11 touchdown catches.

Three Spurrier passes—two of them to running back Jimmy Thomas—looked like touchdown bombs but were dropped.

One of the interceptions came when Washington slipped trying to cut and gave safety Jimmy Nettles a clear shot at the ball.

A Black Quarterback And an NFL Taboo

Chuck Ealey, 22-year-old quarterback of the Hamilton Tiger Cats, is the biggest name in football today. He has no other choice.

Not only in Hamilton is Ealey a hero for his superb performance in the Ticats' 13-10 triumph over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Grey Cup final, but now in the United States he is asking to be counted as well.

Jim Crow, please stand up!

For Ealey, you see, is a Negro, and, by design or otherwise, Negroes just don't quarterback professional teams in the National Football League, but might have, if Ealey had his way.

But he was unwanted at home, and despite never having played in a losing game at Toledo University, he was totally snubbed by NFL teams in last year's college draft. Miffed, he turned up at Hamilton, and the Tiger Cats should be forever grateful. Now in one short year has become the first black quarterback to win a national title anywhere.

Ealey was clearly the difference between the two teams in the sometimes exciting final. He called a sound game, passed well adn for long yardage; ran better, and was the one man the Riders couldn't contain.

Besides, he refused to panic, even under extreme pressure in those final few hectic minuts. He took the Ticats from deep in their own end into position for a field goal by an even younger Ian Sunter (19) in a classic display of coolness and passing accuracy.

Bias Begins in College

The final march down the field was reminiscent of some of the best days of Johnny Unitas of U.S. pro fame, and there was no doubt right then Ealey would be named star of the game, and rightly so.

In the eyes of some, Ealey perhaps runs more like a halfback than a quarterback. But as a quarterback on Sunday, he ran better than anyone else, and that includes all the halfbacks with the possible exception of George Reed of the Roughriders. He was solid in defeat.

Still, in the final analysis, it was Ealey who couldn't be handled by the Riders, and the question is: will the NFL scouts take a second look at a man once rejected.

And the question that naturally follows is : was he turned down for his ability or because of his race?

The answer had to be obvious, because Ealey's agent, it is said, wrote a letter to all NFL clubs, explainign that if Ealey was selected in the draft, it would be as a quarterback.

He wanted the chance to play in the NFL at a preferred position, and one that no other member of his color had played before. For this he was rejected.

Bias? Certainly. Prejudice against the Negro quarterback is evident, rampant, and a fact of life in the U.S. And if it's equally as true that not many Negroes have the qualifications to quarterback in the NFL, how many ever get the chance in college either?

Is a Matter of Choice . . .

Not many. Coaches jus taren't prepared to give the black man in football equal rights in this executive capacity as field leader. The perils that would go with failure are too great and, in most cases, would never be permitted. And it wouldn't be the coach who would make the decision, either.

Now Ealey has at least proved that he can compete in pro footoball — in the regular season he led the East in passing (2,573 yards), touchdowns (22) and completion percentage (58.4).

On Sunday, if he wasn't markedly superior to Saskatchewan's Ronnie Lancaster, he was more effective in the clutch, especially in those final two fateful minutes. And that's when this game was dcided.

He got the ball to where Sunter put it away for the three points that spelled victory for Hamilton.

For the Roughriders, it was a tough defeat; aren't they all? But frankly there aways appeared to be a Hamilton flavor in the air, even when the Riders snapped back to tie the score at 10-10 after falling behind early.

From here, the better team won, and Ealey was clearly the best of the lot.

For Ealey, what does the future hold? He's probably not certain, but after Sunday's display, plus a fine rookie season, no one could possibly blame him for thinking that he at least deserves the opportunity to try his hand in the NFL. If somebody has to break the taboo (which it is) against black quarterbacks, why not him?

The choice is still there. But unfortunately it still belongs to the NFL.

IN SHORT

1,200 Greet Riders

A crowd of about 1,200 turned out at Regina Monday to welcome home Saskatchewan Roughriders following their 13-10 Grey Cup loss Sunday in Hamilton to the Tiger-Cats.

Accompanied by their wives and children, team members circled the ice surface at the 4,600-seat Exhibition Stadium. The players were not individually introduced but the fans called for quarterback Ron Lancaster to speak. Holding his young son in his arms, the veteran thanked the crowd for its support and said "we didn't win, but we came awfully close."

Back in the east, meanwhile, controversy still raged over Dave Fleming's catch of a Hamilton touchdown pass in the first quarter. Roughriders protested at the time Fleming had at least one foot partly on the sideline when he came down.

This would have put him out of bounds under Canadian Football League rules and nullified the score, but officials declared it a legal catch.

"My foot came down inside," Fleming said. "Yeah, I guess it was close." But Saskatchewan's Ted Dushinski argued he was out of bounds . . .

Whalers Run Streak to 11

BOSTON (AP) — New England Whalers struck for four goals in the first 12 minutes of the game and coasted to a 7-2 World Hockey Association victory over Ottawa Nationals Monday night.

The Whalers, who extended their unbeaten streak at home to 11 games, moved into a tie for the East Division lead with idle Cleveland.

Tim Sheehy scored two goals and assisted on a third for New England. Five other players — Larry Pleau, John French, Terry Caffery, Tom Webster and John Danby — chipped in with goals.

Wayne Carleton and Bob Leduc were the goal getters for Ottawa.

Al Smith turned aside 31 shots on goal for the Whalers while his Ottawa counterpart Les Binkley made 37 stops.

Rudy Will Flash His Aces Here

RON CHIPPERFIELD
... yet another year

Regina's Dennis Sobchuk has powered his way to the front, but the Western Canada Junior Hockey League scoring race remains a tight, four-way battle.

And with two aces in hand, Brandon Wheat Kings' coach Rudy Pilous "would like to bet" on the chance that Ron Chipperfield and Robbie Neale can make it a six-way fight.

One-time coach of the professsional Victoria Maple Leafs, Pilous shows his pair to Victoria fans tonight when Wheat Kings play the Cougars at Memorial Arena, starting at 8.

Sobchuk scored two goals and an assist as the Pats defeated Winnipeg Jets 6-3 in Monday's only action. With 53 points, the big centre moved two points ahead of Tom Lysiak of Medicine Hat and Edmonton's Darcy Rota, and three ahead of Lanny McDonald, another 'Hatter.

Chipperfield, Victoria captain Dale Cook and Swift Current's Dave Williams share fifth place with 44 points, nine off Sobchuk's pace. Neale is one of three players lodged at the 43-point plateau.

Pilcus, leading the Wheat Kings into town Monday, paid his respects to the current "big four."

"Let's just say I'd like to have all of them on my team. They're all pretty good players," said Pilous, "but I would like to think my two guys (Chipperfield and Neale) are every bit as good.

"The east must have a few players in the class of these six, but I don't think the Quebec or Ontario leagues have a better pair of 18-year-olds than Sobchuk and Chipperfield."

Reginans, naturally, make a big fuss over Sobchuk, but Chipperfield can hardly be accused of coasting along the Assiniboine river. As a 16-year-old, the Chipper scored 40 goals and 42 assists. He contributed 59 goals and 53 assists last year.

The husky centre has been flashing along at better than a goal-a-game pace this season. He already has scored 26 despite missing seven games because of an eye injury.

Cook's five-point performance in Saturday's 9-2 victory over New Westminster Bruins carried the Victoria captain into scoring contention.

The strong play of Cook and defenceman Cliff Bast, Cougars' most recent acquisition, "doesn't surprise" Pilous, who dealt both to Victoria.

Flyers Join Nixons Atop Junior Ladder

Fuller's Lake Flyers climbed into a precarious share of first place in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League on Monday by playing to a 3-3 tie with Juan de Fuca Gulls at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Flyers now share the lead with unbeaten Victoria Nixons Trucking, which enjoys four games in hand.

Gulls, which trail the co-leaders by one point, were led by a two-goal effort from Ed Nichol, who scored the tying goal at 6:19 of the final period.

Kevin Alexander scored the other Gull goal.

Mike Rogerson, Lee Clackson and Clas Olsson scored for flyers.

Alberta Juniors Drop Court Case

EDMONTON (CP) — The lawyer for four Edmonton hockey players who had been attempting to sue the Alberta Junior Hockey League for their releases had confirmed that the case is being withdrawn.

Stan Peck was commenting out of court after the case was adjourned without date by Justice A. M. Dechene of Alberta supreme court.

Peck, who is representing the Southside Athletic Club and the four players — William Kidd, 19, Darrell Zelinski, 17, Gary Kokoliski, 19, and Ted Edmundson, 19, in their suit against the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the Alberta Junior Hockey Association and the Edmonton Maple Leafs Junior Hockey Club, says "there are no issues to be resolved."

Two of the four boys will be granted releases, said Peck. Another is already playing with the Edmonton Mets' organization and the fourth says he does not know where he wants to play hockey and will probably be released when he makes application.

'Extreme Litigation' Reviewed

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League governors opened their two-day meeting Monday to review "extreme litigation in which we are involved," said league president Clarence Campbell. A doubtful shadow was cast over the progress of the Kansas City franchise.

The "extreme litigation" involves numerous suits in connection with the newly-founded World Hockey Association, said Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL.

"Kansas City has run into difficulty since the referendum on tax laws was rejected by the voters Nov. 7 and a new form of financing must be found," said Campbell.

Kansas City and Washington, D.C., have been awarded conditional franchises which would expand the NHL to 18 teams for the 1974-75 season.

But now Kansas City, which already has had two extensions to meet the terms of the NHL, has until Dec. 15 to fulfill conditions of its franchise which include the financing of a new building.

"If the Kansas City people are not prepared to meet the conditions, they will voluntarily withdraw and the National Hockey League will be free to go elsewhere," said Campbell.

However, the Kansas City group is expected to plead its case before the NHL governors conclude their current meeting.

"There's no problem involving the Washington franchise," said Campbell "except for the possibility of a nuisance factor brought about by evironmental groups who claim there'll be noise and traffic problems."

Other cities in line for franchises are Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Cleveland and Phoenix.

"We can go any place we wish," said Campbell, under the assumption Kansas City cannot meet its obligations by the deadline. However, it was learned, Cincinnati would have first choice at a franchise.

A Proper Celebration Bequeathed to Colwood

Vic Carson's hole-in-one on the fourth at Colwood was noted and duly recorded last week, but the pleasure would have been greater to the late Rusty Dunnett.

When it was his turn to speak his pice, Rusty's biggest grumble was an objection to the golf tradition that calls for the person scoring an ace to buy a round of cheer for the house.

Dunnett, along with many others, always felt that bystanders should pay for the celebration rather than the "fortunate" golfer.

Dunnett died in California last year but Carson's hole-in one helped Rusty to make his point once more.

Dunnett's estate included one share of Royal Colwood Golf Club. He willed it back to the club with the provision that the proceeds be used to help celebrate a hole-in-one.

As stipulated, the will provided Carson with $50 and Colwood's hole-in-one fund with $100.

Carson's ace was the first since the will passed through probate, and the ensuing celebration is exactly what Rusty Dunnett had in mind.

Uplands members have rejected a proposal to increase annual dues, but Colwood members voted aye to a similar motion.

In Colwood's case, approval means the club will be able to install an automatic sprinkling system. Active men's dues jump $20 to $288 per annum. Of the increase, $8 will be earmarked directly towards financing the $150,000 sprinkling system.

Bob Peters was elected Colwood's new president, succeeding Gordon Hutchinson, while Bruce Pellmore takes over as vice-president. Jack Esler succeeds Peters as captain.

Uplands' annual meeting turned down a proposed $20-a-year increase, and the rejection jolted several members of the out-going commiteee. Men's dues will remain at $180.

A former captain also takes over as president at Uplands with Bob Bell succeeding Wil Wilson. Gord Hutton was chosen vice-president and Dave Tribe takes over as captain. Bill Garner was elected vice-captain.

Win McGuire, John Fraser, Cy Phillips and Russ McKinnon were new additions to the Uplands' directorate, joining holdovers Reg Elliott and Jim Douglas.

BRIAN GLENNIE

Leaf Extra Now a Leader

TORONTO (CP) — A year ago Brian Glennie's future with Toronto Maple Leafs was tenuous.

The National Hockey League club was over-stocked with defence personnel and the former junior policeman could be found more often in the press boxes of the rinks where Leafs played than on the ice.

Injuries suddenly loomed large in the young defenceman's career.

Last year, injuries to other players enabled Glennie to establish himself as a permanent member of the Leafs' blueline brigade even before the staff deteriorated with defections to the rival World Hockey Association.

This year Glennie is the recognized leader on the Toronto defence, especially since the early-season neck injury that has kept veteran Bob Baun on the sidelines.

Injuries, however, continue to plague the Leafs and Glennie is among the more seriously ailing. But he continues to play for two reasons.

His shoulder injury, suffered in October, could take several weeks to get proper treatment. Meanwhile he's able to contribute to the Toronto effort despite the pain.

Secondly, Leafs are short on defencemen and unless Glennie's condition deteriorates he'll likely play the rest of the season in spite of the injury that restricts movement in his right shoulder.

Toronto, which plays against the Canucks in Vancouver tonight in one of three scheduled games, has been further hampered with the los. for at least the game, of centre Norm Ullman (bone bruise on right instep) and winger Paul Henderson (pulled groin).

Glennie, however, continues to play without grumbling other than to admit "it's sore."

"He's a gutsy guy, I'll tell you that much," admitted coach John McLellan. "Not only because of the shoulder.

"Saturday night when we tied Philadelphia (Flyers) he took a shot on the neck and didn't miss a shift. He blocked another shot with his wrist and he had to wear a plastic shield on it to play Sunday.

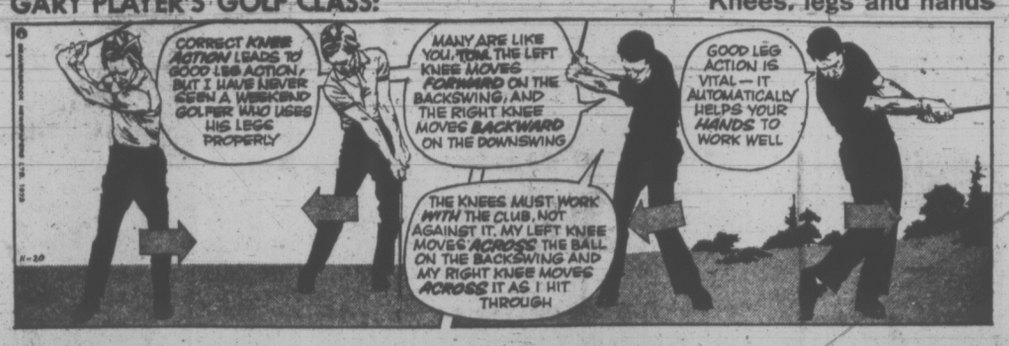
"But he never missed a shift."

One of Glennie's biggest boosters on the Toronto club is goaltender Jacques Plante, who has operated behind a number of good defencemen during his 43 years.

"He's a very intelligent hockey man, and if you watch him you realize he has studied situations and he knows exactly where to position himself when another team has the puck in our zone," Plante says. "He does it exactly the way I explain it in my goaltending book."

The 26-year-old Toronto native has built a reputation during his three years with the Leafs as being one of the NHL's solid belters.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: Knees, legs and hands



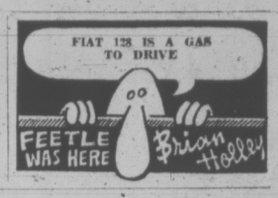
Basketball Beat Beckons Police

Victoria's police basketball team, formed two years ago to promote better relations between the force and youth, begins its third season Wednesday.

Team manager constable John Lane announced Monday that the team plans to expand its area of operations this season, making trips up-Island for games against junior and senior high schools in several communities.

Noon-hour games will be played at Mount View Junior High on Friday, Highrock Junior High on Monday and Oak Bay Junior High on Tuesday.

The police had a 14-8 won-loss record in the first season and improved this to 18-2 in the second season.



Hotelmen Win On Early Spurt

Hotel Douglas romped to a 14-4 edge with six straight field goals early in the game and was never headed en route to a 61-44 victory over Restoration Services in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game Monday at Central Junior High School.

Victory gave Hotelmen sole possession of first place, breaking a deadlock with London Boxing Club.

DAve Wirtanen scored eight points in each half to pace Hotel Douglas while Clubmate Bruce Vallor added 11 points.

Brian Craig led Restoration Services, which trailed 25-19 at half-time, with 17 points, while John Hart contributted 10.

Mrs. John, who has played on and coached B.C. sides, plays for Pirates in the first division of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association.

Junior Shows Buckaroos How

Lorry Gloeckner, a promoted junior, pumped in four goals Monday night to lead Ingraham Buckaroos to a 7-0 shutout over JBAA Gulls in a Victoria Intermediate Hockey League game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Gloeckner was called up from Victoria Nixons Trucking, the Buckaroos' South Island Junior "B" League affiliate.

Tom Allen scored two goals for Buckaroos while Brent Atkins added the single.

Ron Griffis turned aside 35 shots to record the shutout while Reg Wonnenberg parried 46 shots in a losing cause.

Vera Holmes Leads

Vera Holmes captured the top spot and visiting bowlers nailed down the next four positions in a women's "50-and-up" tenpin tournament staged Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Vera combined a three-game scratch count of 568 with a handicap total of 83 for 651 to beat out Nanaimo rival Lil Muir (577-69—646) by five pins.

Next in line were two Duncan entrants Iona Whan (632) and Marg Hull (630) and Mill Bay's Vera Bartheck (616).

Completing the top 10 were Barb McNeilly (615). Emmy Carmichael) (609) of Nanaimo, Kay McMurray (604), Judy Soyka (603) and Lou Burtenshaw (602).

Bulldozers Do the Job

Beth Allen scored the lone goal as Carson Bulldozers blanked Metro Toyotas 1-0 in a Vancouver Island Senior Girls' Ice Hockey League game Sunday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Chemainus downed Individual Dry Cleaners 5-2 in a midget league game while Peter Pollen defeated Craigflower Motel 1-0 in a bantam contest and Ocean Express tripped Esquimalt Lions 5-1 in a peewee game.

Gals Join Guys In Tag Contest

It will be "guys 'n' gals" in a tag-team tussle during a professional wrestling card Thursday (8 p.m.) at Memorial Arena.

Terri Lachance is scheduled to partner Ray Glenn while Sandy Parker combines with Duncan McTavish.

Phil Green Loses Thriller

SEATTLE — Phil Green of Victoria lost a five-set thriller Sunday in the Seattle Tennis Club invitation squash tournament.

Green, the only Victoria player entered, was edged 18-17 in the fifth set of the "B" class semi-final by Kim Proctor of Seattle, who was later defeated 3-1 in the final by Peter Mercer of Vancouver.

John Hutchinson of Seattle captured the "A" class laurels by nipping George Morfitt of Vancouver 18-17 in another five-set cliff-hanger.

Volleyball Teams Tied

Strawberry Vale vaulted into a tie for second place with JB's in the Victoria Senior Women's Volleyball league by recording four victories Monday night.

The club took two wins by default over Limelighters II and beat Limelighters I twice, 15-13, 15-10. JB's downed Sturrocks 15-10, 15-9 and split with leading Victoria "Y," 15-13, 14-16. Victoria "Y" topped Blues, 15-0, 15-1.

In other games, Blues split with Limelighters I 15-8, 6-15 and Sturrocks picked up two wins by default from Limelighters II.

The "Oh, you shouldn't have!" watch.

Ribbons and wrapping in the early morning light. Laughter and love all about. Snip, snip, with the scissors. Suddenly, a voice. "Oh, you shouldn't have!" Somebody just got a Timex watch. That's always the reaction. Because Timex designs are so right, people naturally think they cost you dearly. Never. Timex watches for Christmas. So sensible, yet so beautiful.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

Most hockey fans know little about the value to a team of a good trainer. But ask any hockey player and he will tell you that a top-notch trainer can actually win hockey games.

With today's expanded National Hockey League, clubs are playing on the west coast one night, back in the east the next and then heading for a third game in four days in the midwest.

Such a schedule makes great demands on the trainers for they are responsible for looking after all the luggage, equipment, hotel arrangements and giving treatment to players for minor injuries, aches and pains.

The trainer is the first man to arrive at the hockey rink and the last to go. He's the fellow players often discuss their problems with and the man expected to perform miracles on injuries.

When a player pulls up with a leg injury, it's the trainer's job to supervise a treatment program designed to get the player back in action quickly.

Many a night, the trainers are still at the rink at 3 a.m. and back on the job at 9 a.m. They don't get enough credit.

Tigers Still Tops In Field Hockey

Tigers retained their lead by defeating Universality of Victoria Vikings 3-1 Sunday in a Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association match at Lansdowne Junior High School.

In other matches, shorthanded Orangemen upset third-place Rebels Red 4-0 and Rebels Grey topped Castaways 5-0.

Mariners moved to the top in the first division of the Vancouver Island Women's Association after playing to a scoreless draw with Oak Bay Saturday while former coleader, Sandpipers I, remained idle.

Best Missing Again

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — George Best, the tempestuous Irishman whose soccer career with Manchester United has been plagued by controversy, failed to turn up for another training session Monday, club sources said.

After failing to arrive at United's ground for a training session scheduled for Monday afternoon, Best was reported to have been seen at Manchester's Ringway Airport.

The Northern Ireland international forward was dropped from Manchester United's team which played Norwich Saturday after he completed only one out of five training sessions last week.

He was expected to face the club's board of directors today but United manager Frank O'Farrell said Monday that the date for the meeting had not yet been fixed.

This is the third successive week Best, 26, has missed training sessions and four days ago he was served with a summons which alleged he assaulted a 20-year-old girl in a Manchester night club. The case is to be heard on Jan. 1.

Best, who is serving a three-match World Cup ban after being sent to play against Bulgaria in Sophia in October, shocked the soccer world last season when he failed to turn up for a Northern Ireland International match and said he planned to quit the game.

He subsequently changed his mind about retirement but was disciplined and suspended by United at the start of the season.

PORTLAND, (AP) — Rookie winger Derek Black joined Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League Friday on loan from New York Islanders of the National Hockey League.

SOCCER STALEMATE FORCES A REPLAY

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Liverpool held Tottenham Hotspur to a 1-1 draw Monday night and forced a replay of their English Football League Cup quarter-final soccer match.

Liverpool, the First Division leader, overcame a 1-0 deficit to get the tie before 48,677 fans.

Tottenham, who has not won on Liverpool's ground for 60 years, looked as if it might beat the jinx when Martin Peters drove a corner kick in for a goal in the 54th minute.

But in the 78th minute Liverpool tied it. Emlyn Hughes scored with a left-foot shot to earn Liverpool a replay at Tottenham's ground Wednesday.

SMALLER SCHOOL CLASSES GIVEN PROVINCIAL BOOST

The provincial government is encouraging school districts to use smaller classes in elementary schools by granting more money at that level.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said districts are not obliged to decrease the class size but she hopes they wiill understand the "inference" in the move.

Dec. 1 is when school boards are told how much money they will get on the basis of their student populations.

An order-in-council released Monday sets the size of the elementary "instructional unit" at 25 pupils, down from 30 in the past.

The boards receive a set amount of money for each instructional unit in the district.

Dailey said she could not yet calculate what the change will cost the provincial treasury and declined to reveal the amount each instructional unit will be granted until all districts have received notification.

The size of secondary school instructional units remains unchanged at 20 pupils.

It's 'Business as Usual' Barrett Tells Chamber

"Business as usual" — at least for one more year — was the message given Monday by Premier Barrett to a group of B.C. Chamber of Commerce businessmen who met various government officials.

Chamber president D. A. L. Tait of Vancouver said Barrett had indicated to the chamber group that there would be no major changes affecting business in the province in the coming year, with one notable exception.

That exception would be the automobile insurance industry, Barrett said.

His government is in the process of preparing legislation which will establish a government-run automobile insurance plan.

TAX CHANGES

Tait said Barrett told the businessmen that there would be minor tax changes coming into effect shortly.

The government would be dealing with corporation taxes for one thing, he said. B.C. now taxes corporations at a rate of 10 per cent. A maximum rate of 13 per cent is allowable.

Tait said the potential increase in corporation tax is "something that has been expected since the election campaign."

He added that as long as the money is spent in a constructive manner, the business community would realize that the money must come from somewhere.

FAMILY BUSINESSES

The government would be looking at ways in which it can encourage the small, family-type business, Tait said.

The government is more likely to favor businesses which make its decisions at the local level, he said, over businesses which are multi-national and require decision-making away from their place of business.

Tait said there would be future legislation to favor the small businesses, which are considered a preferable alternative to large firms like Bulkley Valley Industries, he said.

Tait was asked if there is any substance to reports of fears by members of the business community that business and the NDP cannot live together in B.C.

He said the two "will definitely live together." The government, he said, has indicated its strong preference for the free-enterprise style of business.

The chamber president described the attitude of business towards the new government as "alert, but not apprehensive."

He said the purpose of Monday's session with the government was to open lines of communication for the business community, and to acquaint the government with some of the problems faced by the business community.

Between 40 and 50 directors of the B.C. Chamber gathered in Victoria Monday. They met various cabinet ministers at a meeting in the morning and then had lunch with the ministers and several deputies at the Union Club.

Only Resources Minister Bob Williams was not present.

The chamber group presented the government with a series of recommendations adopted at this summer's annual chamber meeting held in Nanaimo. The resolutions were originally prepard for presentation to the Social Credit government.

Barrett said he thanked the chamber for its presentation and looked forward to working with the group.

Tait said there was no major opposition to any of the chamber's resolutions expressed by the government.

The chamber is not expecting instant results on all of its proposals, he said, and is prepared to resubmit some of the proposals in future years.

Jail Term Over LSD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shannon MacFarlane, 19, who had been working for the Non-Medical Use of Drugs directorate, a division of the Department of National Health and Welfare, was sentenced to a jail term of six months definite and 18 months indetermine Monday after pleading guilty to selling two tablets of LSD to an undercover policeman.

Judge Graham Ladner said in handing down the decision that "it is to be deplored that the directorate employed the accused at 18 years of age in what could only be an association with drug users when she was already a drug user herself."

Aldermen Present Strong Objections To Closed Sessions

Veil Lifted From Oak Bay Council

Oak Bay council's veil of secrecy was lifted Monday night when three aldermen led a successful move to have in-camera items dealt with in public.

The attack was started by Ald. Shirley Dowell, who asked that in-camera items be brought forward while the press and public were there.

"We have so many in-camera meetings that we do as much business in them as we do in open council," she said.

Ald. John Goult and Ald. Douglas McLelland supported Mrs. Dowell.

McLelland reminded Mayor Frances Elford that council at an earlier meeting had agreed that copies of in-camera items should be available for the press when discussed in front of them

"Copies should be available to them so that they know what we're talking about."

He was told that none were available, that the staff would have to run off copies. Mrs. Elford said the material wasn't available for the press because the staff was "grossly overworked."

McLelland retorted:

"Then let's take half an hour and get them done off (the copies). It's public business when it's brought forward.

"I don't wish to be tedious on this point and you did agree that copies would be available to avoid this situation."

The meeting was suspended until the material was presented to the press.

Earlier in the meeting, McLelland moved that council's special recreation committee stop holding in-camera meetings dealing with the proposed recreation centre.

He said that a great deal of misunderstanding had resulted from the fact that all the committee's meetings had been held in secret.

"There isn't a man, woman, child, dog or cat in Oak Bay that doesn't know where we propose to put the centre," he said.

Council agreed that all business on the recreation program would be public in future except when it involved land purchases.

SNOW IS FOR SLIDING, for dumping your friends in, for melting on your tongue and for making snowballs and in Greater Victoria a winter can sometimes slip past without a chance for any of these things. CPR Blamed For Harbor 'Hucksterism'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Representatives of several sightseeing firms operating from the Causeway today laid the blame for Inner Harbor "hucksterism" squarely at the door of the CPR and Empress Hotel.

This monopoly arrangement, whereby tourists are sold tours for the two lines on all CPR ships, on the dock at Seattle and Victoria and at the Empress itself, means they are "brainwashed" before the operators ever reach them, aldermen were told.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways of controlling build-up of sightseeing vehicles on the Causeway, and to eliminate the offensive accosting of passers-by which has resulted in increasing complaints over the years.

But Bill McClarty, president of London Omnibus Tours Ltd., said as long as one company has "unrestricted solicitation privileges," on property adjacent to the Causeway, any restriction of its competitors is "tantamount to legislating the other companies out of existence."

"Does the city council want a sight-seeing monopoly controlled by the CPR?" he asked.

'Four-Hour Harangue'

In a lengthy brief, McClarty charged that the Causeway problem is due to present unequal competition "resulting from a discriminatory action and the desire of the CPR to milk some small profit out of every facet of the tourist industry."

He said that for about 1,000-2,000 daily visitors, the first impression of Victoria is a "four-hour harangue" over the public address system on the Seattle-Victoria ferry.

"This offensive blast is aimed at convincing the visitor that he must buy his sightseeing ticket from the ship's purser as he will be unable to get reservations by the time he reaches Victoria.

"This is followed by intensive solicitation within the ferry dock unloading area after arrival.

"If solicitation is so offensive on the street in front of the hotel, why is hawking permitted on their ship and on their property? Perhaps it is because the CPR gets a substantial commission on sightseeing sold on their ship, and some tribute from other solicitors on their dock.

"After all, good taste cannot be allowed to interfere with company profits," McClarty said.

'Brainwashed All the Way'

John Olson of Tally-Ho tours made no bones about admitting to the committee that he and his employees "sell like mad" to tourists walking along the Causeway.

"The reason that we have to is that all the cream is taken off the sightseeing business before we even get to the tourists.

"They have been brainwashed all the way across from Seattle and in the Empress before we even get a crack at them."

Also in a brief on behalf of Tally-Ho, A. W. Knapp said $3,000 in daily sales would be "an underestimate" on the sales of the government-owned Pacific Stage and Blue Line buses. On that basis a 15 per cent commission would bring the CPR-Empress income to $450 daily during the June-July-August period.

But he added the actual sum could be double that.

Lawyer Ian Stewart, representing CPR, said this had been his first opportunity to listen to the complaints and he would suggest that they be examined by CPR at the management level.

Referring to complaints of ticket-hawking on the Empress lawns and walks, he said there is a great difference between solicitation on private and public property.

At the end of the discussion it was informally agreed that the bus operators and possibly the Empress Hotel as well will try to come up with their own solution.

Bob Alexander of Victoria Chamber of Commerce urged the operators to get together, or they will find a solution imposed from city hall.

"If you can eliminate the growing physical presence (of buses) and the growing soliciting, it will be of great help to us," said Mayor Peter Pollen.

But, he warned, if there is no voluntary solution, "we will have to impose one," he said.

B.C. Grants Awarded Victorians

Seven Victoria residents have been given scholarship grants by the B.C. government to enable them to continue their studies at cultural instiutions.

Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall announced that a total of 32 grants, amounting to $22,268, had been approved by the government. The awards are for tuition only and are paid directly to the institutions the students attend.

Another Island winner was Danny Hudson of Nanaimo, who was awarded $850 for his study of music.

Contractor Seeking Damages

Ron Smith of Cowie Tree Service Ltd. told North Saanich council Monday that it will be served this month with a writ for damages allegedly incurred when coun l halted work on a tree-clearing project last January.

Smith, who said he was claiming damages "in excess of $30,000," also told council that he was about to start selective clearing on two large fracts of land in North Saanich.

"I would like council to consider whether they will raise objections before I sign the contract," said Smith, reminding members that he had made similar inquiries before embarking on the contract on A. F. Baines Ltd. property on Lands End Road, late in 1971.

The stop-work order was issued shortly after the 1972 council was sworn in but was rescinded later in January on the advice of the municipal solicitor.

Reverberations of the stop-work order included differences of opinion between the Mayor and the solicitor and complaints from residents of the unfinished clearing job.

Smith was told by Mayor Trevor Davis on Monday that municipal staff would advise him on present bylaws.

Hotel's Approval Increases Saanich Convention Capacity

Construction of the second convention-size hotel in Saanich — the $1.5 million Royal Oak Inn — has been given municipal approval.

A building permit was issued Monday afternoon and construction is expected to be carried over the next six months.

Joseph Isherwood, who with brothers John and Foster are the owners and developers of Royal Oak Inn Ltd., said the new hotel will cater to a maximum 385 convention delegates, based on its assembly-room-cabaret capacity, with parking for about 300 cars.

The hotel also will have a 300-seat public house; coffee shop, dining room and cocktail lounge each with 90 seats, and 62 accommodation rooms.

Property with 535 feet of frontage along Elk Lake Drive adjoins the 263-foot frontage of Royal Oak Motel, a 32-unit business also operated by the Isherwood family.

Last week members of Capital Regional District public works committee inspected the site where the company intends to dispose of its sewage effluent.

A Pollution Control Board permit to treat sewage and hold the discharge in ponds for irrigation purposes has been issued and is valid to the end of 1974, by which time it is expected the Saanich sewer system will be extended to Royal Oak.

The committee was satisfied the system is compatible with Beaver Lake Park and the Colquitz River waterway which adjoin the hotel site.

Joe Isherwood said exterior of the new building would be of French country style compatible with the existing motel structures and 100 feet distant. Setback will be 275 feet on Elk Lake Drive.

Facilities will include two tennis courts, a playground, 3,250-yard nine-hole golf course, horseback riding, hydrotherapy pools and a total of 60 acres of grounds including landscaped parking.

Hotel accommodation is scheduled to open June 1 with the public areas ready a month later.

The hotel was designed by Fred Rowe and general contractor is Dura Constructors Ltd., of Victoria.

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me why moss grows on an asphalt shingle roof, and what, if anything, can be done to remedy the condition? W. B.

A. A local roofing expert says moss will grow on almost any substance. It grows on asphalt shingles if there's an accumulation of dust and dirt on the shingles and a lot of moisture as well, usually after the shingles are seven or eight years old. You can buy an inexpensive moss killer spray from roofers, and also hire someone to spray the shingles. The roofing man doesn't recommend spraying until summer, when you can get three or four days of dry weather after spraying.

Grieve Slams Draft Budget

A provisional budget which holds the North Saanich mill rate at this year's 19.5 mills was received by council Monday.

Finance committee chariman Ald. Paul Grieve criticized the draft budget "because possibilities which will be before the new council are not properly presented."

Certain items could be eliminated and would, he said, result in a mill rate lowered to 17.5 next year.

Nobody Gets Gate In Depot Layoff

Layoff notices have been given to about 13 workers at the Rocky Point ammunition depot but nobody will be actually "going out the gate", a spokesman said today.

He explained that it was part of a long-term plan to standardize ammunition depots across the country.

"When they began cutting back the armed forces a couple of years ago, they began chopping at the lower levels. Then it was found there were too many chiefs and too few Indians."

The layoffs were ordered after a management study by a group from defence department headquarters who visited the depot two or three months ago.

Following the study, some positions were found to be redundant and others at the lower levels were reclassified.

Now that the layoff notices have been received the workers will be able to apply for other jobs in CFB Esquimalt.

The spokesman said that although the men would be absorbed into other departments, some of them, particularly those who were only taken on a year or so ago, might have to settle for jobs for less pay.

They would remain in these positions, he said, until opportunities came for advancement.

NEW FIRE CHIEF FOR NORTH SAANICH

North Saanich volunteer firemen will be headed by Chief W. R. Snow, replacing Chief Doug Jack whose resignation takes effect at the end of this year.

Snow, 37, of 1125 Laurel, was elected by his fellow firemen at a recent meeting.

A mechanic with Dench Excavating Ltd., he has been with the fire department since its formation two years ago.

Ald. George Aylard, fire committee chairman, recommended Snow's appointment on Monday and also named George Hartshorne and R. D. Evans as captains and A. E. Deans as licutenant.

"These appointments were made in full consultation with the firemen," said Aylard in answer to a question by Mayor Trevor Davis.

Condominium Conversion For Burnside

Tenants Won't Be Forced to Buy, Says Official

Burnside Gardens, the second oldest apartment complex in Saanich, is being converted to a condominium project.

But a spokesman for the 120-unit housing development denied Monday that any pressure will be applied to those tenants who elect not to buy the condominium suites offered to them on a first-refusal basis.

"We're not forcing them to buy," said a local spokesman for Nacel Properties Ltd., the Vancouver-based company which has purchased the garden apartment's 10-acre site at Tillicum and Burnside.

"They can think about it very carefully. If they elect not to buy, and as time goes by an interested purchaser comes along, they will be given the opportunity of moving into a nearby vacant suite."

The time allowed to move, either to another suite within the complex or elsewhere, would be 60 days.

What happens if that suite, in turn, comes up for sale?

The process is repeated, explained the spokesman, who preferred not to have his name mentioned. Asked, however, if a family could find itself moving every two months or so, he replied that was unlikely as the demand for housing indicates a ready market for condominium-type accommodation.

He said the suites are being offered for sale at "well below market value," with mortgages arranged on a five per cent down payment.

The 63 three-bedroom town houses, each 1,250 square feet in area, will sell for $15,900, including all appliances. Price of the 57-two-bedroom, 950 square-foot units will be $13,800, again including appliances.

The spokesman said buyers who are now renters will find their maximum monthly payments — including principal, interest and taxes — $40 less than the rents they are now paying on the three-bedroom units, and $30 less on the two-bedroom units.

Rents are $180 and $160 respectively.

The company representative said he didn't think finding the down payment would prove a difficult obstacle for most tenants, even allowing for the fact that Burnside Gardens is far from being a high-income area.

"No, $750 isn't a hell of a lot to put down on a 1,200-square-foot home," he said. If, in some cases, the tenants want to buy but have only part of the ready cash the company might "go along with them" and accept some sort of deferred payment such as a tax rebate," he said.

The company is now redecorating the exterior of the 15 buildings without cost to the tenants, and will also redecorate individual suites as they are sold. No assessment fees to cover maintenance of common grounds would be charged until July 1, 1973.

The spokesman said Nacel Properties is well aware of the controversy surrounding the conversion of apartments to condominiums, and is anxious to avoid the reputation which others in this field have gained.

"We don't want anyone saying we have kicked people out," he said. "I live here in the complex and my neighbors are my potential customers.

"If we were rip-off artists I bet you we wouldn't be living here."

Tenants were informed of the change last Friday and it's a little early to predict what the response will be, he said, but added that he has several appointments lined up and one person has already said he wants to buy his suite.

'Rogues' Gallery' Established By Black Ex-Convict Painter

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A black artist who spent ten years in jail for armed robbery has opened an art gallery to help fellow ex-convicts ease back into society.

And Robert Clemons has lined up a lot of unlikely backers to make the aptly-named "Rogues Gallery" a going concern. He has commitments from banks and major industrial corporations to host public showings of works by convicts and former cellmates.

Clemons was awarded $25,000 by the San Francisco Foundation and won a brace of smaller grants to set up the building that was the first gallery in a two-story brick headquarters of the Black Panther party on one of the main streets of this university city.

Clemons, 40, sporting a van dyke beard, said he got the idea of setting up a gallery while serving his 10-year sentence in San Quentin prison for armed robbery while an art student.

"Inside," he said in an interview "the only time you ever felt like a human being was when you were expressing yourself. Standing at canvas you could really get out of yourself. It was a way a man could maintain his dignity — his sanity."

He talked in the back office of the gallery, a painting of the worn face of a convict framed by prison bars staring down from the wall. There were frequent interruptions by ex-cons arranging times to use the gallery for painting, and teen-agers asking for help in making jewelry, a sideline that's been developed to help keep the kids off the street.

The twice-a-year showings at San Quentin of the prisoners' art work and the profits they made gave Clemons the idea for the gallery.

When he was paroled in 1967, he went back to art school and began gathering support for the gallery from the law enforcement authorities who'd originally put him away, as well as from civic leaders.

The gallery is designed to be an "on-going showcase" of prison art, as Clemons describes it. The funds from paintings sold are held until the artist is released.

Clemons hopes that the gallery can support ex-convicts with talent who otherwise might be forced into jobs they don't like but must accept to meet parole conditions.

"The problem with the prison system," he said, "is that guys can't get money to continue when they get out. He's locked into the parole program."

Among those taking advantage of the gallery is David Hilliard, the Black Panther chief of staff who has several paintings up for sale while serving out a 1-to-10 year sentence for assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

The gallery has branched out beyond just being a showcase and training studio in the past year. It includes a media department with $50,000 worth of borrowed equipment that is taken to schools in the area to teach children video techniques.

Clemons has plans for attention-grabbing exhibitions at the now-closed federal prison on Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay and at Folsom and San Quentin prisons.

Clemons explains the motivation of the gallery in simple terms.

"I'm strictly an economic cat," he said.

"It costs $53,000 to send a cat to jail.

"When a dude comes out of that jail with $65 in his pocket the first time he gets in trouble that's when you've got problems with him. All I knew how was to rob."

But he said that a gallery run by ex-convicts for convicts can offer a "survival handle" for former jail inmates.

Condominium Control Sought

The chairman of the city's Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau, has advocated stricter controls for regulating the conversion of rental units to condominiums.

"It's one act that lacks some basic regulations," said Ald. Alf Hood Monday. "Regulations should be provided so tenants aren't faced with the situation where they have to buy or move."

His comments followed an admission Monday by Resources Minister Robert Williams that he evicted a tenant from rental suites that had been purchased, renovated and sold to individual buyers.

Williams and his partners had purchased six rental units in Vancouver last January at $77,000, and had sold them by April at a price of $127,000.

Although the bureau — formed by city council last October — has no judicial powers in any area of landlord-tenant relations, Ald. Hood said one of its important functions will be to recommend changes in legislation.

The bureau, he told a lunch box forum co-sponsored by Camosun College and the Provincial Museum, will advise landlords and tenants, receive complaints and mediate disputes between landlords and tenants.

He was speaking with John Woods, a Victoria landlord, and long-time spokesman for the former Landlord Tenant Advisory Committee.

Woods agreed that any improvements in the area of landlord-tenant relations depended on the provincial government.

"It's fortunate we have a socialist government that has got the excuse to do what needs doing. They can do something drastic," said Woods.

Although Woods would not predict what form the drastic changes will take, some possibilities, he said, wouldn't surprise him:

There will be a tightening up of tenant controls;

Landlords could be required to circulate figures on net profits so tenants can have a clear picture of where they stand.

"I can also see an amendment to the eviction section of the Landlord Tenants Act to permit a landlord to quickly get rid of undesirable tenants.

"But I don't think the city can do much about it without the provinces authority behind it," Woods said.

The audience, consisting mainly of area landlords, expressed concern over disposing of undesirable tenants, damage deposits, and tracking down those tenants who move out in the dark of night while still owing two months rent.

Ald. Hood said tenants will have to realize that an owner is in business and damages to their rented apartment will only be reflected by an increase in his rental price later on.

"Some sort of agreement will have to be worked out," he said.

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

SEX AFFECTED SELECTION

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — As the first woman elected to the General Motors board of directors, Catherine Cleary isn't about to sit back and be a token for women's lib.

And the soft-spoken Cleary says she is sure GM doesn't expect her to assume that role, even though she thinks her sex played a part in her selection.

"I'm sure it did," she said in an interview. "I think everybody knows that corporations are looking for women and minority people and other groups that haven't traditionally been on the boards.

"On the other hand, I believe, and I think that General Motors and these other corporations believe, anyone who is invited to serve on their board has to have the background and experience to function effectively as a director.

"I wouldn't be interested in being on a board just to be a symbol and I wouldn't do it if once I learned about the corporation I found I couldn't make a contribution to the function of the board."

Cleary is president of the First Wisconsin Trust Co., here and the GM board position is merely the most prestigious of several she holds, including ones with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the Kraftco Corp.

She is also a trustee and member of the executive committee of that Northwest Mutual Life Insurance Co., here. The directorships have made her one of the most widely known woman business executives in the U.S.

A native of Madison, Wis., Cleary joined the first Wisconsin Trust in 1947 as an assistant trust officer and worked her way up through a number of executive positions. She also served as an assistant treasurer of the U.S. and assistant to the secretary of the treasury from 1953 to 1954.

Cleary became a director of First Wisconsin Trust in 1963 and president in 1969. A graduate of the University of Chicago, she taught school for a number of years in New England and then entered the University of Wisconsin law school, where she graduated with highest honors in 1943.

Her father, the late Michael J. Cleary, once was president of Northwestern Mutual Life.

Cleary, 55, doesn't see her election to the GM board as a triumph for women's liberation, but more the result of long, hard work. She also says this is a good time for women in business.

"I think it is very difficult to value all the forces of work, but my own feeling is that there is a great shortage of able, experienced people in all kinds of work," she said. "That's true of government; it is true in education; and it is true in many areas as well as business.

"We're constantly looking to find people with the kind of experience we need and I think this broke down the barriers before the days of this very aggressive women's liberation.

"There are more opportunities for women now than there are women trained and qualified to take those opportunities.

"You take my case. I came into the trust company 25 years ago and I worked long and hard and loved every minute. Every year opened something I hadn't done before. But a lot of younger people today wouldn't be interested in the kind of work that called for this long term commitment."

Women have been getting a lot of bad advice, she said.

"I remember not too many years ago when the school of commerce at the University of Wisconsin advised women not to major in finance because there wouldn't be any opportunity for them. This was terrible advice even at that time," Cleary said.

"I think the opportunity has been there, but there isn't any question that around the turn of the century, if a woman wanted to work, the only thing she was told she could do was to go into teaching, nursing or maybe music or something. We've certainly seen a constant widening of attitudes on the part of both men and women."

This was true even of her own father, she said.

"I was the oldest child and I think that he was surprised when I wanted to go to law school. But he said 'go ahead and try it' and I think he was delighted I did well in school, and I'm sure this had an effect on his attitude. He was a very generous, broadminded person who loved people, but it really hadn't occurred to him," she said.

No Answers Supplied To French Questions

Since every September I enroll in one of the special interest courses taught at night in our high school, I am probably the only person within 1,000 miles who can stuff a horned owl with hand while making a puppet out of a burned-out light bulb with the other.

This year my first choice, a course entitled "How to Make Driftwood Out of Old Lamps" was full, so I signed up for Conversational French.

Included in the price of the course is a tourists' guidebook featuring a list of Useful Phrases, which, presumably will get you in no deeper trouble than you are in already.

I have discovered one major drawback. While these phrases tell you phonetically how to ask for assistance, they give you no idea of how to decipher the reply. It's all very well to be able to say "Where is the nearest comfort station?" in French, but the person you ask will invariably answer you in French, which will be absolutely no help at all.

"No, thank you. I'm here with my wife. (husband, mother)." . . . "Call a priest. Hurry!"

Arriving half an hour late to class last week, I attempted to explain in French that I was delayed because our dog had swallowed the car keys. My instructor looked a bit startled.

"Didn't I say it right?" I asked.

"I'm not sure. You said that you were late because a woodpecker was trespassing in your spinach."

Hard Luck Story Ends Happily

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I get so riled when I read what some women write to you and complain about. Let me give you a sample of what my life has been like:

When I was a year old, my mother ran off with another man. My father boarded me out, and when I was 12 he remarried again and I went to live with him and my stepmother. That marriage was no good, either.

I got married at 14 just to get away from home. I had three miscarriages and one live child from that marriage, then my husband left me for another woman. I was only 21. Then I married again and I thought my luck had changed, but no sooner did we have a decent house and nice furniture than we got burned out and lost everything. No insurance.

Last March, I was raped by two men on my way home from work and they broke my glasses. Then my husband got laid off from work, and on the way to pick up his unemployment check some kid in a jalopy hit him and totaled our car.

Right now I am in the hospital having a hysterectomy. Every word of this is true, but there are plenty of people who are worse off than I am because I have a man who loves me and I love him. — Lucky

DEAR LUCKY: Bless you. Matching your experiences in one lifetime would be a job for Job.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed reading your column concerning what some nurses in various hospitals around the country prefer to be called. However, there is a group among registered nurses that prefers to be recognized by a title not reflected in your column. We are known to family, friends, professional peers, and patients as "Mr." — Ralph A. George, R.N.

DEAR ABBY: I am a registered nurse, and I was irked by the letter signed "Irked Nurse." — She didn't like being called "nurse" by her patients.

How about the nurse who refers to her patients as "The gallbladder in bed 6," or "The prostrate in bed 9?"

I think the impersonal manner with which some nurses treat their patients today is disgraceful. — Love Being a Nurse

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wed., Dec. 6, 1972
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get finger on pulse of public. Means go with tide. Be sure your concepts are understood. Don't veer too far from practical course. Consult one who has travelled. Hold off on journey of your own. It is best now to delay.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be going in too many directions simultaneously. Key is to be versatile without confusing basic issues. Be wary in financial area. Take no unnecessaly risks. Older individual means well but lacks strength.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take time to be thorough. Check fine print. Become familiar with subtle nuances of any undertaking. There is weight of added pressure, responsibility on your shoulders. Emphasis is on making opposition understand your views.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make inquiries. Doors previously closed could now be ajar. Accent is on the hidden, restricted and basic health. Relationship with member of opposite sex could blossom. Travel plans should be made prior to vacation period.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotions could take over and cause impulsive actions. No time for speculative ventures. Wait until air clears. Additional information is necessary. Family member does not deserve a shouting match.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may not be holding objective view in connection with goals, ambitions. Key is to find out what is really required. Necessary materials are available. However, indirect course may be necessary. Means find alternatives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be held responsible for actions, statements of relatives. Know it and be aware of plans. Someone may be trying to pull wool over your eyes. Capricorn could offer counsel of value. Throw aside pride—ask.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish rather than start — don't throw money into project that has proved to be losing proposition. Take time to review situation. Aries could play important role. Finances continue to dominate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): One who is close to you also is troubled. Be mature enough to listen without casting first stone. You gain if legal matters are checked. Key is to show that you can understand. Then fresh start can be rewarding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have tendency now to fool yourself. Key is to be practical about health, work, confidential matters. Pisces is involved. You can create now and express in beautiful manner. Do so rather than waste time brooding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendship is put to test. Obtain hint from Capricorn message. Youqn person may be on wrong track. Don't permit sentiment to cloud objective judgment. Study alternative mehods. Highlish ability to use available material.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Delays, apparent obstructions may actually benefit you. Know it and respond accordingly. Your goal apparently is blocked by law, older individual. Key now is to maintain steady pace, checking details along the way.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are interested in music, can do much with your voice. You began new cycle this year and you are more independent as result. Much of past has lost its grip on you. Real be your most significant months of 1973.

Announcing an Exhibition of Pottery
by Jeanne Sheppard of Victoria
DEC. 6—7—8
AT THE HAND LOOM
Come and see this colorful display of pottery, just in time for you to select for Christmas giving. Truly imaginative and charming for your own home, too.
Jeanne —
Born in Rustington, Sussex, where she was introduced to pottery by a very fine Russian artist, Jeanne has since spent more than half her life in Canada, and has lived in Victoria since 1950.
As a very small child she made pots. She later expressed her artistic talents by designing her own clothes, even shoes. She trained in drama, writing, ballet, art of mime, and has been potting seriously since she acquired her own wheel 14 years ago.
Jeanne's art reflects her many interests and natural talent. Her work has been shown along with other artists at the Newcombe Auditorium. This is her first one man exhibition.

For One Handicapped Child Life Begins—Again—At Five

Today, in the first of a series of five articles, The Times looks at the opportunities and problems facing handicapped children in the Victoria area.

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Blackie was her dog, from the time she learned to walk until she started kindergarten at Cordova Bay Elementary School last year.

But after a motor vehicle accident last November, the little blonde, then 5, did't recognize Blackie. She didn't even know what the word dog meant.

Newspaper accounts of the accident said the little girl suffered brain damage. What they didn't say was that the brain damage affected Denise's limbs like cerebral palsy.

Out of a total enrolment of 183 children at the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children, 83 suffer from cerebral palsy (CP). And most cases says clinic social worker Margaret Nash, were caused by motor vehicle accidents.

The disease affects the motor responses of the brain and, although the brain functions normally, the body muscles just don't respond.

There are 1,588 cases of cerebral palsied children under 20 years of age in B.C., according to the latest statistics available.

"CP is still a catchall for brain damage at birth, and now is referring to brain injuries suffered in car accidents," Nash explained.

"It's hard enough for parents to learn to cope with cerebral palsy in a child from birth," she said. "But it's next to impossible to learn how to cope when your normal child all of a sudden isn't normal any more."

Limbs Wither

One of Denise's friends at the clinic explained his condition this way: "My body is just like an iron cage. I know what I want it to do but I just can't seem to get it to do it."

CP training includes learning to sit, learning to stand and, in some cases, walk. If CP victims don't get help, their limbs tend to wither from non-use.

For Mrs. D., it was heartbreaking to watch her second oldest child having to learn how to do everything all over again.

In the hospital, Denise forgot people, her vocabulary and her brain couldn't put thoughts into words. She knew she had been in a car accident but didn't really remember anything else.

Doctors — and even her own mother — compared her to a four-month old baby.

"When she was in the hospital, doctors told me to expose her to only a few things to start her education off slowly," Mrs. D. said.

"We followed the advice and started off with three things: Blackie, David, her brother, and Michelle, her sister. We mentioned the names over and over again.

"Blackie was the first thing she said. The second was David, and third was Michelle. But they were all just words — she had no meanings for them.

"Blackie was a name she knew, not her dog. It was like there was a link missing in her brain."

The words 'mom' and 'dad' didn't come until a couple of months later.

"The hardest thing," said Mrs D., "was just believing the whole thing happened."

Whereas before the accident she was the sidekick to her older sister Michelle, now Denise, almost 7, has a difficult time keeping up with her younger brother David, 2.

"It was as if her muscles had disappeared. She has to concentrate on having her brain tell her limbs what to do.

"It's like the automatic reflex isn't operating," Mrs. D. said.

Just sitting on a chesterfield, Denise has to concentrate on keeping her back straight, her legs bent and her arms correctly positioned.

When she forgets, one leg will start to lift itself up, as some of the stronger muscles pull the others out of position.

There are bars on the lower bunk-bed, but Denise manages to slip through them during her sleep when concentration takes a rest for another day.

First Steps

Another new addition, a wheel-chair, sits beside the fireplace.

Although they don't know what the future holds, Denise has learned to print her name (again) and she took her first few steps last week (again).

And she is expected to keep right on achieving, said Nash, of the clinic, which offers the only facilities for cerebral palsied children in the city.

Denise spends a regular 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. day in the classroom at the clinic and takes time out for physical therapy, occupational therapy, motor co-ordination and perception exercises. Hydrotherapy in the clinic's swimming pool is also offered.

Although the Cerebral Palsy Association of B.C., which operates out of Vancouver, does not have a branch in Victoria, the clinic's parent association and the staff's social workers try to provide all that's needed to give the parents comfort.

Mrs. Nash said most CP victims are able to proceed right through school, but "you can't generalize. They may be able to attain a University degree, but it depends on the extent to which the child suffers the disease."

Denise's education doesn't stop when school gets out.

"We think it's important to let her experience everything we can possibly manage. If we don't, she won't learn," Mrs. D. said.

But even the exposure has to start all over again. Denise had been to hockey games countless times. But the one she attended last week was the first since the accident, and things like skates had to be explained again.

"I look out the window and remember her running over to the park, and now she has trouble crawling up on the chesterfield. But you just have to keep talking yourself out of feeling sorry for yourself," says Mrs. D.

DRINKERS BALD EARLIER

NEW YORK (Reuter) — To avoid baldness, avoid daily drinking, smoking excessively and emotional upheaval, says a book published Sunday.

Excessive intake of coffee and salt can also encourage baldness, syndicated columnist Marylou McKenna writes in her book, Revitalize Yourself.

"Daily drinking will interfere with the normal hair replacement pattern," she warns.

"The mature male who consumes at least a total of two drinks daily on a regular basis is corroding his chances of maintaining his youthful appearance and sharp thinking abilities for extra years during the middle decades," she says.

Alcohol washes away vitamin B-12, riboflavin and thiamine in the system, also causing puffiness and reddish skin coloring, she says. Mrs. McKenna suggests taking a B-complex vitamin capsule or brewer's yeast when drinking.

The book notes that cigarette smoke dehydrates not only scalp and facial tissues, causing balding and wrinkles, but also depletes sexual vigor in males. She says vascular experts suggest that "the smoking habit acts to shrink and ossify the glandular network to semen at the time of sexual intercourse," the book says.

But love-making can be improved by doing certain breathing exercises outlined in the book, she says.

Abortion Death Total Declines

LONDON (AP) — Abortion remained the largest cause of maternal deaths in the three-year period 1967-1969 in England and Wales, the department of health reported. But a figure of 117 deaths represented a decrease—from the 153 recorded in the 1952-1954 period, it added.

Schools 'Over-Protect' Students

duncan cowichan

Duncan Bureau Phone: 746-6181

NORTH COWICHAN — There is too much supervision and over-protection of children in the school system, Cowichan school board candidate Lorne Campbell told a meeting here Monday evening.

"We over-protect our children with so much supervision from kindergarten to Grade 12, then we turn them out in the jungle and wonder why they can't make it," he said. "We cater to them too much."

Campbell, from Cowichan Bay, and a trustee for two years, said there could be less supervision is weekend sports.

"Students should learn to fight some of their own batt;es," he said. "They should start about Grade eight. I don't mind my kids coming home with a bloody nose once in a while."

Campbell is one of 10 candidates competing for five seats on the board. Elections for school trustees as well as civic seats will be held Saturday. For the first time school trustees will be elected at large rather than with the ward system.

Trustee Gerald Allester of Duncan, who has been on the board for the past five months, said, "I have just barely started learning about being a trustee. There is a lot to learn. A person needs a year to be of any value."

Evelyn Paskin, of Duncan feels there should be a woman representative on the all-male school board.

She would like to see school grounds, playing fields and gyms designed to benefit the whole community.

Robert Bruce of North Cowichan and W. R. Novis of Duncan want better discipline in the schools.

Bruce feels that if there is more discipline young qualified people would accept responsibility.

Novis said there should be better guidelines set down for discipline. These should be set by parents, teachers and trustees.

Ken Hasanen, of Cowichan Bay, who ran unsuccessfully in the recent provincial and federal elections, told the group that he will demand better performance from the district's administration.

Dr. Gerald Philippson of Chemainus had been on the Ladysmith School Board for four and a half years until it was abolished in August to amalgamate with Cowichan and Nanaimo School Districts.

Philippson, who was board chairman until August, said he would like to continue as a school trustee for the Chemainus area to see through his commitment to amalgamation.

Dave Haywood of North Cowichan, who was board chairman for two of his three-and-a-half years as school trustee, told the small gathering he is looking forward to the day Lake Cowichan School District amalgamates with Cowichan. He feels the area will benefit with a centralized administration.

Current board chairman Dave Bradbury of Mill Bay said that if public relations between the school board and the public could be improved many problems and misconceptions could be more easily solved.

North Cowichan aldermanic contestant Dennis Hogan, who has been on council for nine years, said he is running on his record.

Perry Ross said he would like to get on council to see some of the election promises carried out. He feels that better communication is needed between council and ratepayers.

Archie Stevenson, who has just completed his first year as alderman, said he will continue to work for many projects he has supported throughout the year.

Some of these items are continued development of community parks and playing fields and maintaining roads and streets at their present standards.

Family Flees House Blaze

NORTH COWICHAN — A young couple and their month-old child escaped from their burning home here early this morning.

Jack and Kathy McGregor, 3343 Lake Cowichan Rd., were awakened by choking smoke.

More than $5,000 smoke and structural damage was caused to the house belonging to Dennis McGregor.

North Cowichan south-end fire chief Peter Henry said his department was able to save the house next door.

"When we arrived the house was really hot and singed. A few windows were blown out from the intense heat," Henry said.

The fire was discovered at 2:10 a.m. by Mr. and Mrs. James White, who live across a field from the McGregors.

Mrs. White said when her husband arrived home from work they had looked out the window at the snow.

"Five minutes later we looked out and flames shot out of nowhere," she said.

Cause of the fire is not known.

Salvager Fined $100

DUNCAN — Log salvager George Roys was fined $100 in provincial court here Monday for failing to mark logs he had collected in Sansum Narrows.

Court was told that Roys had been stopped by the marine detachment of the RCMP Nov. 16 with 18 unmarked logs in tow.

Roys told Judge Lance Heard that, although he is aware the logs must be marked, "it's physically impossible to mark the ones that are low in the water when you first pick them up."

Roys said he had marked the high floating logs and intended to mark the others when he boomed them.

He pointed out that the low ones are a hazard to other boats, especially in a storm.

He said the law should encourage salvagers to collect logs which are a menace to navigation rather than make it more difficult.

Auditor-General Again Says Grits Hamper Watchdog Role

CALGARY (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson said Monday the Trudeau Liberal government is continuing its direct efforts to hamper his ability to function properly as public watchdog over federal spending.

He said in a speech his latest attempts to redress the situation were turned down as recently as two weeks ago.

His speech to the Calgary chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors included a strong charge that the Trudeau Liberals have made "a direct attempt to impair" the functions of his office, a stout defence of the office, and a plea that he be given the proper tools to do his job.

He reminded listeners of one of the biggest government bloopers his branch uncovered, the soaring cost of refitting the aircraft carrier Bonaventure which was later sold for scrap.

It was originally estimated the refit would cost $8 million. The final cost was $17,108,090 and the carrier was later sold as scrap for $875,000.

A move was made in 1969 to hog-tie his department, Henderson said. The treasury board, the cabinet committee that rules on expenditures, acted to downgrade "all of our senior positions," he said.

The move meant that his senior officers would each "face a loss of between $1,000 and $3,000 a year," leaving many of them no choice but to leave the office.

But although he continued to protest to have the downgrading reversed, "only two weeks ago they turned us down again."

He told the institute this means his annual report to Parliament on government spending will be late again.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, the Liberal minority government was urged Tuesday to take steps to extend Henderson's term. He is due to retire in March, 1973.

"The ability to engage staff, freedom and independence are essential for the office of auditor general to permit the scrutiny and reporting about public spending," said G. W. Baldwin, Progressive Conservative house leader.

Baldwin also said Monday the Trudeau government will be called to account for the auditing of the books of Canadian National Railways and Air Canada being switched from one auditing firm to another, without the approval of parliament.

Under the law parliament each year must designate the auditing firm to handle the annual audit for the two government-owned companies.

He said the lucrative contract has been shifted from the firm of Touche, Ross and Company of Montreal to the firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company of Toronto at the instigation of former finance Minister Edgar Benson.

$80B Budget For Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence spending in the coming fiscal year will not be cut as anticipated, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said Monday, but instead will top $80 billion.

Laird said the total for his department in fiscal 1974 will go up at least $4 billion over the current $76 billion figure, mostly due to increased manpower costs.

Grant Hopes Dashed

The provincial government announced Monday the amount of grants it will pay to B.C. municipalities in lieu of property taxes, throwing cold water on Victoria finance committee chairman Tom Christie's hope of getting an increase this year.

The rate is based on 15 mills, and Christie had called for an increase to 44 mills.

The grant comes to $307,632.38 for Victoria, highest in the province. In total, the government will pay out $1,144,229.76 to local governments.

If Christie had got his way, the government would have paid Victoria more than $554,000. Christie had argued that the federal government paid the equivalent of 44 mills on property it owns in the city, and the province should do the same.

Skagit Meet On Dec. 11

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and B.C. Lands Minister Bob Williams have agreed to meet on Dec. 11 to plan a halt to the Skagit Valley flood scheme.

Williams had already announced the government's intention to prevent completion of an earlier agreement of the International Joint Commission which aimed at supplying electric power to Seattle.

The flooding of the recreational area of the Skagit would occur on construction of a dam on the Ross River near the Canada-U.S. border.

Williams Hires Land Consultant

The provincial government has hired a land policy consultant to work in the office of Lands Minister Bob Williams.

Norman Pearson, a planner who was formerly assistant director of the Greater Vancouver Regional District, will receive a salary of $1,630 per month.

Bobby's a Chess Whiz . . . And He's Only Five

NEW YORK — Five-year-old Robert Le Donne got hooked on chess last summer while watching the Bobby Fischer-Boris Spassky world championship matches discussed and simulated on television. He decided to learn to play.

"His talents are extraordinary," according to Shelby Lyman, the chess master who was the TV host of the matches.

Lyman says Robert's mind tends to wander, and his playing is uneven. But the boy seems to have a natural affinity for choosing lines of attack, for moving the pieces about the board in a pre-planned way.

While Lyman was cautious in the characterizing his charge's general intelligence, he said Robert had learned to read at four and had become an expert Monopoly player before taking up chess.

Robert, if he continues to develop, could surpass Fischer's achievement of becoming a grandmaster at 15, Lyman said.

BLACKBURN, England — For shoe magnate Tommy Ball, 55, inviting a few friends round for a house-warming party meant a sumptuous feast for more than 2,000. Guests were greeted with a spread of 200 pounds of black pudding and sausages, two roasted oxen, 1,500 bottles of wine and 1,000 pints of ale. "Didn't want any of them to go without," the Lancashire millionaire said after the party.

LIVERPOOL, England — Susan Weller, 6, could not afford a stamp for her letter to Santa Claus. So she drew one on an envelope.

The post office endorsed the envelope and delivered it to Liverpool toymaker Jim Gilmore, who said he would return the envelope to Susan "because it could become a collector's item."

NEWBORN, England — Six-year-old Alan Mosscrop's teacher wanted to teach him not to bite people. So she bit him.

A spokesman at Newburn Primary School said the teacher was reprimanded and dismissed. Alan's father said the incident occurred after the teacher accused the boy of biting another student.

"The teacher took hold of Alan's hand and bit it," Mosscrop said. "Alan says teeth-marks were left on his hand."

SAN FRANCISCO — A mammoth mugger thought he'd picked the perfect victim when he spotted a little old lady feeding pigeons in Golden Gate Park.

The young thief, described by police as a 14-year-old standing six-foot-four and weighing 280 pounds, accosted Ruth Bowers, a 64-year-old weighing 90 pounds, and demanded her money.

Mrs. Bowers sprayed him in the face with a can of dog repellent, jabbed him in the ribs with her umbrella, and then flagged down a passing police car.

The youth was picked up a few minutes later on a street corner outside the park and Mrs. Bowers went back to feeding the pigeons.

LONDON — Charlie Chaplin, 83, is preparing to make another film.

It will be called The Freak.

He plans to direct it as well as play a small part, but the leading roles will be played by two of his daughters, Josephine and Victoria.

Chaplin hopes to start shooting some time next year in England.

PRINCESS ANNE: ROMANCE RUMORED

LONDON — Princess Anne dated a lieutenant in the Queen's Dragoons twice during the weekend and spurred rumors of a royal romance.

Anne and Lieut. Mark Phillips, 24, like the princess a top equestrian, stayed until the small hours at a Saturday night hunt ball near Leyburn in Yorkshire.

A woman member of the hunt said afterward: "Anne and Mark were on the floor for just about every slow dance.

"They seemed a little embarrassed, as so many people were watching them."

The previous night, Anne, 22, and Phillips went to a ball given by his regiment, the 1st Queen's Dragoon Guards, also in Yorkshire.

Phillips was a guest at the silver wedding party Nov 21, given by Anne and her brother, Prince Charles, for the Queen and Prince Philip.

FOLLOW THIS VICTORIA ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

THE WIG & DICKIE CABARET at The Wilson Motor Inn, 850 Blanshard St., is the place where Music, Fun and Laughter start but never end. If you haven't seen George McDowall and The Lads then you have missed the best entertainment in Victoria. It's just like an English Inn where young and old gather in the evenings to join in the singing, have some chuckles and a good time. See it for yourself. For reservations call The Wig & Dickie at 385-6787. Open Tues. - Sat., from 8:30 p.m.

The Old Bailey Beefeater is THE PLACE for those who like to sink their teeth into a succulent thick slice of prime rib smothered in its own natural juices. The complete dinner is a delight including hors d'oeuvres, tossed salad, a small loaf of bread, garlic or regular butter, baked potato and a selection of taste tempting cheeses for dessert. And believe it or not the price is only $4.50 or just $3.75 if you order the English cut. Try this the next time you're going out for dinner. You'll love the English mood of the authentic Old Bailey Beefeater at The Wilson Motor Inn, Blanshard at Courtenay.

Ferns Are Really Ornamental Asparagus

Two house plants known as ferns by most indoor gardeners are really not ferns at all but ornamental asparagus plants.

Basically, the vegetable asparagus and the ornamental asparagus require similar growing conditions allowing for the fact that the vegetable grows outdoors and the others indoors in pots.

Asparagus plumosus has the filmy green foliage most often referred to as "fern," but it has neither fronds nor spores to warrant the name. In the house, insignificant little yellowish green flowers form in summer on mature plants, occasionally followed by a black berry or two. These contain the seed from which new plants can be grown.

The natural habit of A. plumosus is trailing. In the house this is a bit of a nuisance for the stems can be eight feet long. Its natural environment in S. Africa allows the plant to climb by means of rather wicked small spines which develop on the stems. A variety "nana" is dwarf and more compact.

The chief complaint against A. plumosus and the related A. sprengeri with bright green flat, needle-like leaves, is that suddenly the foliage becomes yellow and drops.

This is practically a disaster when it occurs in a spick and span living room just when invited guests are expected, for the fragments cling to everything in sight.

Prevention is easier than a cure as in most ills. Once the yellowing of asparagus foliage commences, you might as well cut the stems before the leaves drop. You will be saved the mess at least.

We know the vegetable asparagus produces abundant tender stems if we provide deep fertile soil to hold moisture in summer. It likes also cool growing weather and humidity of seacoast or lake.

The same principles apply to growing the ornamental asparagus in pots. Give them a soil rich in humus supplied by old manure and well-rotted compost material. Add sand for free drainage of excess moisture.

Do not try to grow the plants at a house temperature above 70 degs. F. When about 65 degs. F. use a mist spray of water over the foliage for humidity.

Never let the roots dry out. Repot in March if the pot seems full of roots. And either grow your indoor asparagus as trailing basket plants or as climbers on a light wooden support.

Only thus can you keep them out of your hair and at the same time get decoration value from your plants.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is presented as a bridge mystery. You are informed that our South declarer committed an error in the play of his game contract, and thereby went down to defeat. Can you find South's error?

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

♡ K Q 7 5 2
◇ K J 10
♣ A 6 5

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♠	2♡	2♠	4♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

West's opening lead of the two of spades was taken by dummy's ace, after which the three of trumps was led. When East followed suit with the six, South put up his queen. When West discarded a spade on this lead, declarer's contract was now unmakable, since he had to lose two trump tricks, in addition to a spade and a diamond. What was declarer's error?

It is rather obvious that if the four outstanding trumps had been divided either 2-2 or 3-1, declarer would have lost just one trump trick as he played the hand. The only distribution that could hurt declarer was if one of the opponents happened to possess all four trumps. Thus declarer should have given thought to the possibility of the existence of this latter distribution. Had he done so, he could have overcome it.

In the abstract, it would be a pure guess as to which opponent had all four trumps, if either did. But in the actual set-up, declarer had an important clue; East had opened the bidding, and the North-South hands contained 25 high-card points. Surely East, rather than West, figured to have the ace of hearts — and, hence, East, in this case, could be the only defender who might have the four missing trumps.

Thus, to guard against this possibility, at trick two declarer should have led dummy's jack of hearts, East winning with the ace as West failed to follow suit. East would then cash a spade trick, after which he would lead, let us say, a club.

Upon winning the trick with the board's queen, declarer would lead the nine of trumps. This would be covered by East's ten and taken by South's queen. Dummy would then be re-entered via the club king, and the four of trumps would be played. East would now be a "dead duck," for his remaining doubleton 8-6 of trumps would be entrapped by South's K-7. Thus declarer's only trump loser would have been to East's ace.

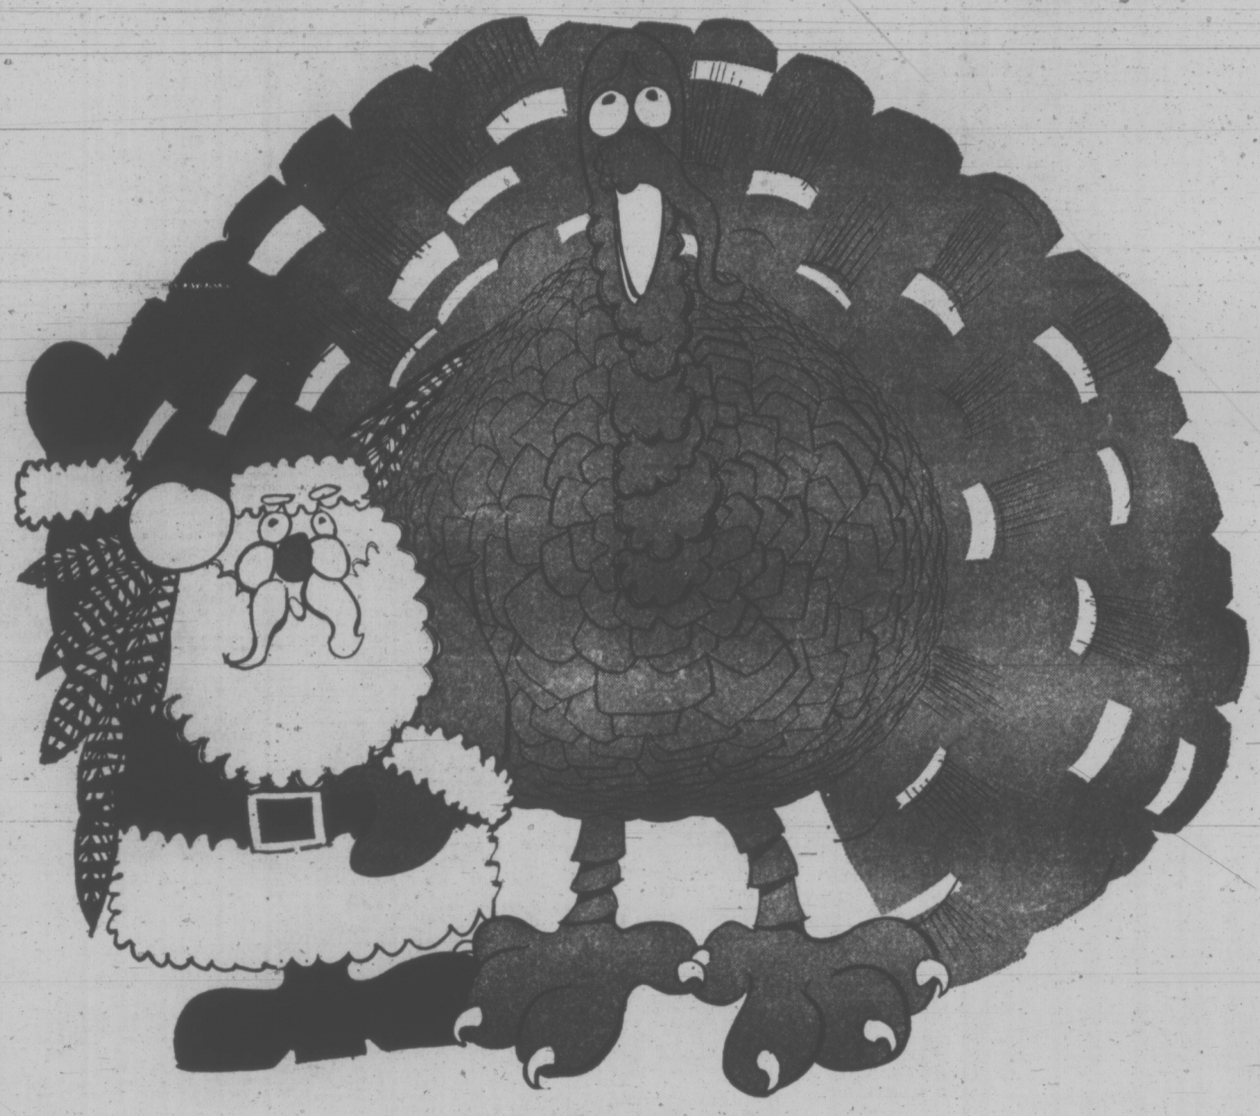
'TIS THE SEASON TO BE JOLLY!



. . . Time to Start After Holiday Cash with Classified Advertising in this Paper!

Since there's so much to do in a few short weeks, the earlier you start planning, the more fun you'll have. The difference between a never-to-be-forgotten holiday season, and a rather ordinary one, can be the money you easily raise with Classified Ads.

The very things Classified shoppers are looking for are those worthwhile things your family no longer uses and enjoys. You quickly reach cash buyers for trains, bikes, sports equipment, cameras, musical instruments, appliances, home furnishings and other things you want to turn into cash with Classified Ads.

Here's how easy it is to put the money-making magic of Classified Ads to work for you. Just go through your home and make a list of the desirable things you own but aren't using. Then dial the number below for a pleasant, helpful Ad-Visor. She will quickly help you write a result-getting ad.

Why wait? Avoid sticking your neck out too far on your budget . . . start your money-making ad today. It's such an easy way to make sure this holiday season will be happily remembered for a long, long time.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HOLLISTER — Adian James. In loving memory of a dear son, brother and friend, taken away Dec. 5, 1971.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
Thy absent in his smile, silent in his voice
He is never more than a thought away.
—Mom, Carol, his girl friend, Kathy and best friend, Mike.

WORTH — In memory of our beloved daughter, Judith Mary Worth (nee Elliott), who died suddenly, December 5, 1971.
Without a farewell spoken
With no one to breathe a silent prayer
To hear her voice, to see her smile
To sit and talk with her awhile
To be together in the same old way
Would be our dearest wish today
Dear Lord, forgive a silent tear
A constant wish that she were here
Others are taken, yes we know,
But she was ours and we loved her so.
—Forever loved and missed by Mon and Dad, sisters Kathy and Colleen, brothers Jim and David, husband Tom, and Grandparents.

WORTH — In loving memory of Judith Mary Worth.—Gran and Pa, Aunty Margaret and Uncle Lee.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Tongue Provides Good Indicator

When I was a boy, the first thing a doctor did to me when he came to the house was to say, "stick out your tongue." As a child I wondered, and doubtless many laymen wonder, what a doctor can learn by looking at the person's tongue. Now, in the journal "Patient Care," I find a big article on sore tongues and various signs of disease that trouble with the tongue can show.

For example, the writer says that pallor and fading of some of the surface tissue of the tongue may be the first sign of loss of iron or folic acid. A special type of redness may suggest that there is a pernicious anemia, due to a lack of vitamin B12. If the tongue trouble is due to a lack of other vitamins, such as riboflavin or niacin, the patient may be a food faddist who is on some extreme diet, or he may be an alcoholic, who fasts for long periods of time while he is heavily drinking, or he may be a psychotic person who does not eat much.

Heavy pipe-smoking can lead to the production of small red or whitish spots on the tongue or palate. A person with a red tongue may have been taking some antibiotic, perhaps penicillin. Even aspirin may cause distress, especially if the person keeps it in his mouth for too long a time. In certain persons, one of the tranquilizing drugs can produce distress in the tongue. Rarely, a toothpaste or mouthwash, or a chewing gum, will have irritated the tongue.

Sometimes, an injury on the tongue can be due to a rough place on a tooth. In one case reported in the article quoted, an ulcerated tongue healed when a crown was removed from a lower left molar tooth. Strangely, an ulceration can be due to tiny galvanic electric currents which can be produced between two neighboring tooth fillings of dissimilar metals. In this case, the patient's tongue remained well until the gold crown was replaced with an amalgam filling. Then the white painful areas on the tongue came back. Evidently, the crown and the filling had produced an electric current.

The tongue's appearance may be changed by some neurologic disturbance, an early diabetes, a thyroid deficiency or some psychic or nervous trouble. The abnormal tongue, may be found during brief spells of very severe pain in the throat or tongue, similar to those of "tic douloureux," a disease which tends to afflict elderly women.

DOWN and OUT
It means what it says! The "down" payment is small enough and you'll hardly miss it—we're banking on that part that we'll go "out" one after another by the score. We operate on the policy that volume sales turnover is the way to keep everyone happy—with "Honda".
H — O — N — D — A
We've got all the models, row upon row of them and all the sparkling colors that Honda is famous for. If you shouldn't see what you want at 1st glance—ask a "Honda Helper". It's probably at the bottom of a crate upon crate in the corner of our vast warehouse Showroom!
MINI TRAIL 250
Go anywhere you please, take it in your car or boat!

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

A SUB-ZERO ORDEAL FOR 3 YOUNG BOYS

CALGAY (CP) — Three boys were rescued by RCMP early today after spending 31 hours inside a vehicle stuck on a snow-bound mountain road.

Their ordeal, in sub-zero temperatures, began Sunday night when their father's four-wheel-drive vehicle got stuck.

The four remained with the vehicle overnight and after it ran out of fuel Monday morning the father, Fred Kopmann of Calgary, set out for help.

He stumbled into a power plant 15 hours later to set off the rescue which took more than four hours to complete because of fog and clogged roads.

An RCMP spokesman in Banff said it is "amazing that they are alive; it's an incredible survival story."

The boys, dressed only in light clothing and huddling under a single blanket to keep warm, told each other stories to prevent themselves from falling asleep but told rescuers they never doubted their father would get help.

The RCMP said the Kopmann family had been in Canada only three years and were apparently unfamiliar with the mountain winter when they set out to drive the Kananaskis Road.

U.S. Military Reviews Calley Sentencing

From AP-REUTER

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (CP) — A military court has begun a review of Lieut. William Calley's conviction in the My Lai massacre following an appeal by Calley's lawyers that his 20-year prison sentence was too harsh.

"I think he has had his lesson—'way more severe than I think is justified," said George Latimer, Calley's civilian lawyer, in portraying Calley's actions at My Lai as those of a young officer responsibly carrying out orders.

The three-judge army court of military review is expected to announce early next year whether it will sustain the conviction and uphold the sentence, reduce it or set Calley free. The court cannot increase the penalty.

Paul Narkin, a lawyer representing Buddhist leaders in South Vietnam, filed a $400 million lawsuit in federal court in San Francisco Monday, seeking damages from Calley and the U.S. government.

Narkin said 425 civilians were killed in My Lai and the 57 survivors of the massacre have gone unaided.

UNDER HOUSE ARREST

Narkin noted that Calley is under house arrest in his own apartment with a telephoone, TV set and a girl-friend who can visit him when she wants. "That is not how the My Lai survivors are living," he said.

Calley, 29, was convicted nearly two years ago of murdering at least 22 Vietnamese civilians at May Lai during a search-and-destroy mission March 16, 1968. He was sentenced to life in prison but that subsequently was reduced to 20 years.

Throughout nearly six hours of oral arguments Monday, Latimer pictured Calley as the scapegoat, noting that of 25 men charged in connection with the massacre only one—Calley—was convicted.

The defence argued that Calley should not have been convicted of any crime greater than manslaughter, contending that he acted without malice, and without malice there could be no murder charge.

Countered the government: "For the sake of expediency, that man summarily executed a group of people."

SAYS COURT ILLEGAL

In asking the review court to overturn the conviction, Calley's lawyers argued that the court martial was illegal because he was held without consent beyond his discharge date; that there had been influence from President Nixon on down the chain of command, and that they were prevented from questioning such potential witnesses as Gen. William Westmoreland about outside influence.

The government answered that there was no attempt to exercise influence and that anything done by Westmoreland was in his official capacity as either commander of American troops in Vietnam or as army chief of staff.

Should the review court affirm the conviction and sentence, Calley could petition the court of military appeals, the next step in the review process. In a process separate from the legal steps, the army clemency and parole board is reviewing his appeal for clemency.

Nixon has said he will make the final review for Calley, who is confined in house arrest at Fort Benning.

Health Costs Minor: Doctor

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Gustave Gingras, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said Monday that more money must be devoted to meeting rising health costs.

He said that in Ontario, where health costs are among the highest in Canada, less than $6 per capita a month is spent for comprehensive medical care.

"That's considerably less than the average smoker spends on cigarettes or that I spend on my cigars," he told members of the Montreal Medical Surgical Society.

He said politicians must get their priorities straight when they decide how much to spend on health care.

"Personally I have never seen a specific figure quoted or even the criteria for establishing it.

"I have no objection to grown men being paid $40,000 to $50,000 a year to play a boy's game on ice or on a football field simply to entertain us.

"But as long as we accept that standard, I will continue to maintain that the nursing supervisor in a cardiac intensive care unit is grossly underpaid."

He said life and death questions about a patient's welfare soon may be decided "in board rooms by the finance committees and treasury board" and the politicians, civil servants and economists who make these decisions cannot do so without "appropriate priorities and perspectives."

Dr. Gingras said the medical education system must produce specialists and generalists to meet actual health needs and the medical profession itself must take steps to meet criticisms levelled against it.

Business, Labor Discuss Development

Representatives of the B.C. business community, labor spokesmen, university officials and former federal cabinet minister Eric Kierans met in Parksville at the weekend to discuss a general plan for B.C.'s proposed industrial development corporation.

Attorney General Alex Macdonald said Monday there was no government policy formulated at the conference, but described it as a useful session.

"The government promised when we proposed the industrial development corporation that there would be the widest possible discussion before any legislation was drafted," Macdonald said.

He described participants in the conference as people from "the business life of B.C.", spokesmen from the B.C. Federation of Labor, university officials and government experts.

Kierans has been mentioned recently as being appointed as a consultant on the industrial development corporation proposal. He has recently concluded similar services for the province of Manitoba.

FREEWAY AIR HEART HAZARD

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Freeways harbor enough air pollution during rush hours to endanger seriously the health of heart-disease victims, a study shows.

Carbon monoxide inhaled during a freeway ride of 90 minutes increases the likelihood heart pain among coronary patients and causes serious cardiac changes, apparently from a reduction in oxygen, concluded the study by the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

The study said carbon monoxide, even at what were believed to be relatively low levels, can adversely affect the heart.

Carbon monoxide, an ingredient of smog, replaces vital oxygen in the blood stream, which is especially dangerous for persons already suffering from reduced oxygen reaching their hearts.

SOVIET CHAMPION SETS CHESS PACE

The draw after 18 moves gave Karpov, 20, a total of nine points with three rounds left for the $4,000 top prize.

Lajos Portisch of Hungary, the only player to beat the Russians, and Paul Keres of Russia were tied for second place with eight points.

Portisch drew with Henrique Mecking of Brazil while Keres' games against winless American Kenneth Smith was adjourned on the 41st move.

Denmark's Bent Larsen climbed back into contention with a 40-move win over Donald Byrne of the United States.

Larsen held 7½ points today and had sole possession of fourth place.

Young Duncan Suttles of Vancouver protected his slim mathematical chances of winning the top prize with a 40-move win over Mexico's Mario Campos Lopez. The result gave Suttles seven points with an adjourned game to complete.

Importantly, Suttles inched closer to qualifying for grandmaster status, which he can acquire during this tournament with the right combination of victories. Suttles has won five, tied four and lost two matches for seven points.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Victoria man was sentenced to six months in prison for possession of heroin by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Monday.

Thomas Sorensen, 22, 301-903 Esquimalt Road was arrested by drug squad officers June 16 in the company of other persons, at least one of whom was a known heroin addict.

A spoon and a syringe were found on the premises.

Defence counsel Ted Pollard argued that Sorensen may have been "the active or passive observer of what was going on" in the night in question. Pollard also said that the accused had a good family background and work record.

In passing sentence, Judge Ostler noted the Crown's opposition to probation and a fine in heroin possession cases.

"I think sentence should be somewhat less in this case," he said, but believed a prison sentence necessary" in the interests of consistency" for heroin possession.

A 19-year-old woman was sent to prison for a total of six months and put on 18 months' probation for charges involving breaking and entering and theft, possession of stolen goods over $200, false pretences under $200, uttering, theft under $200 and breach of probation.

Heather Lynn Tiffany, of no fixed address, broke an April 1 probation order by committing what Ostler termed "a rampage of different types of crime" stemming, in the judge's view, from the accused's dependence on heroin.

She was sentenced to six months concurrent on the charges of false pretences, uttering and theft under $200. She was given six months and 18 months probation on the breaking and entering and theft charge and two months concurrent for breach of probation.

Four persons were each given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation for possession of marijuana.

Karen Elizabeth Anderson, 20, of 1220 Beaudley Ave., Frederick Miller, 20, of 4104 Tuxedo Dr., Grant James Williams, 17, of 1061 McBriar Ave., and George Ernest Pears, 28, 755 Lavender, all pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Arnold Alexander Saba, 25, of Vancouver, was fined $200 for theft of a 43 cent tube of mentholated medicated stick from Shoppers Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas.

Saba pleaded guilty to the offence, committed Monday morning. Ostler gave the accused 10 months to pay, noting his straitened economic circumstances.

Eric Woods, 74, of no fixed address, was sentenced to 30 days for causing a disturbance in Centennial Square Dec. 3 by being drunk.

Noting several previous terms of imprisonment for similar offences, Ostler commented, "You'll be in early for Christmas."

In traffic court, Kent Freeman Henley, 30, of 109-2646 Cook, was sent to prison for 14 days and prohibited from driving in Canada for three months by Judge Harold Alder.

Henley, charged with impaired driving, had an extensive record of traffic offences.

Frank Parsons, 42, of 1106 Hampshire was fined $350 for impaired driving. Ralph Stanley Mattson of Alberni was fined $350 and prohibited from driving between the hours of 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. for a period of three months for impaired driving.

Arctic Seabed Assaulted From Plastic Igloo Base

By JOHN Le BLANC

TORONTO (CP) — A scientific expedition from here has set up the first underwater workshop beneath the Arctic ice.

Called Sub-Igloo, it is a transparent plastic sphere eight feet in diameter sitting on the sea bottom and serving as a base for teams of divers carrying out tests and explorations in Resolute Bay 600 miles inside the Arctic circle.

Sub-Igloo was conceived by Dr. Joseph MacInnis of Toronto, a world-noted underwater researcher, who flew north with its components and supervised putting it together off barren Cornwallis Island in Barrow Strait.

The station was fabricated here by five companies who contributed material and know-how to the project conceived by the James A. MacInnis Foundation, an underwater research organization named for Dr. MacInnis' father.

"It's been a crazy project in some ways," said Don King Sr., president of King Plastics Ltd., who co-ordinated the undertaking.

"It's such a simple idea, yet the technology and the manufacturing expertise involved is quite sophisticated. It all had to be planned to go together underwater like a space station, by men working in a hostile environment, under conditions that slow down any movement, and working constantly against the clock."

EXCITING ADVENTURE

Just before he boarded a big Hercules transport plane carrying Sun-Igloo's parts and the expedition north, Dr. MacInnis described the venture as "very exciting."

"It will be the first time anyone has put a manned station under the ice," he said, "you could compare it to an explorer's tent. It will enable teams of divers — four to six at a time — to work eight to 10 hours a day under the surface."

Before the workout concludes late this month, he said, the group probably will have spent more man-hours underwater than have been put in during all the history of the Arctic.

"This is important if we are going to understand the continental shelf and important if we are going to understand our planet," he added.

There were plans for the expedition to be joined by experts from such bodies as the Canadian Navy, the United States office of naval research, the National Geographic Society and by marine biologists including two from Memorial University in St. John's, Nfld., and New York University.

Marine biology of Resolute Bay was only one of a wide variety of subjects to be studied by men working out of the station a half-mile offshore including — in addition to the performance of Sub-Igloo itself — the geology of the area, performance of divers in freezing water and evaluation of various support systems for divers.

Blindness Overcome, He Lives His Life

TORONTO (CP) — The Consumer's Gas man turned on a cellar light switch to take the meter reading, and jumped back, mouth agape, at the scene before him.

A grey-haired man, who moments before had been working in total darkness, was hunched over a workbench, wood pieces and an electric saw.

The meter reader approached the lady of the house and exclaimed: "That guy down there nearly gave me a heart attack!"

Beulah Fraser laughed. "That's my husband, Lloyd," she said. "It makes no difference to him whether the light is on or off because he is blind."

To Lloyd Fraser, blindness has proved only a minor handicap. His skills at the carpentry bench have won him the praise of Toronto Mayor Dennison on behalf of the Citizen's Centennial Hobby-Art Exhibition.

Lloyd Fraser, 62, recalls vividly the year 1941, when blowing dirt caused an eye infection and subsequent blindness to him. He says that was "the time I wanted to throw myself in the Don River."

But Mr. Fraser did find work, first with a pharmacist, then working with car seat springs and assembling flashlights before landing a job in a foundry, lasting more than 17 years.

But then almost overnight he and 148 others were laid off as the company changed ownership.

Mr. Fraser said he was again on the verge of feeling useless. Then the Canadian National Institute for the Blind decided to train him as a concession stand operator. "Since then I've worked regularly and paid the bills."

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

OAK BAY

John Eamer-Goult
For ALDERMAN

Some areas in Oak Bay have long been zoned for apartment use. The vast majority of these allow the construction of what we all deplore as the "three-storey strawberry box". This was the zoning which applied to the area immediately north of the Rudyard Kipling on Beach Drive. In order to prevent construction of "strawberry boxes" in what has been described as one of the prime residential areas in Canada, Council amended the zoning. Developers were required to build with masonry or concrete, 100% underground parking was made mandatory and fully landscaped set-backs on all sides were increased.

At present further changes of a similar nature in other areas are being explored. I believe that future Councils should continue to improve standards of apartment construction in areas presently zoned. The result will be a better Oak Bay.

Crude is pumped into tanks

Spilled Oil Covers 5 Acres

MORINVILLE, Alta. (CP) — Crews Monday night had collected more than half of 350,000 gallons of oil spilled when two pipelines ruptured during the weekend, a Home Oil spokesman said.

The oil, enough to fill 10,000 barrels, covered about five acres of agricultural land in two locations. The one spill was less than a mile east of here, the other about 14 miles northwest.

Morinville is about 15 miles north of Edmonton.

Richard Verner, pipeline manager for the Calgary-based company, said the cleanup has cost more than $50,000, including the price of the lost oil. About 6,000 barrels had been recovered.

Ditches were dug to pool the oil, which is then pumped into tanker trucks.

Verner said that graders and bulldozers later will scoop up oil-saturated dirt.

The pipelines, which carry oil from Swan Hills in northern Alberta, to Edmonton, both ruptured between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m. Saturday. The breaks were spotted by a patrol aircraft sent out after low pressure was reported by a pumping station.

Rent Strike

CALGARY (CP) — Students in a new apartment residence at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology have started a rent strike to protest the lack of hot water in the building.

The students, also unhappy with heating system controls, have placed their December rent in a trust account which is not to be turned over to the housing corporation until services are improved.

Parole Review

EDMONTON (CP) — Attorney-General Merv Leitch of Alberta says he hopes to see the federal government re-examine its role in the parole system.

Leitch said in an interview the existing system creates some confusion because provinces often just begin rehabilitation or training programs with inmates with provincial jurisdiction when the federal government, with no warning, grants parole.

Killing Queried

EDMONTON (CP) — Reports that a hired killer shot an Edmonton travel agent to death last year must be investigated quickly, attorney-general Merv Leitch says.

He was commenting on information disclosed last week which related to death of Bob Neville on June 13, 1971. Keith Latta, a professor at Queen's University in Kingston, has been sentenced to life in the shooting.

Memorial Trip

WYNYARD, Sask. (CP) — Sixteen residents of this south-central Saskatchewan community are off to France later this week to participate in ceremonies honoring a Canadian who fought with the resistance movement during the Second World War.

The group, which includes Mayor Walter Godyear, is to receive a federal grant of $150 each to help defray the cost of the 10-day trip.

Park Policy

EDMONTON (CP) — A full-scale review of provincial parks legislation and policy is required, Dr. Graham Griffiths, chairman of the Edmonton chapter of the National and Provincial Parks Association says in a letter to the environment conservation authority of Alberta.

Dr. Graham says high visitation rates at national parks could create overcrowding similar to that in the United States. The result in Canada would be a spillover into provincial parks, so provinces should be studying long-term plans for expansion of their systems.

Road Tendered

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government has awarded a contract to build a road from Manigotogan on the east side of Lake Winnipeg to the Island Lake area in northern Manitoba, Premier Ed Schreyer announced.

The premier said the contract for the 280-mile road has been awarded to the Me-ke-si Company Ltd., a newly-incorporated company of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, at a price of $175,000.

Critics Sought

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor Rod Sykes says he has sent more than 100 letters to city organizations seeking support for a committee called the Citizens' Open Government Study.

He hopes his committee will lead to public hearings in the spring into all areas of civic government, including citizen accessability to city hall. Recommendations from the hearings will then go to council for proposed action.

Urban Alternative

REGINA (CP) — The trend toward urbanization in Canada is not inevitable, according to E. I. Wood, Saskatchewan minister of municipal affairs.

Wood told a meeting of the Saskatchewan division of the Community Planning Association the three levels of government must work together to find an alternative to the "city-states" that could result from uncontrolled urbanization. "Why must we all be condemned to living like people do in New York and Tokyo?" he asked.

Soviet Visit Set

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer announced he has accepted the invitation offered last September to meet with trade officials in the U.S.S.R.

The premier said a series of discussions with senior trade officials regarding hydro-electric generators and turbines, as well as tours of small aircraft manufacturing plants and various aspects of agricultural production will be held during a one-week period beginning Dec. 6.

A SWINGER'S LAMENT FOR PIERRE

Times News Services

LONDON — The London Times today lamented the passing of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, swinger.

"Being prime minister of Canada for more than four years has dulled him nearly beyond recognition," the Times said in its gossip column today.

"Yesterday he held a press conference . . . in the same room where, four years ago, he met the British press for the first time at one of the liveliest question and answer sessions to grace a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

"Reporters in miniskirts asked questions about his love life and he parried them with wit and elegance. He spoke strongly and thoughtfully about Canada and his role as its leader.

"Yesterday was a dour contrast. He arrived late, said he could not stay long and mumbled, sometimes nearly injudibly, long, dreary, unimaginative answers . . . he made two half-hearted jokes about the loss of his majority in parliament and that was the end of the entertainment . . .

"Even 50-year-old swingers grow up," the Times said, "which is a shame."

Trudeau completed two days of talks with Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday, and flew back to Canada today.

He said today he was "very gratified" with the British prime minister's reassurances that Canada's viewpoint is fully understood.

Britain joins the European Common Market Jan. 1, and Commonwealth preferential tariffs will be abolished gradually, affecting more than half of Canada's exports to Britain. In 1971, Britain imported $1.3 billion worth of goods from Canada — about eight per cent of Canada's total exports.

Snow Snarls City Traffic, Chill Lingers

Arctic winds from the east unloaded up to four inches of snow on Greater Victoria overnight and the weatherman predicted today that chilly weather will linger several days.

The season's first snowfall in the capital region was limited to about an inch around Victoria but that was enough to make roads slippery, generate traffic tie-ups and lead a number of drivers into the ditch.

In Saanich, police had to deal with about two dozen minor accidents. Colwood RCMP had close to 10, Oak Bay four and there was one each reported in Victoria and Esquimalt.

While municipal road crews were out in full force with sand and salt, it wasn't enough to prevent rushhour delays, particularly on hills.

Allan McQuarrie of the weather office said the weather system which brought the snow rolled out of the Aretic to involve most of North America.

There is no sign of any warming trend for at least several days and a chance of another light snowfall Thursday night or Friday, he said.

Temperatures will dip to 20 "or a little lower" tonight and will likely climb to the low thirties Wednesday. Gales in coastal inlets are to continue with winds averaging about 40 miles an hour.

McQuarrie said the easterly winds picked up moisture from Georgia Strait to drop it as snow on the east coast of

No Skagit Dam: Compensation

Environment Minister Jack Davis today said the federal government is in the process of informing the United States that the flooding of the Skagit Valley in southwestern B.C. "won't occur."

At a press conference this morning with Premier Barrett in Victoria, Davis said he expects that Canada or B.C. will have to pay compensation and that there will be a court case to determine the amount.

"The Skagit flooding won't occur. It's a matter of getting the message through not only to Washington but Seattle City Light (company) so they will stop paying lawyers and economists and so on to carry out further studies on the U.S. side," Davis said.

Neither Barrett nor Davis could give any estimate of what the compensation might amount to.

Barrett said B.C. would help in any way Davis wants.

Barrett also announced a new location for the coal shipping port near Squamish is under study by the provincial and federal governments.

Barrett said there has been no decision yet, but studies are going ahead and one of them could be released in two weeks.

Barrett noted that the original Squamish coal dock site has been scrapped by Davis, and "we agree with that decision."

The new location is the nearby Mamquam channel, which Barrett said has "already been destroyed by logging booms."

Slick Ads and Parents Blamed for Drug Cult

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Slick advertising, profit-hungry manufacturers and pill-taking parents are the real culprits behind the explosion of the drug culture among the young, U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson said today.

Nelson, opening two days of hearings into home remedies for coughs and colds, contended promotion of over-the-counter drugs is "nothing short of scandalous."

He said people in the U.S. pay some $1 billion for home remedies every year, hoping to cure everything from stuffy noses to obesity.

Among the targets for this week's hearings will be such popular cold-fighters as Contac, Dristan, Allerest and Coricidin — products for which Nelson said medical science has found "no convincing evidence" of benefit.

In fact, he said, these products may cause undesirable side effects — particularly if the patient has heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure or thyroid disease.

"These products are at best mostly useless, while many are harmful and even dangerous," Nelson said.

"Most of the drug companies' promotion and advertising of these products is simply a generous mixture of false claims and outright nonsense. While the drug companies deserve to be exposed and censured and the law needs to be tightened to control their advertising, the public itself must share the blame for the fact that we have become a nation of irrational pill-poppers."

In testimony before the committee, a doctor suggested today that hot chicken soup might be as effective as some highly advertised medicines in fighting colds and coughs.

Dr. Sol Katz a Georgetown University, Washington, said "cold preparations containing ingredients such as decongestants, antihistamines, analgesics, anticholinergics, caffeine, etc., are objectionable for many reasons."

Katz said the remedies which combine ingredients may harmfully suppress a cough by also prolonging an infection and drying nasal passages when "what is not what you want to do."

"Youngsters cannot buy 6 per cent beer, but they can go into a drug store and buy a cough remedy with 20 per cent alcohol," Katz said. "They can get a high from that."

Special Features

The Times family section today presents the first of five articles on handicapped children, the extent of their handicap in the province and in Victoria, facilities available for them and their parents.

The series will examine such handicaps as cerebral palsy, muscular distrophy, mental retardation, hyperactivity and autism. Each article will tell the story of one child's suffering and how his family copes with it.

In another special feature today, saanich and Esquimalt aldermanic candidates plus Saanich school trustee candidates list their concerns in the forthcoming Dec. 9 municipal elections on Page 10 today.

SEVERANCE PAY OF $25,000

The three members of the disbanded B.C. Mediation Commission have been given severance settlements of about $25,000 each by the NDP government.

Labor Minister Bill King made the announcement today. Former chairman of the commission, John Parker, is to get a settlement of $25,309. The two former members, Alastair Pollock and Pen Baskin, each get $24,762.

King said the figures were arrived at after "discussions" between the government and the three commissioners.

King said the government did not feel legally obligated to make a monetary settlement with the commissioners "but there was a certain moral obligation."

The commissioners lost their jobs when the government decided to disband the Mediation Commission during the special session of the legislature.

Expanding Labor Force Ups Jobless

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — An estimated 524,000 people were unemployed in November, the highest proportion of the labor force for that month in a decade, Statistics Canada reported today.

The figure was up from 483,000 in October and compared with 503,000 unemployed in November last year.

In B.C. 67,000 were seeking work, the same number as in October and 1,000 more than in November, 1971.

The statistics bureau said the Canadian labor force continued to expand—an unusual occurrence in November—rising to 8.88 million from 8.87 million in October.

But as winter approached all industries except manufacturing cut back on their work forces. There were greater-than-usual job reductions in agriculture and other primary industries.

The result was that 5.9 per cent of the labor force was unemployed last month, compared with 5.4 per cent in October and 5.8 per cent in November last year. The last time the November unemployment rate hit 5.9 per cent was in 1962.

Despite the gloomy November situation, Statistics Canada said the underlying trend showed improvement.

Adjusting the data for the month to reflect the situation if it were not for seasonal factors such as the approach of winter, the bureau said the underlying trend of unemployment fell to 6.6 per cent from 6.9 in October and 7.1 in September. It was also 6.6 in November last year.

The seasonally adjusted figure represents, in effect, an averaging of the unemployment rate for a year. Because of the big swing between high summer activity and the winter letdown, the actual rate usually climbs above the seasonally-adjusted figure in the winter months, and drops below it in the summer.

The actual rate of unemployment rose last winter to 7.7 per cent of the labor force in January, when the seasonally adjusted rate was down to 6.2

Statistics Canada said the increase in unemployment last month was less than usual. So was the decrease in employment. Manufacturing employment usually falls off in November, but it increased this year.

The bureau reported that 56 per cent of the civilian population aged 14 and over was in the labor force last month, showing no reduction for the month. This so-called participation rate was up from 55.7 per cent in November last year and 55.4 per cent in November, 1970.

The high participation rate has been described by the government as one of the unusual factors contributing to high unemployment figures in recent years.

Regionally, unemployment rose in all parts of the country last month except in British Columbia, where it remained the same 7.1 per cent of the labor force, as in October and a year earlier.

The rate rose to 8.4 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, from 7.2 per cent in October and eight per cent in November last year.

Plumber Shot When Pipe Taken for Gun

BELFAST (UPI) — British soldiers killed one plumber and wounded another today in the mistaken belief that pieces of pipe they carried were rifles, the army said.

It appears the soldiers made a mistake and the men were innocent," an army spokesman said.

The troops saw and shot the two men in a derelict house previously used by snipers after gunmen opened fire on their outpost in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district, he said. It was in this same neighborhood that soldiers Monday night killed a 16-year-old gunman.

The slain man — the fifth person killed in four days — was the 651st fatality in more than three years of violence between Roman Catholics and Protestants in Ulster.

An army spokesman said the two men apparently ran to the windows of the house with pieces of pipe and tools in their hands when they heard the gunfire.

"The army deeply regrets their death and injury," the spokesman said.

British soldiers shot and killed two other men and wounded a third during gun battles with snipers in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district Monday night and today.

Violence generally subsided elsewhere in the province Monday in the wake of new legislation enacted in the Irish Republic against the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

BCTF to Probe Campbell River

VANCOUVER (CP) — Adam Robertson, president of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, said Monday he will name an independent commission this week "to take a cold, hard look" at the learning environment in the Campbell River school district.

The commission, he said, was requested by district teachers to investigate what they called the rapidly deteriorating educational climate in all district schools during the last year or so.

Robertson said a request for the investigation was made to him and in September by "a considerable number of school personnel" during a visit to the district.

The BCTF executive agreed to the request and on Nov. 18 instructed Robertson to name the commission and get on with the job, he said.

Robertson said he is unsure how many members to name to the commission although it will be no more than three. Its composition will depend on who is available and whom he can trust to do an objective job.

He said he dictated a letter to Education Minister Eileen Dailly informing her of the commission and planned to do the same for school trustees of the district later this week.

He said the investigation would not be a witch-hunt but would be conducted in a positive and orderly manner.

Robertson said he hopes to elicit the co-operation of the school board, and would not discount the possibility he will ask one district school trustee to sit on the commission.

But if the board refuses to allow the commission access to the schools, he said, the investigation will go ahead although it would be "more complicated and the conclusions less valid."

He said the investigation would take about three days and should be completed before Christmas.

School board chairman Hal Newman was not available for comment, but trustee Marianne Otterson said she would welcome the commission and she agreed with Robertson that the educational climate had deteriorated.

"Everything has been hung up on the seemingly eternal issue of John Young," she said, "so that the board has not been able to occupy itself properly with important matters of educational policy."

Aldermen Present Strong Objections To Closed Sessions

Veil Lifted From Oak Bay Council

Oak Bay council's veil of secrecy was lifted Monday night when three aldermen led a successful move to have in-camera items dealt with in public.

The attack was started by Ald. Shirley Dowell, who asked that in-camera items be brought forward while the press and public were there.

"We have so many in-camera meetings that we do as much business in them as we do in open council," she said.

Ald. John Goult and Ald. Douglas McLelland supported Mrs. Dowell.

McLelland reminded Mayor Frances Elford that council at an earlier meeting had agreed that copies of in-camera items should be available for the press when discussed in front of them

"Copies should be available to them so that they know what we're talking about."

He was told that none were available, that the staff would have to run off copies. Mrs. Elford said the material wasn't available for the press because the staff was "grossly overworked."

McLelland retorted:

"Then let's take half an hour and get them done off (the copies). It's public business when it's brought forward.

"I don't wish to be tedious on this point and you did agree that copies would be available to avoid this situation."

The meeting was suspended until the material was presented to the press.

Earlier in the meeting, McLelland moved that council's special recreation committee stop holding in-camera meetings dealing with the proposed recreation centre.

He said that a great deal of misunderstanding had resulted from the fact that all the committee's meetings had been held in secret.

"There isn't a man, woman, child, dog or cat in Oak Bay that doesn't know where we propose to put the centre," he said.

Council agreed that all business on the recreation program would be public in future except when it involved land purchases.

SNOW IS FOR SLIDING, for dumping your friends in, for melting on your tongue and for making snowballs and in Greater Victoria a winter can sometimes slip past without a chance for any of these things. So the youngsters in the Blanshard School playground made every moment count this morning before the buzzer summoned them to classes. (Bill Halkett photo.)

CPR Blamed For Harbor 'Hucksterism'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Representatives of several sightseeing firms operating from the Causeway today laid the blame for Inner Harbor "hucksterism" squarely at the door of the CPR and Empress Hotel.

This monopoly arrangement, whereby tourists are sold tours for the two lines on all CPR ships, on the dock at Seattle and Victoria and at the Empress itself, means they are "brainwashed" before the operators ever reach them, aldermen were told.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways of controlling build-up of sightseeing vehicles on the Causeway, and to eliminate the offensive accosting of passers-by which has resulted in increasing complaints over the years.

But Bill McClarty, president of London Omnibus Tours Ltd., said as long as one company has "unrestricted solicitation privileges," on property adjacent to the Causeway, any restriction of its competitors is "tantamount to legislating the other companies out of existence."

"Does the city council want a sight-seeing monopoly controlled by the CPR?" he asked.

'Four-Hour Harangue'

In a lengthy brief, McClarty charged that the Causeway problem is due to present unequal competition "resulting from a discriminatory action and the desire of the CPR to milk some small profit out of every facet of the tourist industry."

He said that for about 1,000-2,000 daily visitors, the first impression of Victoria is a "four-hour harangue" over the public address system on the Seattle-Victoria ferry.

"This offensive blast is aimed at convincing the visitor that he must buy his sightseeing ticket from the ship's purser as he will be unable to get reservations by the time he reaches Victoria.

"This is followed by intensive solicitation within the ferry dock unloading area after arrival.

"If solicitation is so offensive on the street in front of the hotel, why is hawking permitted on their ship and on their property? Perhaps it is because the CPR gets a substantial commission on sightseeing sold on their ship, and some tribute from other solicitors on their dock.

"After all, good taste cannot be allowed to interfere with company profits," McClarty said.

'Brainwashed All the Way'

John Olson of Tally-Ho tours made no bones about admitting to the committee that he and his employees "sell like mad" to tourists walking along the Causeway.

"The reason that we have to is that all the cream is taken off the sightseeing business before we even get to the tourists.

"They have been brainwashed all the way across from Seattle and in the Empress before we even get a crack at them."

Also in a brief on behalf of Tally-Ho, A. W. Knapp said $3,000 in daily sales would be "an underestimate" on the sales of the government-owned Pacific Stage and Blue Line buses. On that basis a 15 per cent commission would bring the CPR-Empress income to $450 daily during the June-July-August period.

But he added the actual sum could be double that.

Lawyer Ian Stewart, representing CPR, said this had been his first opportunity to listen to the complaints and he would suggest that they be examined by CPR at the management level.

Referring to complaints of ticket-hawking on the Empress lawns and walks, he said there is a great difference between solicitation on private and public property.

At the end of the discussion it was informally agreed that the bus operators and possibly the Empress Hotel as well will try to come up with their own solution.

Bob Alexander of Victoria Chamber of Commerce urged the operators to get together, or they will find a solution imposed from city hall.

"If you can eliminate the growing physical presence (of buses) and the growing soliciting, it will be of great help to us," said Mayor Peter Pollen.

But, he warned, if there is no voluntary solution, "we will have to impose one," he said.

B.C. Grants Awarded Victorians

Seven Victoria residents have been given scholarship grants by the B.C. government to enable them to continue their studies at cultural instiutions.

Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall announced that a total of 32 grants, amounting to $22,268, had been approved by the government. The awards are for tuition only and are paid directly to the institutions the students attend.

Another Island winner was Danny Hudson of Nanaimo, who was awarded $850 for his study of music.

Contractor Seeking Damages

Ron Smith of Cowie Tree Service Ltd. told North Saanich council Monday that it will be served this month with a writ for damages allegedly incurred when council halted work on a tree-clearing project last January.

Smith, who said he was claiming damages "in excess of $30,000," also told council that he was about to start selective clearing on two large tracts of land in North Saanich.

"I would like council to consider whether they will raise objections before I sign the contract," said Smith, reminding members that he had made similar inquiries before embarking on the contract on A. F. Baines Ltd. property on Lands End Road, late in 1971.

The stop-work order was issued shortly after the 1972 council was sworn in but was rescinded later in January on the advice of the municipal solicitor.

Reverberations of the stop-work order included differences of opinion between the Mayor and the solicitor and complaints from residents of the unfinished clearing job.

Smith was told by Mayor Trevor Davis on Monday that municipal staff would advise him on present bylaws.

Hotel's Approval Increases Saanich Convention Capacity

Construction of the second convention-size hotel in Saanich — the $1.5 million Royal Oak Inn — has been given municipal approval.

A building permit was issued Monday afternoon and construction is expected to be carried over the next six months.

Joseph Isherwood, who with brothers John and Foster are the owners and developers of Royal Oak Inn Ltd., said the new hotel will cater to a maximum 385 convention delegates, based on its assembly-room-cabaret capacity, with parking for about 300 cars.

The hotel also will have a 300-seat public house; coffee shop, dining room and cocktail lounge each with 90 seats, and 62 accommodation rooms.

Property with 535 feet of frontage along Elk Lake Drive adjoins the 263-foot frontage of Royal Oak Motel, a 32-unit business also operated by the Isherwood family.

Last week members of Capital Regional District public works committee inspected the site where the company intends to dispose of its sewage effluent.

A Pollution Control Board permit to treat sewage and hold the discharge in ponds for irrigation purposes has been issued and is valid to the end of 1974, but which time it is expected the Saanich sewer system will be extended to Royal Oak.

The committee was satisfied the system is compatible with Beaver Lake Park and the Colquitz River waterway which adjoin the hotel site.

Joe Isherwood said exterior of the new building would be of French country style compatible with the existing motel structures and 100 feet distant. Setback will be 275 feet on Elk Lake Drive.

Facilities will include two tennis courts, a playground, 3,250-yard nine-hole golf course, horseback riding, hydrotherapy pools and a total of 60 acres of grounds including landscaped parking.

Hotel accommodation is scheduled to open June 1 with the public areas ready a month later.

The hotel was designed by Fred Rowe and general contractor is Dura Constructors Ltd., of Victoria.

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me why moss grows on an asphalt shingle roof, and what, if anything, can be done to remedy the condition? W. B.

A. A local roofing expert says moss will grow on almost any substance. It grows on asphalt shingles if there's an accumulation of dust and dirt on the shingles and a lot of moisture as well, usually after the shingles are seven or eight years old. You can buy an inexpensive moss killer spray from roofers, and also hire someone to spray the shingles. The roofing man doesn't recommend spraying until summer, when you can get three or four days of dry weather after spraying.

Grieve Slams Draft Budget

A provisional budget which holds the North Saanich mill rate at this year's 19.5 mills was received by council Monday.

Finance committee chariman Ald. Paul Grieve criticized the draft budget "because possibilities which will be before the new council are not properly presented."

Certain items could be eliminated and would, he said, result in a mill rate lowered to 17.5 next year.

Nobody Gets Gate In Depot Layoff

Layoff notices have been given to about 13 workers at the Rocky Point ammunition depot but nobody will be actually "going out the gate", a spokesman said today.

He explained that it was part of a long-term plan to standardize ammunition depots across the country.

"When they began cutting back the armed forces a couple of years ago, they began chopping at the lower levels. Then it was found there were too many chiefs and too few Indians."

The layoffs were ordered after a management study by a group from defence department headquarters who visited the depot two or three months ago.

Following the study, some positions were found to be redundant and others at the lower levels were reclassified.

Now that the layoff notices have been received the workers will be able to apply for other jobs in CFB Esquimalt.

The spokesman said that although the men would be absorbed into other departments, some of them, particularly those who were only taken on a year or so ago, might have to settle for jobs for less pay.

They would remain in these positions, he said, until opportunities came for advancement.

NEW FIRE CHIEF FOR NORTH SAANICH

North Saanich volunteer firemen will be headed by Chief W. R. Snow, replacing Chief Doug Jack whose resignation takes effect at the end of this year.

Snow, 37, of 1125 Laurel, was elected by his fellow firemen at a recent meeting.

A mechanic with Dench Excavating Ltd., he has been with the fire department since its formation two years ago.

Ald. George Aylard, fire committee chairman, recommended Snow's appointment on Monday and also named George Hartshorne and R. D. Evans as captains and A. E. Deans as licutenant.

"These appointments were made in full consultation with the firemen," said Aylard in answer to a question by Mayor Trevor Davis.

Condominium Conversion For Burnside

Tenants Won't Be Forced to Buy, Says Official

Burnside Gardens, the second oldest apartment complex in Saanich, is being converted to a condominium project.

But a spokesman for the 120-unit housing development denied Monday that any pressure will be applied to those tenants who elect not to buy the condominium suites offered to them on a first-refusal basis.

"We're not forcing them to buy," said a local spokesman for Nacel Properties Ltd., the Vancouver-based company which has purchased the garden apartment's 10-acre site at Tillicum and Burnside.

"They can think about it very carefully. If they elect not to buy, and as time goes by an interested purchaser comes along, they will be given the opportunity of moving into a nearby vacant suite."

The time allowed to move, either to another suite within the complex or elsewhere, would be 60 days.

What happens if that suite, in turn, comes up for sale?

The process is repeated, explained the spokesman, who preferred not to have his name mentioned. Asked, however, if a family could find itself moving every two months or so, he replied that was unlikely as the demand for housing indicates a ready market for condominium-type accommodation.

He said the suites are being offered for sale at "well below market value," with mortgages arranged on a five per cent down payment.

The 63 three-bedroom town houses, each 1,250 square feet in area, will sell for $15,900, including all appliances. Price of the 57-two-bedroom, 950 square-foot units will be $13,800, again including appliances.

The spokesman said buyers who are now renters will find their maximum monthly payments — including principal, interest and taxes — $40 less than the rents they are now paying on the three-bedroom units, and $30 less on the two-bedroom units.

Rents are $180 and $160 respectively.

The company representative said he didn't think finding the down payment would prove a difficult obstacle for most tenants, even allowing for the fact that Burnside Gardens is far from being a high-income area.

"No, $750 isn't a hell of a lot to put down on a 1,200-square-foot home," he said. If, in some cases, the tenants want to buy but have only part of the ready cash the company might "go along with them" and accept some sort of deferred payment such as a tax rebate," he said.

The company is now redecorating the exterior of the 15 buildings without cost to the tenants, and will also redecorate individual suites as they are sold. No assessment fees to cover maintenance of common grounds would be charged until July 1, 1973.

The spokesman said Nacel Properties is well aware of the controversy surrounding the conversion of apartments to condominiums, and is anxious to avoid the reputation which others in this field have gained.

"We don't want anyone saying we have kicked people out," he said. "I live here in the complex and my neighbors are my potential customers.

"If we were rip-off artists I bet you we wouldn't be living here."

Tenants were informed of the change last Friday and it's a little early to predict what the response will be, he said, but added that he has several appointments lined up and one person has already said he wants to buy his suite.

A SWINGER'S LAMENT FOR PIERRE

Times News Services

LONDON — The London Times today lamented the passing of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, swinger.

"Being prime minister of Canada for more than four years has dulled him nearly beyond recognition," the Times said in its gossip column today.

"Yesterday he held a press conference . . . in the same room where, four years ago, he met the British press for the first time at one of the liveliest question and answer sessions to grace a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

"Reporters in miniskirts asked questions about his love life and he parried them with wit and elegance. He spoke strongly and thoughtfully about Canada and his role as its leader.

"Yesterday was a dour contrast. He arrived late, said he could not stay long and mumbled, sometimes nearly inaudibly, long, dreary, unimaginative answers . . . he made two half-hearted jokes about the loss of his majority in parliament and that was the end of the entertainment . . .

"Even 50-year-old swingers grow up," the Times said, "which is a shame."

Trudeau completed two days of talks with Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday, and flew back to Canada today.

He said today he was "very gratified" with the British prime minister's reassurances that Canada's viewpoint is fully understood.

Britain joins the European Common Market Jan. 1, and Commonwealth preferential tariffs will be abolished gradually, affecting more than half of Canada's exports to Britain. In 1971, Britain imported $1.3 billion worth of goods from Canada — about eight per cent of Canada's total exports.

Expanding Labor Force Ups Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — An estimated 524,000 people were unemployed in November, the highest proportion of the labor force for that month in a decade, Statistics Canada reported today.

The figure was up from 483,000 in October and compared with 503,000 unemployed in November last year.

In B.C. 67,000 were seeking work, the same number as in October and 1,000 more than in November, 1971.

The statistics bureau said the Canadian labor force continued to expand—an unusual occurrence in November—rising to 8.88 million from 8.87 million in October.

But as winter approached all industries except manufacturing cut back on their work forces. There were greater-than-usual job reductions in agriculture and other primary industries.

The result was that 5.9 per cent of the labor force was unemployed last month, compared with 5.4 per cent in October and 5.8 per cent in November last year. The last time the November unemployment rate hit 5.9 per cent was in 1962.

Despite the gloomy November situation, Statistics Canada said the underlying trend showed improvement.

Adjusting the data for the month to reflect the situation if it were not for seasonal factors such as the approach of winter, the bureau said the underlying trend of unemployment fell to 6.6 per cent from 6.9 in October and 7.1 in September. It was also 6.6 in November last year.

The seasonally adjusted figure represents, in effect, an averaging of the unemployment rate for a year. Because of the big swing between high summer activity and the winter letdown, the actual rate usually climbs above the seasonally-adjusted figure in the winter months, and drops below it in the summer.

The actual rate of unemployment rose last winter to 7.7 per cent of the labor force in January, when the seasonally adjusted rate was down to 6.2

Statistics Canada said the increase in unemployment last month was less than usual. So was the decrease in employment. Manufacturing employment usually falls off in November, but it increased this year.

The bureau reported that 56 per cent of the civilian population aged 14 and over was in the labor force last month, showing no reduction for the month. This so-called participation rate was up from 55.7 per cent in November last year and 55.4 per cent in November, 1970.

The high participation rate has been described by the government as one of the unusual factors contributing to high unemployment figures in recent years.

Regionally, unemployment rose in all parts of the country last month except in British Columbia, where it remained the same—7.1 per cent of the labor force, as in October and a year earlier.

The rate rose to 8.4 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, from 7.2 per cent in October and eight per cent in November last year.

Plumber Shot When Pipe Taken for Gun

BELFAST (UPI) — British soldiers killed one plumber and wounded another today in the mistaken belief that pieces of pipe they carried were rifles, the army said.

"It appears the soldiers made a mistake and the men were innocent," an army spokesman said.

The troops saw and shot the two men in a derelict house previously used by snipers after gunmen opened fire on their outpost in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne district, he said. It was in this same neighborhood that soldiers Monday night killed a 16-year-old gunman.

The slain man — the fifth person killed in four days — was the 651st fatality in more than three years of violence between Roman Catholics and Protestants in Ulster.

An army spokesman said the two men apparently ran to the windows of the house with pieces of pipe and tools in their hands when they heard the gunfire.

Snow Snarls City Traffic, Chill Lingers

Arctic winds from the east unloaded up to four inches of snow on Greater Victoria overnight and the weatherman predicted today that chilly weather will linger several days.

The season's first snowfall in the capital region was limited to about an inch around Victoria but that was enough to make roads slippery, generate traffic tie-ups and lead a number of drivers into the ditch.

In Saanich, police had to deal with about two dozen minor accidents. Colwood RCMP had close to 10, Oak Bay four and there was one each reported in Victoria and Esquimalt.

While municipal road crews were out in full force with sand and salt, it wasn't enough to prevent rushhour delays, particularly on hills.

Allan McQuarrie of the weather office said the weather system which brought the snow rolled out of the Arctic to involve most of North America.

"There is no sign of any warming trend for at least several days and a chance of another light snowfall Thursday night or Friday," he said.

Temperatures will dip to 20 "or a little lower" tonight and will likely climb to the low thirties Wednesday. Gales in coastal inlets are to continue with winds averaging about 40 miles an hour.

McQuarrie said the easterly winds picked up moisture from Georgia Strait to drop it as snow on the east coast of

No Skagit Dam, Compensation

Environment Minister Jack Davis today said the federal government is in the process of informing the United States that the flooding of the Skagit Valley in southwestern B.C. "won't occur."

At a press conference this morning with Premier Barrett in Victoria, Davis said he expects that Canada or B.C. will have to pay compensation and that there will be a court case to determine the amount.

"The Skagit flooding won't occur. It's a matter of getting the message through not only to Washington but Seattle City Light (company) so they will stop paying lawyers and economists and so on to carry out further studies on the U.S. side," Davis said.

Neither Barrett nor Davis could give any estimate of what the compensation might amount to.

Barrett said B.C. would help in any way Davis wants.

Barrett also announced a new location for the coal shipping port near Squamish is under study by the provincial and federal governments.

Barrett said there has been no decision yet, but studies are going ahead and one of them could be released in two weeks.

Barrett noted that the original Squamish coal dock site has been scrapped by Davis, and "we agree with that decision."

The new location is the nearby Mamquam channel, which Barrett said has "already been destroyed by logging booms."

Slick Ads and Parents Blamed for Drug Cult

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Slick advertising, profit-hungry manufacturers and pill-taking parents are the real culprits behind the explosion of the drug culture among the young, U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson said today.

Nelson, opening two days of hearings into home remedies for coughs and colds, contended promotion of over-the-counter drugs is "nothing short of scandalous."

He said people in the U.S. pay some $1 billion for home remedies every year, hoping to cure everything from stuffy noses to obesity.

Among the targets for this week's hearings will be such popular cold-fighters as Contac, Dristan, Allerest and Coricidin — products for which Nelson said medical science has found "no convincing evidence" of benefit.

In fact, he said, these products may cause undesirable side effects — particularly if the patient has heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure or thyroid disease.

"These products are at best mostly useless, while many are harmful and even dangerous," Nelson said.

"Most of the drug companies' promotion and advertising of these products is simply a generous mixture of false claims and outright nonsense. While the drug companies deserve to be exposed and censured and the law needs to be tightened to control their advertising, the public itself must share the blame for the fact that we have become a nation of irrational pill-poppers."

In testimony before the committee, a doctor suggested today that hot chicken soup might be as effective as some highly advertised medicines in fighting colds and coughs.

Dr. Sol Katz a Georgetown University, Washington, said "cold preparations containing ingredients such as decongestants, antihistamines, analgesics, anticholinergics, caffeine, etc., are objectionable for many reasons."

Katz said the remedies which combine ingredients may harmfully suppress a cough by also prolonging an infection and drying nasal passages when "what is not what you want to do."

"Youngsters cannot buy 6 per cent beer, but they can go into a drug store and buy a cough remedy with 20 per cent alcohol," Katz said. "They can get a high from that."

SEVERANCE PAY OF $25,000

The three members of the disbanded B.C. Mediation Commission have been given severance settlements of about $25,000 each by the NDP government.

Labor Minister Bill King made the announcement today. Former chairman of the commission, John Parker, is to get a settlement of $25,309. The two former members, Alastair Pollock and Pen Baskin, each get $24,762.

King said the figures were arrived at after "discussions" between the government and the three commissioners.

King said the government did not feel legally obligated to make a monetary settlement with the commissioners "but there was a certain moral obligation."

The commissioners lost their jobs when the government decided to disband the Mediation Commission during the special session of the legislature.

Special Features

The Times family section today presents the first of five articles on handicapped children, the extent of their handicap and the facilities available to them and their parents in the province and in Victoria.

The series will examine such handicaps as cerebral palsy, muscular distrophy, mental retardation, hyperactivity and autism. Each article will tell the story of one child's suffering and how his family copes with it.

In another special feature today Saanich and Esquimalt aldermanic candidates plus Saanich school trustee candidates list their concerns in the forthcoming Dec. 9 municipal elections on Page 10.

BCTF to Probe Campbell River

VANCOUVER (CP) — Adam Robertson, president of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation, said Monday he will name an independent commission this week "to take a cold, hard look" at the learning environment in the Campbell River school district.

The commission, he said, was requested by district teachers to investigate what they called the rapidly deteriorating educational climate in all district schools during the last year or so.

Robertson said a request for the investigation was made to him and in September by "a considerable number of school personnel" during a visit to the district.

The BCTF executive agreed to the request and on Nov. 18 instructed Robertson to name the commission and get on with the job, he said.

Robertson said he is unsure how many members to name to the commission although it will be no more than three. Its composition will depend on who is available and whom he can trust to do an objective job.

He said he dictated a letter to Education Minister Eileen Dailly informing her of the commission and planned to do the same for school trustees of the district later this week.

He said the investigation would not be a witch-hunt but would be conducted in a positive and orderly manner.

Robertson said he hopes to elicit the co-operation of the school board, and would not discount the possibility he will ask one district school trustee to sit on the commission.

But if the board refuses to allow the commission access to the schools, he said, the investigation will go ahead although it would be "more complicated and the conclusions less valid."

He said the investigation would take about three days and should be completed before Christmas.

School board chairman Hal Newman was not available for comment, but trustee Marianne Otterson said she would welcome the commission and she agreed with Robertson that the educational climate had deteriorated.

"Everything has been hung up on the seemingly eternal issue of John Young," she said, "so that the board has not been able to occupy itself properly with important matters of educational policy."

Aldermen Present Strong Objections To Closed Sessions

Veil Lifted From Oak Bay Council

Oak Bay council's veil of secrecy was lifted Monday night when three aldermen led a successful move to have in-camera items dealt with in public.

The attack was started by Ald. Shirley Dowell, who asked that in-camera items be brought forward while the press and public were there.

"We have so many in-camera meetings that we do as much business in them as we do in open council," she said.

Ald. John Goult and Ald. Douglas McLelland supported Mrs. Dowell.

McLelland reminded Mayor Frances Elford that council at an earlier meeting had agreed that copies of in-camera items should be available for the press when discussed in front of them

"Copies should be available to them so that they know what we're talking about."

He was told that none were available, that the staff would have to run off copies. Mrs. Elford said the material wasn't available for the press because the staff was "grossly overworked."

McLelland retorted:

"Then let's take half an hour and get them done off (the copies). It's public business when it's brought forward.

"I don't wish to be tedious on this point and you did agree that copies would be available to avoid this situation."

The meeting was suspended until the material was presented to the press.

Earlier in the meeting, McLelland moved that council's special recreation committee stop holding in-camera meetings dealing with the proposed recreation centre.

He said that a great deal of misunderstanding had resulted from the fact that all the committee's meetings had been held in secret.

"There isn't a man, woman, child, dog or cat in Oak Bay that doesn't know where we propose to put the centre," he said.

Council agreed that all business on the recreation program would be public in future except when it involved land purchases.

CPR Blamed For Harbor 'Hucksterism'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Representatives of several sightseeing firms operating from the Causeway today laid the blame for Inner Harbor "hucksterism" squarely at the door of the CPR and Empress Hotel.

The bus and tally-ho operators told city council traffic committee the main reason they are forced into a competitive situation, involving aggressive ticket-touting, is to counter the exclusive franchise which the CPR has with two local bus companies—Gray Line and Blue Line.

This monopoly arrangement, whereby tourists are sold tours for the two lines on all CPR ships, on the dock at Seattle and Victoria and at the Empress itself, means they are "brainwashed" before the operators ever reach them, aldermen were told.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways of controlling build-up of sightseeing vehicles on the Causeway, and to eliminate the offensive accosting of passers-by which has resulted in increasing complaints over the years.

But Bill McClarty, president of London Omnibus Tours Ltd., said as long as one company has "unrestricted solicitation privileges," on property adjacent to the Causeway, any restriction of its competitors is "tantamount to legislating the other companies out of existence."

"Does the city council want a sight-seeing monopoly controlled by the CPR?" he asked.

'Four-Hour Harangue'

In a lengthy brief, McClarty charged that the Causeway problem is due to present unequal competition "resulting from a discriminatory action and the desire of the CPR to milk some small profit out of every facet of the tourist industry."

He said that for about 1,000-2,000 daily visitors, the first impression of Victoria is a "four-hour harangue" over the public address system on the Seattle-Victoria ferry.

"This offensive blast is aimed at convincing the visitor that he must buy his sightseeing ticket from the ship's purser as he will be unable to get reservations by the time he reaches Victoria.

"This is followed by intensive solicitation within the ferry dock unloading area after arrival.

"If solicitation is so offensive on the street in front of the hotel, why is hawking permitted on their ship and on their property? Perhaps it is because the CPR gets a substantial commission on sightseeing sold on their ship, and some tribute from other solicitors on their dock.

"After all, good taste cannot be allowed to interfere with company profits," McClarty said.

'Brainwashed All the Way'

John Olson of Tally-Ho tours made no bones about admitting to the committee that he and his employees "sell like mad" to tourists walking along the Causeway.

"The reason that we have to is that all the cream is taken off the sightseeing business before we even get to the tourists.

"They have been brainwashed all the way across from Seattle and in the Empress before we even get a crack at them."

Also in a brief on behalf of Tally-Ho, A. W. Knapp said $3,000 in daily sales would be "an underestimate" on the sales of the government-owned Pacific Stage and Blue Line buses. On that basis a 15 per cent commission would bring the CPR-Empress income to $450 daily during the June-July-August period.

But he added the actual sum could be double that.

Lawyer Ian Stewart, representing CPR, said this had been his first opportunity to listen to the complaints and he would suggest that they be examined by CPR at the management level.

Referring to complaints of ticket-hawking on the Empress lawns and walks, he said there is a great difference between solicitation on private and public property.

At the end of the discussion it was informally agreed that the bus operators and possibly the Empress Hotel as well will try to come up with their own solution.

Bob Alexander of Victoria Chamber of Commerce urged the operators to get together, or they will find a solution imposed from city hall.

"If you can eliminate the growing physical presence (of buses) and the growing soliciting, it will be of great help to us," said Mayor Peter Pollen.

But, he warned, if there is no voluntary solution, "we will have to impose one," he said.

B.C. Grants Awarded Victorians

Seven Victoria residents have been given scholarship grants by the B.C. government to enable them to continue their studies at cultural instiutions.

Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall announced that a total of 32 grants, amounting to $22,268, had been approved by the government. The awards are for tuition only and are paid directly to the institutions the students attend.

Another Island winner was Danny Hudson of Nanaimo, who was awarded $850 for his study of music.

Contractor Seeking Damages

Ron Smith of Cowie Tree Service Ltd. told North Saanich council Monday that it will be served this month with a writ for damages allegedly incurred when council halted work on a tree-clearing project last January.

Smith, who said he was claiming damages "in excess of $30,000," also told council that he was about to start selective clearing on two large tracts of land in North Saanich.

"I would like council to consider whether they will raise objections before I sign the contract," said Smith, reminding members that he had made similar inquiries before embarking on the contract on A. F. Baines Ltd. property on Lands End Road, late in 1971.

The stop-work order was issued shortly after the 1972 council was sworn in but was rescinded later in January on the advice of the municipal solicitor.

Reverberations of the stop-work order included differences of opinion between the Mayor and the solicitor and complaints from residents of the unfinished clearing job.

Smith was told by Mayor Trevor Davis on Monday that municipal staff would advise him on present bylaws.

Hotel's Approval Increases Saanich Convention Capacity

Construction of the second convention-size hotel in Saanich — the $1.5 million Royal Oak Inn — has been given municipal approval.

A building permit was issued Monday afternoon and construction is expected to be carried over the next six months.

Joseph Isherwood, who with brothers John and Foster are the owners and developers of Royal Oak Inn Ltd., said the new hotel will cater to a maximum 385 convention delegates, based on its assembly-room-cabaret capacity, with parking for about 300 cars.

The hotel also will have a 300-seat public house; coffee shop, dining room and cocktail lounge each with 90 seats, and 62 accommodation rooms.

Property with 535 feet of frontage along Elk Lake Drive adjoins the 263-foot frontage of Royal Oak Motel, a 32-unit business also operated by the Isherwood family.

Last week members of Capital Regional District public works committee inspected the site where the company intends to dispose of its sewage effluent.

A Pollution Control Board permit to treat sewage and hold the discharge in ponds for irrigation purposes has been issued and is valid to the end of 1974, by which time it is expected the Saanich sewer system will be extended to Royal Oak.

The committee was satisfied the system is compatible with Beaver Lake Park and the Colquitz River waterway which adjoin the hotel site.

Joe Isherwood said exterior of the new building would be of French country style compatible with the existing motel structures and 100 feet distant. Setback will be 275 feet on Elk Lake Drive.

Facilities will include two tennis courts, a playground, 3,250-yard nine-hole golf course, horseback riding, hydrotherapy pools and a total of 60 acres of grounds including landscaped parking.

Hotel accommodation is scheduled to open June 1 with the public areas ready a month later.

The hotel was designed by Fred Rowe and general contractor is Dura Constructors Ltd., of Victoria.

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me why moss grows on an asphalt shingle roof, and what, if anything, can be done to remedy the condition? W. B.

A. A local roofing expert says moss will grow on almost any substance. It grows on asphalt shingles if there's an accumulation of dust and dirt on the shingles and a lot of moisture as well, usually after the shingles are seven or eight years old. You can buy an inexpensive moss killer spray from roofers, and also hire someone to spray the shingles. The roofing man doesn't recommend spraying until summer, when you can get three or four days of dry weather after spraying.

Grieve Slams Draft Budget

A provisional budget which holds the North Saanich mill rate at this year's 19.5 mills was received by council Monday.

Finance committee chariman Ald. Paul Grieve criticized the draft budget "because possibilities which will be before the new council are not properly presented."

Certain items could be eliminated and would, he said, result in a mill rate lowered to 17.5 next year.

Nobody Gets Gate In Depot Layoff

Layoff notices have been given to about 13 workers at the Rocky Point ammunition depot but nobody will be actually "going out the gate", a spokesman said today.

He explained that it was part of a long-term plan to standardize ammunition depots across the country.

"When they began cutting back the armed forces a couple of years ago, they began chopping at the lower levels. Then it was found there were too many chiefs and too few Indians."

The layoffs were ordered after a management study by a group from defence department headquarters who visited the depot two or three months ago.

Following the study, some positions were found to be redundant and others at the lower levels were reclassified.

Now that the layoff notices have been received the workers will be able to apply for other jobs in CFB Esquimalt.

The spokesman said that although the men would be absorbed into other departments, some of them, particularly those who were only taken on a year or so ago, might have to settle for jobs for less pay.

They would remain in these positions, he said, until opportunities came for advancement.

NEW FIRE CHIEF FOR NORTH SAANICH

North Saanich volunteer firemen will be headed by Chief W. R. Snow, replacing Chief Doug Jack whose resignation takes effect at the end of this year.

Snow, 37, of 1125 Laurel, was elected by his fellow firemen at a recent meeting.

A mechanic with Dench Excavating Ltd., he has been with the fire department since its formation two years ago.

Ald. George Aylard, fire committee chairman, recommended Snow's appointment on Monday and also named George Hartshorne and R. D. Evans as captains and A. E. Deans as licutenant.

"These appointments were made in full consultation with the firemen," said Aylard in answer to a question by Mayor Trevor Davis.

Condominium Conversion For Burnside

Tenants Won't Be Forced to Buy, Says Official

Burnside Gardens, the second oldest apartment complex in Saanich, is being converted to a condominium project.

But a spokesman for the 120-unit housing development denied Monday that any pressure will be applied to those tenants who elect not to buy the condominium suites offered to them on a first-refusal basis.

"We're not forcing them to buy," said a local spokesman for Nacel Properties Ltd., the Vancouver-based company which has purchased the garden apartment's 10-acre site at Tillicum and Burnside.

"They can think about it very carefully. If they elect not to buy, and as time goes by an interested purchaser comes along, they will be given the opportunity of moving into a nearby vacant suite."

The time allowed to move, either to another suite within the complex or elsewhere, would be 60 days.

What happens if that suite, in turn, comes up for sale?

The process is repeated, explained the spokesman, who preferred not to have his name mentioned. Asked, however, if a family could find itself moving every two months or so, he replied that was unlikely as the demand for housing indicates a ready market for condominium-type accommodation.

He said the suites are being offered for sale at "well below market value," with mortgages arranged on a five per cent down payment.

The 63 three-bedroom town houses, each 1,250 square feet in area, will sell for $15,900, including all appliances. Price of the 57-two-bedroom, 950 square-foot units will be $13,800, again including appliances.

The spokesman said buyers who are now renters will find their maximum monthly payments — including principal, interest and taxes. — $40 less than the rents they are now paying on the three-bedroom units, and $30 less on the two-bedroom units.

Rents are $180 and $160 respectively.

The company representative said he didn't think finding the down payment would prove a difficult obstacle for most tenants, even allowing for the fact that Burnside Gardens is far from being a high-income area.

"No, $750 isn't a hell of a lot to put down on a 1,200-square-foot home," he said. If, in some cases, the tenants want to buy but have only part of the ready cash the company might "go along with them" and accept some sort of deferred payment such as a tax rebate," he said.

The company is now redecorating the exterior of the 15 buildings without cost to the tenants, and will also redecorate individual suites as they are sold. No assessment fees to cover maintenance of common grounds would be charged until July 1, 1973.

The spokesman said Nacel Properties is well aware of the controversy surrounding the conversion of apartments to condominiums, and is anxious to avoid the reputation which others in this field have gained.

"We don't want anyone saying we have kicked people out," he said. "I live here in the complex and my neighbors are my potential customers.

"If we were rip-off artists I bet you we wouldn't be living here."

Tenants were informed of the change last Friday and it's a little early to predict what the response will be, he said, but added that he has several appointments lined up and one person has already said he wants to buy his suite.
